CANADA'S POLITICAL STALEMATE

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Pearson's Dilemma: Assault or a War of Attrition?

OTTAWA—After two years of disruption, the political system of Canada is slowly groping its way back to normality. But it has a long way to go and will not reach its goal without another national election. Though Mr. Diefenbaker is probably the only politician in Ottawa who favors an early election, events may produce it in the autumn. For clearly the present situation in Parliament cannot continue much longer.

Hutchison

Having taken office on a set of mistaken premises and irrelevant assumptions, the Pearson government made a sorry mess of its first year but is ready at last to lay down a coherent national policy, or the first elements of it. Some eighty pieces of legislation have been drafted and perhaps a quarter of them are regarded as urgent.

Yet the spring foliage and tulips had exploded on Parliament Hill before a single statute of any significance had been passed. The name of the Trans Canada Air Lines was solemnly changed and that was all.

Naturally, the government blames this stalemate on Mr. Diefenbaker, who desperately desires an election while he is still young enough to fight it. And naturally Mr. Diefenbaker blames the government, not without good evidence, for failing to do its homework and introduce its legislative program.

A parliament of minorities has been making a repulsive spectacle of itself since the election of 1962. Today, in the opinion of its wiser members, it has reached the lowest point of public esteem ever recorded. It has nowhere to go but up. This damage to Canadian democracy is the price of two inconclusive elections when the people twice refused to vote confidence in any leader or party.

The sovereign question of current politics is whether the people are now prepared to vote confidence in the Pearson government, to re-elect the Conservatives or to withhold any majority mandate. No politician knows the answer but some are eager to seek it in the open.

About a month ago a small group of leading Liberal figures, disgusted by a year of false starts and humiliating retreats, urged Mr. Pearson to end this misery and attempt a dash for freedom. The government, they said, should go to the country before midsummer on the issue of its old-age pension policy.

Mr. Pearson promptly rejected this counsel, knowing that the pension policy already was obsolete and must be replaced by an entirely different scheme acceptable to Quebec and Ontario. Besides, it would have been political madness of a peculiarly violent sort to risk an election while the government was publicly fighting the two largest provinces.

Once Mr. Pearson had reached an accord with them on pensions and taxes—a dubious accord, to be sure, but at least a breathing spell in the cold federal-provincial war — and the Liberals had won the Saskatchewan election, the political prospects looked better.

The young Turks of the Liberal party renewed their demand for a poll to break the stalemate.

Again they failed to convince their leader. In any case, it was now too late for an election before autumn, since no government willingly faces the electorate in the summer holiday season. Moreover, the public, as Ottawa measures its opinion, is tired of political alarms and would resent a third election within some two years unless it was plainly unavoidable.

This argument within the Liberal hierarchy could not shake the prime minister who, during the last few weeks, has made himself the unquestioned master of his party. Mr. Pearson's mind was on more practical concerns.

The state of Parliament, as he surveys it with a deceptively boyish grin from the treasury benches, has no parallel in the past, not even in the days of Mackenzie King's first minority government.

On the one hand, the Liberal party is basically divided between its right and left wings, between its protectionists led by Mr. Gordon and its low-tariff internationalists led by Mr. Sharp, between its old guard of veterans and its recent recruits.

On the other, the Conservative

Que. MLA 'Peddled Influence'

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—Antonio Talbot, Union Nationale member for Chicoutimi and former highways minister in the Duplessis administration, today was found guilty on 13 charges of "influence peddling."

Talbot, 62, and a lawyer was fined $100 on each of the 13 charges by Sessions Court Judge Thomas Tremblay.

The charges arose out of the Salvas royal commission report, set up by Premier Jean Lesage to investigate the purchasing practices of the former Union Nationale government.

Tremblay said Talbot was saved from a jail sentence because he had not profited from "kickbacks" on materials used for road construction while he headed the highways department.

The judge also said that the Crown had not proven that Talbot had acted with malice.

The relatively light sentence given the ex-minister — who briefly acted as interim leader of the Union Nationale following the party's electoral defeat and resignation of Premier Antonio Barrette in 1960—was the first conviction meted out to a former Duplessis cabinet minister.

Anti-Castro Raiders Hit Cuban Sugar Mill

MIAMI (AP)—The opening attack of a promised war of sabotage and harassment against the Castro regime in Cuba was reported today by an exile group —a raid on a sugar mill at Puerto Pilon.

The Revolutionary Recovery Movement (MRR) reported a successful attack on the mill, but gave no details. Puerto Pilon is on the southern coast of Oriente province, in eastern Cuba.

Three anti-Castro groups, including MRR, have announced that they planned to be fighting on Cuban soil prior to Cuba's independence anniversary May 20.

The MRR, organized in 1959 by students of Roman Catholic faith, is headed by Dr. Manuel Artime, formerly an officer in Castro's rebel army, and civilian chief of the Bay of Pigs invasion in April, 1961. He was taken prisoner but liberated with others on payment of a $500,000 indemnity.

Exile groups say additional attacks by the MRR and other groups may be expected at any time.

"This is the first of a series of attacks to come immediately," said a spokesman at MRP. "Our immediate objective is to liquidate targets vital to the hangman Castro. Later on we shall go in for establishment of large scale guerrilla forces in our homeland.

New Look At China By Canada

THE HAGUE (CP) — Paul Martin reviewed world problems at the NATO spring council Tuesday and indicated that Canada's position on one of them—recognization of Communist China—may change early next year.

Canada doesn't recognize Red China, but the external affairs minister told the opening session of the three-day ministerial meeting that the Peking government could not be excluded indefinitely from world councils and world acceptance.

Canada opposes any solution of the Chinese problem at the expense of the nationalist government of Chiang Kai-shek on the island of Formosa.

But Martin said "a grave danger exists that chances for a solution that would make provision for Formosa and its inhabitants might disappear if we do not move soon from the present static position."

The implication was that Red China may be admitted to the UN. The 1963 General Assembly voted 57 to 41 against seating Red China with a dozen abstentions. Since then France has recognized the Communist regime.

'MAY MODIFY POSITION'

Martin declared "while we have no intention of doing anything which would add to the difficulties of our friends, the realities of the situation may require some modification of our position following the 19th session of the UN assembly." The 19th session ends early in 1965.

A Canadian spokesman declined to expand on Martin's statement and said there was no immediate reaction to it at the meeting.

Sessions of the council, made up of the foreign ministers of the 15 NATO countries, are secret and summaries of speeches are made available to the press.

Martin also was blunt on several other world problems including Cyprus and he disclosed

Exasperated Pique, Says U.K. Paper

LONDON (CP)—The speech by American State Secretary Rusk at the NATO conference in The Hague shows that U.S. policy toward Cuba is "as stubborn and misguided as ever," says The Guardian of Manchester.

In its main editorial, the newspaper says American policy on Cuba is not rational.

"It is not a considered attempt to reach a definite objective so much as an act of exasperated pique."

The newspaper acknowledges that it is galling for the Americans to see a ruthless dictatorship established on their doorstep, but adds that sympathy for American anger should not lead to support for mistaken policies.

Seeks Expansion Of Canada Trade

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Charles B. Neapole, general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, said today the Soviet Union is checking into the prospects of buying 500,000 tons of Canadian wheat annually.

(Earlier this week Anastas Mikoyan, Soviet deputy premier, was quoted as telling a group of Canadian executives; including Neapole, that Russia is "ready to buy in Canada every year wheat for Far Eastern districts.")

Neapole said the Russians might buy the wheat to fill Soviet grain needs on Russia's Pacific seaboard. The long-term deal would be worth up to about $40,000,000 a year.

James A. Richardson, a Winnipeg grain merchant, said the Soviet government wanted a permanent grain supply for the Pacific seaboard because Canadian deliveries would be cheaper than the cost of moving Soviet wheat from the Ukraine.

He said the proposal was in addition to the current $500,000,000 deal under which Russia is buying Canadian wheat and flour to make up for harvest losses.

PERMANENT DEAL?

The Far Eastern deal was envisaged as a permanent trade feature, he said. According to the Soviet estimates, it would involve about 18,000,000 bushels a year.

Neapole said the two-week tour of 40 Canadian executives opened up "very definite potential" for more trade in both directions. The Canadians leave for Stockholm Thursday.

Neapole said there were "indications" that Soviet purchases of Canadian wheat to offset local shortages might rise to $1,000,000,000 over a two-year period, including the $500,000,000 supply negotiated last September.

Canada has already delivered 125,000,000 bushels of wheat under last year's deal, just over half the total. Neapole said negotiations to increase the order were still in progress in Canada.

"There is certainly a desire

MOSCOW (CP) — Russia has been invited to bid on equipment for the $800,000,000 Peace River hydro development in British Columbia, it was learned today.

The invitation was made by Dr. Gordon Shrum, co-chairman of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, who is a member of a group of Canadian executives now visiting the Soviet Union.

It is expected the Russians will send experts to B.C. to study the Authority's needs first-hand.

'Parliament Snubbed'

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin's remarks to NATO about recognition of Communist China are another example of government contempt of Parliament, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said today.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government had been asked in the House of Commons to state its stand on China and had not given an answer.

"This is another example of the attitude of this government and reveals again its contempt for Parliament," he said.

"Such an announcement should have been made in Parliament first."

CHURCH RADIO JINGLES JANGLE EDITOR

Lonely on That Limb Without Him?

TORONTO (CP)—The United Church Observer blasts religious radio commercials that will be broadcast here starting in July.

The paper accused its church of "American religiosity at its worst" and of sacrificing good taste, dignity, theology and common sense.

The advertising project is being sponsored jointly by the United Church of Canada and the Anglican Church.

After a month of about 125 to 800 commercials a day, a survey will be taken to decide if the program will be carried on.

Rev. Keith Wollard, director of broadcasting, said in an interview the views of the paper's editor, Rev. A. C. Forrest, are not those of the United Church.

The religious messages supplied by the United Presbyterian Church in the United States are to be offered to all eight Toronto stations and others near Toronto in Oshawa, Brampton and Oakville.

Following some message, a jingle prepared by U.S. comedian Stan Freberg will be broadcast. It goes:

"Where'd you get the idea you could make it all by yourself? Doesn't it get a little lonely sometimes out on that limb without Him? It's a great life but it could be greater. Why try and go it alone? The blessings you lose may be your own."

Mr. Wollard says that contrary to what Dr. Forrest thinks the messages are not corny. He says Dr. Forrest has missed the boat and that the survey will prove it.

Rt. Rev. G. B. Snell, coadjutor bishop of the Anglican diocese of Toronto who heard a sample of the messages Tuesday, commented:

Rev. Roy Hord, head of the United Church's board of evangelism and social service, agreed with the bishop.

"We regard this as an opportunity to get large numbers of people talking about religious matters," he said.

De Gaulle Challenged On French NATO Policy

THE HAGUE (CP)—Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak challenged President de Gaulle today to say just how France wants to change the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Persons who attended the session described Spaak's statements as energetic and pointed, although he refrained from mentioning de Gaulle or France by name. Couve de Murville indicated he would speak in reply at a secret session later today.

Spaak criticized de Gaulle on at least three points — the internal organization of the alliance, relations between the United States and Europe, and de Gaulle's policy in Southeast Asia.

Conference sources quoted him as saying that the only area of the world in which the Allies were firmly united on policy was Germany and Berlin. All members want Germany reunited through self-determination.

SEEK LOOSE STRUCTURE

France wants the NATO structure loosened to give members a stronger voice in policy, and to cut down the dominant U.S. role. Other members believe the NATO structure should be tightened.

Today the 15 ministers met with only two aides present for each of them. The aim was to limit the risk that divisive exchanges would be leaked.

PROBLEMS FACE NATO

Hanging over the alliance are such basic questions as:

How is NATO to be re-shaped to accommodate the growing strength of Europe without spreading or weakening control over nuclear weapons?

How will Britain be linked with her continental allies in developing industrial, social and military institutions?

How are the allies going to work together to close the gap between have and have-not nations, keep world peace, reorganize trading patterns and cope with the Communist world?

Are Europe and the U.S. to move closer together in defence of the non-Communist world or drift apart?

WANTS DEFENCES RE-CAST

He wants Europeans, preferably under French leadership, to re-cast their defence on the basis of a planning staff which would co-ordinate national forces.

De Gaulle also still would like some sort of American-French-British high command to chart allied strategy on a global scale. But he has warned that in a crisis, the United States might abandon Europe rather than risk nuclear devastation.

The United States, Britain and several other European nations want closer integration of their forces and policies. Only thus, they contend, can the peoples and institutions of the new world and the old co-operate effectively.

W. J. Goldsmith of 304 Bay Street has joined the growing chorus of protests over the smut emanating from Victoria's industrial chimneys.

"I cleaned my car last night—now look at it," snorted Mr. Goldsmith. He ran his hand over the cream-colored hood, and it was black with dirt.

"What is our city council doing about this?"

A similar complaint was voiced by Ron Worley, assistant manager of the B.C. Government Ferries and former assistant to Premier Bennett, on his return from a B.C. promotion tour in California.

"I've been boosting Victoria as one of the cleanest places in the world," he said. "Now look at this."

Like Mr. Goldsmith, Mr. Worley ran his hand over the hood of his car—and it, too, was grimy!

Seems a post-episode probe showed that six chief petty officers' families were mingled with the wives and families of the officers. And there was at least one officer's family mingled with the crowd of enlisted people's loved ones behind the barrier. The barrier was intended to protect the crowd from heaving lines. (If so, why wasn't everyone behind it?)

We are glad to have the navy's explanation. Now will the navy please explain this to the wives of lower deck people who phoned to say it was about time this discrimination was given publicity.

The principal of a local junior high worried one morning last week when roll-call revealed about 30 absentees, mostly from Grade X.

Replies to his inquiries left him puzzled. He was told that the students were having breakfast with the governor. He wondered why he had not been informed and why His Honor was entertaining so early.

Half an hour after assembly the answers were forthcoming. The tardy trooped in. They had breakfasted not with the governor, but at a restaurant with a similar name—all the pancakes each could eat for 99 cents. Only service had been nearly an hour later than they had expected.

At detention that afternoon he asked how many had eaten more than 10 pancakes. A forest of hands shot up. One boy announced he had eaten 25 sausages. And that, said the principal, on the day of the school track meet.

$750,000 Earmarked For Tidal Wave Victims

By FRANK RUTTER

The B.C. government will release $750,000 to tidal wave victims later this week, Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Tuesday.

The money will be paid out even if the federal government fails to match it, as B.C. has requested, the premier said.

A cabinet meeting Thursday will probably approve a special warrant for the cash, he added.

Mr. Bennett said Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson has not even acknowledged the two telegrams he sent about Alberni Valley disaster aid after the March 27 tidal waves.

OTTAWA DOING NOTHING

"On the night of the disaster they promised aid," he said.

"We've been busy with an evaluation and appraisal—as far as the Albernis are concerned, Ottawa has been busy doing nothing," he said.

Earlier Tuesday Mr. Pearson said in Ottawa that the federal government wanted more details of the damage.

"He hasn't said that to me," the premier responded.

"They're a little late in asking.

"I'm sure they wouldn't ask the U.S. for details."

(Ottawa gave aid to Alaska immediately after the earthquake which caused the tidal waves to rip up Vancouver Island's west coast).

Mr. Bennett said he is sure that federal Resources Minister Arthur Laing has been giving Mr. Pearson "wrong advice" about disaster aid.

He declined to say what the wrong advice might be.

"But I have confidence in the prime minister. I'm sure he will come through."

Mr. Bennett said B.C.'s $750,000—half the net depreciated loss set by private appraisers—will be turned over to a cabinet-appointed disaster relief committee.

"I am making this announcement so they can start portioning it out," he said.

Ottawa to Act Pearson Promises

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Opposition leader Diefenbaker and Prime Minister Pearson, Tuesday exchanged sharp words in the Commons over the question of federal aid to the victims of the March 27 Alberni flood disaster.

Mr. Diefenbaker called for an end to the "political differences and hassle" between the B.C. and federal governments over the aid issue. He said "politicians should shut up when it is time to put up."

The prime minister responded by telling Mr. Diefenbaker he was using "offensive" language, but finally agreed that Ottawa would provide aid. He said he hoped to be able to announce details of the aid on Wednesday or Thursday.

In putting his question, Mr. Diefenbaker noted it had been six weeks since the Alberni flood was caused by tidal waves resulting from earthquakes in Alaska.

He referred to the quarrel between B.C. Premier Bennett and Resources Minister Arthur Laing, senior cabinet minister for B.C., over sharing the cost of assistance to the flood victims.

"I ask the prime minister to cut through the red tape and political differences and hassle between this government and the government of B.C. and do something for these people," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Mr. Pearson, in reply, said he would "ignore" the "out of order and offensive adjectives" used by Mr. Diefenbaker.

ENTITLED TO ASK

He said the government was entitled to ask for full details from the B.C. government of flood damage, but so far had received only an aggregate figure. However, the government was inclined to not insist on details, although it was not possible for Ottawa to make a decision without some detail.

When Mr. Pearson referred to "offensive" remarks, some Conservative MPs shouted that he should "act like a prime minister."

Mr. Pearson said he would act like a prime minister if Mr. Diefenbaker would start to act as a former prime minister should. Liberal MPs pounded their desks in support of Mr. Pearson's point.

party is in the agonizing process of transfering power from one generation to another. To prevent this transfer and to preserve his leadership, Mr. Diefenbaker must compel an early election and win it. Otherwise his own authority will soon wither. His problem, therefore, is to frustrate the government's program without appearing to obstruct essential public business and drive Mr. Pearson to the country. And in this Fabian strategy Mr. Diefenbaker has no peer.

Meanwhile the splinter parties are distintegrating.

Social Credit is no longer a party in national politics but a public brawl. Two of its members have joined the Conservative party, which cannot afford to be choosy. Some others would like to join the Liberals, whose local constituency organizations refuse to accept them.

The New Democratic party finds that its sterile marriage of convenience with the labor unions has produced no visible progeny and in Saskatchewan it has lost its only solid base.

Apparently politics are returning, after a long detour, to the two-party system but the Liberal strategists cannot be sure yet that events are moving sufficiently fast or definitely in their favor. They can be sure, however, that their legislative program will not be enacted this year. Mr. Diefenbaker can easily delay it without straining himself.

RIVAL SCHOOLS

Consequently, two rival schools of thought have emerged in the Liberal party and in the cabinet.

One holds that the government should stubbornly press its program, endure another year of frustration and live uncomfortably through a full parliamentary term, if possible. Doubtless it can live indefinitely, short of some unpredictable accident, when the splinter parties are terrified of an election sure to diminish them and will hardly dare to defeat the government.

The other school replies that life under these conditions is intolerable, that the continual postponement of national policies will be blamed on the government, not the opposition, and that an autumn election is inevitable, no matter how inconvenient it may be.

Up to now the first view has prevailed with Mr. Pearson and most of his ministers. He deliberately adopts the posture of a leader with a program desired by the public and appears like the sculptured image of patience incarnate on a monument. But this sweet reasonableness can go only so far, as he must realize.

If Parliament swelters without a holiday through Ottawa's humid summer and has accomplished little or nothing by September, then Mr. Pearson may change his mind, if he hasn't begun to change it already.

FAST SWITCHES

This man, we should always remember, is capable of lightning changes, as when he reversed his nuclear policy overnight and, by one speech, destroyed the Diefenbaker government. Only a few weeks ago he again transformed the whole political climate singlehandedly by his bargain with Quebec.

Such a man will not indicate his plans in advance, even to his cabinet. Of all our prime ministers he is superficially the most candid and indiscreet but in fact the most secretive and mysterious.

At any rate, he has survived a year of shattering mistakes which he would not care to repeat and which he frankly admits, thus blandly breaking the first rule of politics. He must see now that most of his election slogans were impossible to begin with and quite out of date by the time he came to office, but those blunders have been painfully digested and he is ready for business.

IMPONDERABLES

Two imponderables stand in his way—a parliament unwilling or unable to legislate, an accord with French Canada that could collapse without warning if Premier Lesage refuses to control the cry-to-separatism in his provincial party.

Thus Mr. Pearson, immensely strengthened among his parliamentary followers, stands poised for a long war of attrition or, if necessery, a sudden assault. He is watching Parliament to see whether it is willing to do business. He is making sure that delay, if it continues, will be the clear responsibility of the official opposition and so judged by the voters.

Nevertheless, he and everyone around him must know that a nation bursting with economic health cannot long tolerate a sick political system or any government prevented from governing.

that five countries, four from Scandinavia plus the Dutch, have agreed informally to meet in Ottawa this summer to prepare the groundwork for a possible permanent UN peace-keeping force.

On the Cyprus situation, Martin said it is nonsense to maintain that Cyprus is not a NATO problem when it involves two NATO members — Greece and Turkey.

'MUST EXERT PRESSURE'

"The primary responsibility rests with the two Cypriot communities (Greek and Turkish) but what is needed now is that all possible pressure be brought to bear on them and their representatives to reach a peaceful settlement.

This influence can especially be exerted by the two members of the alliance (Turkey and Greece) which have special relationships and responsibility for the two communities."

In urging the Greeks and Turks to compose their differences peacefully, Martin proposed that the NATO secretary-general should be authorized to act as conciliator in the peacemaking process.

'ADVANCE PROPOSALS'

Martin dealt with these other subjects:

Berlin—"The West needs to be active in advancing proposals on Berlin and not wait for something to happen."

East-West trade—"If we encouraging conditions of trade with Eastern Europe we can contribute in even a small way to the development of new regimes more tolerant to the individual, less subservient to Moscow, then we surely are contributing to what should be a NATO objective in that area." Canada intends to develop such trade in non-strategic goods.

on the Russian part to have more trade," he said.

The Canadian group talked to reporters after a lunch at the Canadian embassy. Here on a privately organized fact-finding tour, they have had extensive talks with Soviet trade officials, including Nikolai Patolichev, foreign trade minister.

Patolichev told them Tuesday Russia is dissatisfied with existing Soviet - Canadian trade, which totalled only about $5,000,000 in 1962, the year before the big wheat deal.

Richardson, vice-president of James Richardson & Sons, Winnipeg, said the Russians did not try to make the projected Far Eastern wheat sale contingent on more Soviet sales to Canada, but said it would be "more helpful" if Canada increased its imports.

The Russians offered to sell plywood, canned fish, potash, chemicals, watches machine equipment and furs.

Richardson said the Soviet authorities also offered to ship oil direct to Western Canada, and there were prospects for Canada to sell pulp and paper equipment to Russia.

Neapole said he would recommend to the Royal Bank of Canada that it "broaden" its line of credit with the Soviet foreign trade bank.

DROPS SYMBOLIC STONE

Nikita Sails Up Nile to Aswan

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

ASWAN (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev set eyes today for the first time on the giant Aswan dam project, the Soviet Union's biggest aid program on the African continent.

Khrushchev and President Gamal Abdel Nasser flew from Cairo to take a five-mile boat trip up the Nile to the site in the United Arab Republic where 1,800 Soviet engineers put final touches on the first stage of the $1,300,000,000 project that will harness the river.

As Khrushchev and Nasser sailed triumphantly to the dam site, their party of cabinet ministers, generals and other officials drove in two buses along the road paralleling the river.

The Ramses steamed slowly through a shallow, 270-foot gap in the rock - filled foundation for the high dam. Khrushchev, Nasser and Yemeni President Abdullah Sallal each dropped a symbolic stone into the Nile as accompanying craft again set off their sirens.

The engineers had left the shallow passage open for this ceremony. As soon as the Ramses sailed on, huge dump trucks started filling the gap.

Khrushchev will make a land passage across it Saturday.

The Russians already have pledged credits equivalent to $271,000,000. Before the project is completed in 1970, the total of Soviet loans will probably be considerably more.

WAVES AT CROWDS

Khrushchev waved happily as he boarded the Nile steamer Ramses II to the cheers of crowds lining the bank.

The crowd held large portraits of Khrushchev and Nasser aloft and shouted welcoming chants.

For the next four days Khrushchev will participate in ceremonies at the dam site 550 miles south of Cairo, emphasizing to underdeveloped countries the propaganda message of what Soviet aid can do.

Thursday Khrushchev and Nasser will engage in a button-pressing ceremony, touching off 340 pounds of TNT. The blast will rip apart a sand and rock barrier, diverting the river's flow into a mile-long canyon and series of tunnels which have taken more than three years to dig.

The Aswan high dam will harness the Nile for power development, flood control and increased irrigation. A start already been made on irrigation projects which will add 1,000,000 or more acres to crop land feeding Egypt's 27,000,000 people.

The United States pledged nearly $55,000,000 in grant funds and Britain nearly $16,000,000 in the dam. But in 1956, after Nasser began buying arms from the Soviet bloc, the two Western allies cancelled their offers. Nasser nationalized the Suez Canal and later the Soviet Union agreed to lend him money and technical assistance for the dam.

Construction began in January, 1960.

'GREAT DAY FOR THE ARABS'

By RICHARD F. NEWCOMB
AP Newsfeatures Writer

As dams go, the Aswan High Dam across the Nile River is a big one, but it is not the world's largest in any important aspect.

As a symbol, however, it is a giant. Heads of nations will gather Friday at the city of Aswan, 550 miles south of Cairo. Soviet Premier Khrushchev will be there. So will Gamal Abdel Nasser, president of the United Arab Republic.

As head of the Egyptian state, he will preside at a proud moment in Arab history—completion of the First State of the Aswan High Dam. The actual work—aided by Russian money, Russian equipment and Russian engineers—has taken three years. But from conception to the important moment, it has taken decades.

Asked West First

Egypt has long dreamed of taming the Nile—world's longest river—to supply power, control floods and make the desert bloom. Nasser first asked the help of the West, mainly the United States, but then he seized the Suez Canal and the West lost interest. Nasser turned to the Soviet Union and got what he wanted—loans totaling $1.3 billion and promises of equipment and technical help. But the prime contractor was Arab, nearly all the 30,000 laborers were Arab, and the image of an Arab project, an Arab achievement, has been preserved.

Next week's ceremony will mark the completion of two cofferdams across the Nile, and the diversion of the river through a canal around them. When a blast blows out an earthen plug at the head of the canal, the turgid, brown waters of the river will gush through the canal, which already contains the foundations for a power house. The second stage, to take several years, includes construction of the main dam, and installation of power turbines and transmission lines. The third stage, to be finished by 1971, will complete all power, irrigation and navigation facilities.

The main dam will be a rock fill between the two cofferdams. It will rise 360 feet from the river bed and stretch 2½ miles at the crest, between high granite bluffs on each side of the river. It will be the 10th largest rock fill dam in the world, about half the size of the largest, Fort Peck, in Montana. But Nasser Lake, to be impounded behind it, will be the third largest manmade lake, nearly 400 miles long and stretching all the way into the Sudan. Seventy-thousand people in Egypt and Sudan—mostly Nubians—have already begun an exodus from the Nile valley to make way for the lake.

The biggest archeological conservation campaign in history is also under way, for the area to be inundated is rich with historic ruins, including Egyptian tombs, early Christian churches and a Byzantine city. Most famous of the treasures to be saved is the tomb of Ramses II at Abu Simbel. The shrine, centuries old, is marked by four figures of the pharoah, each 67 feet high, carved in a sandstone bluff overlooking the Nile. One plan is to cut the giant monument free in one piece and raise it several hundred feet on hydraulic jacks.

Flood Control

The High Dam will generate 2.1 million kilowatts of power, slightly more than Grand Coulee. But its main importance is control of the Nile waters, bringing an end to the cycle of floods and droughts, and a huge increase in arable land. Less than 4 per cent of the land in Egypt is cultivatable. The country depends on a thin green strip along the Nile for much of its food. While population has been increasing steadily (now 27 million), food growing has been standing still. The standard of living, already bitterly low, was threatened.

The High Dam will give Egypt new life. Two million new acres will come under cultivation and in many places three crops can be grown each year. In addition, the nation's electric power will triple and there will be other benefits in new industries, elimination of flood damage and lowered imports.

Militant Students Join Cuba Exile Team

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Three anti - Castro organizations that say they plan to begin guerrilla operations in Cuba soon were joined today by a militant university group.

The Cuban University Student Federation in Exile promised: "We will be present with men and arms." It expressed confidence in a secret "plan omega" outlined by the allied anti-Castro trio—Second National Front of Escambray, Alpha 66 and People's Revolutionary movement.

Havana radio belittled the exile talk.

"The only thing interesting is what the mercenaries can expect if they dare come again," said a broadcast, monitored in Miami.

Leaflets urging exiles to support armed action against Castro have started turning up in Mexico City.

They are signed by the revolutionary directorate and mention May 20, the date which has been circulated in Miami as the day for new action against Castro.

ARMED FORCES RECRUITING DOWN SHARPLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Recruiting for the armed forces has dropped off alarmingly since th publication of the government's white paper on defence in March, informed sources said Tuesday.

Figures for April recruiting will not be officially available until later this month but informants said there were extremely few applications in comparison with the 969 persons recruited in March.

Sources said the situation already has the defence department so worried that it prompted Defence Minister Hellyer to appeal for recruits in a Commons speech Friday.

Train Sabotaged

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—Authorities searched today for clues to the identity of the culprit in the apparently deliberate derailment of a Great Northern freight train. Railroad officials said they think the accident is the work of saboteurs. The FBI agreed.

Light and Shadow

UNITED STATES SPONSORS of the Kennedy Round of tariff cuts see the implementation of their plans as a major factor in the future prosperity of the Western world. The boom in international trade that could result from a substantial reduction of tariff walls would benefit every participating nation. The United States representatives at Geneva are negotiating from strength — they have at home an already thriving economy with promise of even greater development throughout this year. But at the same time the national picture presents several paradoxical elements which add unusual problems to the situation.

The United States today is a country of contrasts — of high and low areas in the economy, of rich and poor sections in the population — which pose President Johnson with one of his major domestic problems.

On the plus side, for instance, are statistics showing that the Gross National Product of the United States — the total of goods and services produced — is running at an all-time high indicating a 1964 rate of $608.5 billions. That is nearly $37 billions above the rate for the first quarter a year ago, and if continued throughout the year would produce a four-per-cent increase. The increases over the past decade have averaged three per cent.

Personal income in the United States was $1.5 billions larger in March than in February, and $27.5 billions above March of 1963. Corporate profits likewise show a substantial gain—up 33 per cent over the first quarter of last year.

It would seem that this was the land of plenty, with more to come.

Yet there are strange and stubborn exceptions to this general prosperity. Although there were 1.5 million more jobs recorded in the first quarter of this year than last, there are nearly four million persons out of work. And this is in the face of a decrease in the unemployment rate from 5.8 to 5.4 per cent. The number of jobs is increasing but not so quickly as the number of people needing them.

According to the recent survey ordered by Washington, the United States has about 30 million persons living below the poverty line, which is set at an annual family income of $3,000. There are pockets of depression in the country, such as in the Appalachian area, which are calling forth the government's full remedial efforts. Some $228 millions will be spent in this region alone as a start toward rousing it from its chronic depression.

It is apparent that national statistics do not in themselves make prosperity. A large body of the public, particularly in the rural areas, is not pulled along in the general advance but lies in backwaters and must be given special attention.

The average wealth of a community might be $100,000, and statistics could prove it. But if the real situation was that half the population had $200,000 and the other half had nothing, the average would not give an accurate picture, and a serious social problem would be hidden.

So You Kicked It

Sherbrooke Daily Record

SO you've kicked the cigarette habit. You no longer automatically reach for the pack that isn't there every time you sit down to a cup of coffee?

Brother, you're still abusing your system. Better dump that steaming cup of dark, delicious delight down the drain.

The American Heart Association reports that a long-term study of over 1,000 men who participated in a heart disease experiment indicates that coffee intake and heart disease are related. There was "a significant correlation between the use of coffee and the later discovery of coronary disease."

So stop smoking. Stop drinking coffee.

Stop eating foods high in saturated fats. Cut down your caloric intake, meaning candy, butter, potatoes—all the good things.

Better yet, stop eating entirely, for with every bite you're taking in traces of chemical pesticides which, like radioactive elements, accumulate and accumulate.

(By the way, do you REALLY know how much strontium 90 is concentrated in your bone marrow?)

Most important of all, stop breathing, because the air over your cities is simply loaded with pollutants that are corroding away your lungs and related innards like crazy.

Civilian Control for Canadian Defence

By MAURICE WESTERN

ONE of the most important points emerging from Mr. Paul Hellyer's statement of last Friday is that the minister is in process of reactivating and reorganizing the defence council. In recent years this council has met infrequently and has been able, in any case, to exercise an influence only in a limited area of defence activity.

Western

The purpose of the reorganization is to ensure effective civilian control by transforming the council into a policy-making board chaired either by the minister or by the associate minister.

While the precise membership has yet to be determined, it is apparent that Mr. Hellyer is firmly committed to the principle of a single commander-in-chief and it is therefore difficult to see how this renovated council, though an improvement on the old, will secure the minister against the dangers outlined in a recent series of articles on this page.

In Britain early in this century the plight of a civilian minister confronting a single army overlord was pointed up in the famous Esher report. The tendency was for such a minister to become the shadow of the commander-in-chief for he could scarcely reject the commander's advice without creating a deadlock in the department bound to compromise the commander's position. Moreover, the commander himself was dependent upon advice from subordinates whose views generally reflected his own.

On the other hand the minister would certainly be in a much stronger position if he was advised, not by a single commander-in-chief, but by a defence council composed in part of civilians and in part of co-equal senior officers responsible for operations, supply and administration.

Mr. Hellyer, quoting the Glassco report, recognizes the "need for a strong staff group which is essentially civilian in character, outside the framework of the armed forces."

This, he feels, will be provided through the deputy minister and his permanent staff. There is not, in his opinion, any case for altering the present legislation relating to the deputy minister because the powers of that official are amply assured under section 31 of the Interpretation Act. But Mr. Hellyer does propose changes in the organization of civilian staffs to make them more effective in reviewing programs and advising on estimates.

Until now the defence council, when it had been operative, has confined itself mainly to administrative policies in the department. As a policy board it will henceforth have the assistance of a secretariat, to be provided by the deputy minister's staff. After analysis by civil staffs, programs will be brought forward for full discussion in the defence council before they are approved.

Mr. Hellyer is, however, vague as to the composition of the council. It will include, besides himself and the associate minister (who is also a civilian), "several civil and military advisers to the minister." Presumably, however, any military advisers would be responsible to the commander-in-chief as the civilians are to the deputy minister.

"Where," asked Mr. Lambert, "is the independent yardstick to be applied by the minister of national defence?"

The intention is that the amended National Defence Act, after second reading in the House of Commons, will be sent to the special defence committee which was reconstituted on Friday.

Mr. Lambert last year was one of the few members of that committee who gave serious attention to the problems of civilian control. He will probably have better opportunities to obtain necessary clarifications in the committee than in a parliamentary debate which promises to range over the whole field of defence matters from transistors to Bomarcs.

Reshaping the Party Image

NO ONE ACCUSES MR. Harold Wilson of trusting to luck, if he can avoid it, in political affairs. And no one will consider it a matter of mere happenstance that he has adopted particular positions on important points of national policy in the creation of the Labor Party image for this year's British general election.

Mr. Joseph Harsch, writing in The Christian Science Monitor, singles out four particular stands taken by Mr. Wilson as leader of the Opposition in Westminster.

In January he stood firmly by Malaysia on cease-fire negotiations, pointing out that Indonesia had attacked the new federation's territory and that it was up to Indonesia to agree to a cease-fire.

Last month he placed his party alongside the Conservative government in debating the rearrangement of British Guiana's constitution — thereby placing impediments in the way of Dr. Cheddi Jagan's move for full control of the country.

Early this month he called for the "heaviest tanks" owned by Britain to be sent to Cyprus to break down strongpoints blocking the way to real pacification.

And more recently, in the time of high excitement over Aden, he had no criticism to offer against the government's despatch of troop reinforcements to that trouble spot.

This, suggests Mr. Harsch, is Mr. Wilson's way of changing the familiar caricature of the Labor Party, so often cartooned as a force adhering stoutly to doctrinaire and unselective decolonialization, anti-Americanism, pro-Russian positions and devotion to disarmed neutralism.

Mr. Wilson, it appears, is reshaping the party image to appeal to the uncommitted voters who swing elections, and reshaping it to convince the public that he has solid convictions covering Britain's interests in international affairs.

The Showcase

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S THIRD International Trade Fair opens today at Vancouver's Pacific National Exhibition grounds and from all accounts it will be a highly-interesting 10-day event.

While the fair is designed primarily for the businessman and to boost this province's trade with other areas of the world, the variety and scope of the exhibits will provide much that is of interest to the general public.

Altogether about $10 millions worth of products will be on display in a setting that has cost exhibitors an estimated $325,000. All the available display space was sold out weeks ago, indicating the enthusiasm which the scores of foreign government and private industry exhibitors feel for the event.

Credit for putting together what seems certain to be the biggest and best fair of its type in Western Canada goes to the provincial department of industrial development, trade and commerce which has taken the lead in sponsoring this and the two preceding trade fairs and which has been so successful in enlisting the solid support of business and industry throughout the province.

Mixing the Functions

THE DECISION NOT TO BUILD a provincial jail in the neighborhood of Parksville is a good one. This is a resort area, devoted to vacations, fishing, camping and recreation. A prison environment, even that of a medium-security institution, would not be compatible with the nature of the district.

As Mr. Bonner points out, the establishment inevitably would become known as Parksville Prison—a term bound to deter potential tourists and vacationers. And the rumored escape of an inmate at the height of the holiday season might easily clear the whole area of campers and cabin dwellers overnight.

The site of the jail should not be so near a resort area or a community that it will dominate the district or impose its climate or name on the environs.

Floating the Question

WITH THE LATEST ADDITION to the province's fleet, the ferry service of British Columbia is now reputed to be the largest of its kind in the world. The public has been well served by the Swartz Bay - Tsawwassen runs and other Gulf Island routes. It is a good service. The increase of population, the growing tourist trade and the ever-rising popularity of automobile travel combine to indicate a busy future for the ferry system.

The public is still somewhat at a loss, however, to understand the full extent of the service's current prosperity. It was to be expected that heavy initial costs would offset income for some years at least. We are told that the situation as regards operating costs and revenue is good; there is less clarity in regard to amortization of the debt.

How much is being written off at what rate? Is the taxpayer, the real owner of the ferry system, gaining or losing on the over-all operation? To what extent is the present government subsidy needed?

Few taxpayers could answer with any assurance, or support a belief with ready figures. Perhaps now, in the flush of bright new plans for extension, Mr. Bennett could present the whole ferry picture in simple, factual terms.

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

M.R.A. Donations

Now that Dr. Paul Campbell, a Moral Re-Armament official, has been quoted in your paper regarding MRA: "It is not religious. It is not political. It is ideological," I wonder whether contributions to MRA are still deductible for income tax purposes on grounds of "religious donations" as they were until recently.

Or are the income tax people just as confused about MRA as the Canadian Union of Students?

Red Cross Thanks

May I, through this medium, express gratitude to all those who assisted in the successful canvass of the Red Cross 1964 Campaign for funds—the volunteers who helped in the canvassing, the auditing and the publicity, and of course, our most hearty thanks to the many thousands who donated so generously.

This has once more confirmed the fact that the work done by the Red Cross Society in Canada, and internationally, is being appreciated.

On behalf of the Victoria City and District Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society, my sincere thanks.

Fire Chief Selection

With your permission I should like to comment on the method used to appoint a new fire chief for Saanich.

It seems to me that if the councillors, collectively, have not the nous to appoint an employee but must engage an outsider to do the job there is something rotten in the state of Denmark. They are not justified in dodging their responsibilities at the ratepayers' expense and should, I suggest, pay the outsider out of their own pockets.

Councillor Casey states that "The union already controls 99.9-10 per cent of the department now. Do they seriously want to take away the 1-10 per cent the council still has?"

I doubt whether the union wants the council's 1-10 per cent but on the other hand it does not make much sense for the council to pay someone else to take over.

Judging by results, the union members are carrying out their responsibilities efficiently; they do not find it necessary to get outsiders to do the work for which they are paid.

A. P. RAYMENT.

Seeds of Violence

The item on the front of the second section of May 9 of the Times captioned "Dog Pack Youths Hit Twice," surely indicates the serious condition that prevails in this fair city, linked up with so many other instances of snatching purses or handbags from elderly citizens unable to defend themselves.

Where should some of the blame for much of this be pinned? I would respectfully suggest the parents chiefly, and our civic authorities. For instance, little children are supplied with gangster's equipment at even three or four years of age, belts with two holsters, each containing a toy revolver, and as the child grows more complete weapons filled with springs to shoot either a jet of water or small missile. So why wonder at such crimes at more adolescent ages.

Children catch on to this type of offensive weapon, so why wonder at such warped ideas later?

As I look back to infancy, 75 to 80 odd years ago in England, a very general and acceptable toy for children those days was a "Noah's Ark" full of farmyard animals and such like, which was very entrancing to youngsters and furnished endless enjoyment.

Why our civic authorities, the police force, treat with indifference and apparent unanimity various stores selling these imitation weapons, to make an odd extra nickel or dime beats me.

Why not get busy and root such playthings for children out for good for we are deteriorating as a nation very fast these days.

CYNIC.

Quick on the Draw

If after dialogue, Leader Tommy Douglas fails to do an axe job on his deputy leader Mr. Douglas Fisher, we won't be surprised, during one of these up and coming, hot and humid weekends, if the deputy, Fisher, takes it into his head to go berserk, in a literary manner, via the medium of his cross-country columns, in an effort to blast his own Right and Left NDP party right out of the House of Commons.

Even in this age of political automation it is still he who draws first—has the best chance: hence, any political sophisticate who carries his tomahawk hanging nattily from his belt in a zipped, or unbuttoned, pearl-studded tomahawk sheath—could find himself losing valuable split seconds trying to get the thing out—leading to the dubious pleasure of being the first to say—Et Tu Brute!!

Unexpected Vistas of Misunderstanding for the Future

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

ALTHOUGH the coffers are almost empty, and millions of undernourished peasants have been "commanded" to "eat maize to crush Malaysia," President Sukarno is still ordering costly white elephant projects in Indonesia. The latest contracts provide for Japanese firms to build a 29-storey "tourist centre" in the capital, two more luxury hotels, and a television network for all Java and Bali. A new commercial airport runway in Bali is to be constructed stretching out to sea, instead of along the flat foreshore.

Djakarta has also offered to place orders for four more torpedo boats and 10 landing-craft in Japan at the cost of $28,000,000, has five more landing craft building in Macao, and in mid-April took delivery of six newly-commissioned Russian warships.

Meanwhile Indonesia's food deficit increases yearly, and in 1964 she will buy nearly 1,300,000 tons of rice abroad. This does not deter a senior official from announcing confidently that the government has plans for making the country self-sufficient by 1966, "when the $110,000,000 now spent on rice purchases will be devoted to national development."

It must be admitted that the Indonesians have distinctive and ingenious ways of raising funds. Recently a dish from Sukarno's table was auctioned for 55,000,000 rupiahs — $180,000 at the most favourable rate of exchange. The money was squandered on a film festival. There was never any danger that it would be usefully employed.

On a larger scale, a government-controlled consultative body for business and industrial interests is now exacting the equivalent of $300,000,000 from private companies — in the serious belief that this levy can be used to stimulate production. Double standards closely follow doublethink. The Foreign Minister of a Republic in which all democratic procedure has been systematically suppressed, Dr. Subandrio, protests that in "neocolonialist" Malaysia "democratic procedures should be enforced."

At the same time, Malaysian wishes are dismissed with a fine disdain. Asked about the prospects for a summit conference of President Sukarno, President Macapagal of the Philippines and Tengku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia to settle the current dispute between the two countries peacefully, Dr. Subandrio replied last week that Sukarno felt this was up to Indonesia only, "not up to the Tengku" at all. But it would be quite easy for Malaysia to be friends with Indonesia if she so wanted, Sukarno had said earlier. Malaysia simply had to refrain from "doing anything that the Indonesians do not like."

The President can also exploit the convenient belief of the Indonesian millions that affairs in the outside world are conducted with the same inefficiency that characterizes the administration in their own country. He tells the public, for example, that the United Nations inquiry into the popular attitude in the North Borneo States towards the project for Malaysia was carried out "under the bayonets and bullets" of the British, although the UN team reported no such phenomenon to U Thant.

Similarly, since the Malaysian government has exposed the subversion and sabotage operations mounted from the Indonesian Rhio Islands against Singapore, Djakarta has now announced that "50 beautiful women spies" from Malaysia have been arrested in the islands—a setting for big city sin that may fairly be compared with the Shetlands.

The Indonesian leaders are Muslim, and Mohammed said: "God hath not created anything better than Reason, or anything more perfect, or more beautiful than Reason . . ." I put this to a Javanese. "Exactly," he said. "And I wish more of you Westerners would understand that."

It was a remark that opened up new, unexpected vistas of misunderstanding for the future.

ON THE TIMES — By ART STOTT

Goodbye to a Younger Brother

Stott

"CAPPY" THORSEN came to the end of a long and rocky road yesterday morning, and we who are older members of the Times feel that we have lost our young brother.

He hadn't been with us in recent years—years that were wracked by uncertain or bad health extending back to wounds in the Italian campaign. But to those of the old Times family, he was still one of us, one of the last of the boys Ben Nicholas brought into the newsroom on Fort Street and adopted into the fraternity of his foster-sons.

He owned our affection, taught us small lessons in modesty, friendliness and generosity. For us he was an example of that quiet courage that musters a slow smile and an inner resolution when things are tough.

"Cappy" came up the hard way. He entered the newsroom a boy in a sweater too large for him, shy, confused, with his own resources only to carry him. Contact with strangers was, at first, an agony to him. Gradually he came to know that he was among friends and the personality that lay dormant in a tow-headed kid began to blossom.

At full flowering it made him one of the best-liked members of the news staff as he progressed from office boy's chores up through sport to the police beat.

In a smaller Victoria he left an impression on all groups with whom he worked. If you were "Cappy's" friend, you possessed a key to consideration among the outdoorsmen and a varied host.

Life, which had not been easy to him as a kid, had given him a compensating character of sympathy. Because he worked hard for what he got, he had compassion and understanding for others.

With it went a loyalty to the old Times that was abiding.

You found his friends in many places. On the police beat he enjoyed the confidence and regard of men from the chief to the newest rookie. "Joker" Patton's yacht was his for the asking—and he asked to take his friends fishing and cruising. He could call on Archie McKinnon for favors for others, seldom for himself. To him, the Bissells were almost his family, Mom and Pop and Claude and Daryl.

When war started, "Cap" left early with the Scottish and later joined the Seaforths. With them he was the good soldier, returning to combat after wounds.

He wrote for us from Europe—penetrating pieces that brought home the human side of battle, the emotions of men under fire, the reactions of soldiers who, through his pen, became the boy next door.

When he returned to Victoria he carried with him the metal of an exploding shell and the persistent periods of bad health that his injuries had induced. But that could not dampen his cheerfulness and did not impede his close interest in the affairs of friends.

We who knew him well were cheered by the happiness a family of his own brought him—the pride he showed in his children, the concern he expressed for good things of Victoria when they were under attack.

Now we miss him, wishing that we had been able to do something more for him in the days of recurrent illness that wore down his rugged physical strength, sorry that in recent years we saw less of him than we might have.

We remember him now, a boy with a slow smile, always ready to go the extra mile, happy in the company of so many friends, the youngster who came to us christened Roy and who almost immediately became our "Cappy," the name Ben gave to him and which most Victorians knew.

YOUR HEALTH — By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

What Makes Good Doctor?

Alvarez

Some years ago a study was made in a university to show whether great success as an engineer was well correlated with the excellence of the man's marks when he was in college. It was found that there was no such correlation. What gave a man great success in engineering seemed often to be his ability to go before a board of directors and sell them on the idea of building a great tunnel, or a great bridge, a great building, or a great dam. In some cases, a man's success was due to his ability to direct the activities of a large group of men.

Now a study made in Utah shows much the same thing about physicians. According to the report the grades that a student received in medical school bear little relationship to his success later as a physician.

I'll never forget my disappointment when my father, who was a wise old physician, did not get at all excited when I came home from my freshman year at medical school with a good report card. He said, "That doesn't mean anything; the most brilliant man in my class at medical college never could get a practice, and wound up selling books from door to door!"

When I asked my father what then did help a man to become a fine physician, or a physician with a large practice, he said this depended on the man's character; often on his honesty and integrity; on his ability to get along well with people; his ability to like people, his ability to impress them well, his ability to give them hope and comfort and cheer, and his ability and willingness to work very hard for perhaps 18 hours a day.

I think I was one of the first teachers of medicine to put into my books for students and physicians chapters not only on what drugs to give people, but on how to handle people; how to get along with them; and how to be kind and considerate with them. To show what I mean: one of my friends, years ago before he died, was a great children's specialist.

One evening when I was a guest in his home, I discovered that, around 10:30, before he went to bed, he called up on the phone half a dozen mothers of very sick children to find out how the little patients were, and, when possible, to give a word of comfort and cheer and hope. We can well imagine what that meant to those mothers—to know that he cared. No wonder he had a bigger practice than he could handle alone. People loved him, and he loved people.

I have known another type of physician who was so impersonal in his behavior with patients that he hardly bothered to say good day when he came into their room in the hospital; or to say goodbye as he walked out. He wondered why he never could get much of a practice.

HOME GARDEN — By JACK BEASTALL

These Are Plants You Can't Buy

Jack

With forget-me-nots and wallflowers in full bloom, and Canterbury-bells and the "money-plant" (lunaria) not far behind, we find many gardeners wanting to buy these plants now.

It is something that cannot be done, for all of them are biennials or plants which make their growth one year and blossom the next year, then die.

The fact that some colors of wallflowers will persist in our climate for more than the two seasons does not change matters. All colors will not persist and treating them as biennials is the only way to assure a good showing every year.

Where these plants are desired for next spring, together with hollyhocks and sweet william, seed must be sown before the end of May or the plants purchased and planted by the end of September.

MAKE SEED BED

Gardeners with facilities for growing their own plants should procure the seed as soon as possible and get a suitable seed bed prepared outdoors.

Those intending to buy plants would be well-advised to make their requirements known to their grower or nurseryman. Not all growers handle biennials because so few gardeners buy at the right time and surplus plants are lost. Others grow to order.

Plants treated as biennials here are wallflowers, forget-me-nots (myosotis), lunaria (honesty or money plant), sweet william (Dianthus barbatus), hollyhock (althea), foxglove (digitalis; the Excelsior hybrids with flowers all around the stems), Canterbury bells (Campanula medium, the cup and saucer campanula), and some forms of dianthus (pinks) which tend to die out after a year or two.

TOO LATE?

Goldwater Waking Up GOP Moderates

By BARRIE MARTLAND
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Moderate Republicans are becoming increasingly concerned that Senator Barry Goldwater, despite his arch-conservative politics, will be the Republican party's candidate for the U.S. presidency.

The handsome senator from Arizona seems to have, like young Lochinvar, ridden in from the West and got away with the goods.

The goods in this case being more real and potential votes from delegates to the national convention in San Francisco this July than any other candidate now in the field.

The latest Associated Press survey shows that of 701 delegates now chosen 266 will vote for Goldwater in the first ballot. Other surveys more than double the AP figures but include probable votes. To win he needs 655 of the possible 1,308.

Goldwater, whose political philosophy puts him in opposition to U.S. participation in the United Nations, the partial nuclear-test ban treaty and social security, gained his votes through state conventions and primaries.

MODERATES SPLIT

Since announcing his intentions earlier this year he has criss-crossed the country piling up votes while more moderate Republicans, unable to unite behind a challenger, have done little but stand in the wings and jeer.

They now seem to have awakened to the threat but it may be too late.

Like Goldwater, who according to public opinion polls has little popular support, potential moderate candidates have their disadvantages. But Goldwater has the votes, the others only disadvantages. They include:

New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller (divorced and remarried); Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge (in South Viet Nam and a late starter); former Minnesota governor Harold Stassen (an habitual loser); former vice-president Richard Nixon (he lost once before and this time has his mouth but not his hat in the ring); Maine Senator Margaret Chase Smith (a woman), and Pennsylvania Governor William Scranton (awaiting a call from "the people").

Goldwater's crucial test will come June 2 when California Republicans will indicate in their primary how they want their 86 delegates to vote. A win could swing him up to the magical 655 mark, a loss could wither his potential strength away.

LODGE TOO LATE

It is generally conceded Goldwater will not get Oregon's 18 delegates this Friday. Political observers believe these will go to Lodge, but they may come too late to do him much good.

Lodge is not entered in the California primary and a Goldwater win against Rockefeller, who is, could induce the holdouts in other states to capitulate and flock to the Goldwater camp.

Close Win In Nebraska

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Barry Goldwater was the top vote-getter in Tuesday's Nebraska Republican presidential preference primary, where he was the only candidate listed. But he ran into a strong tide of write-in votes for former vice-president Richard M. Nixon and others.

The Arizona senator was barely scoring the majority of votes his supporters had predicted before the election. He had just about 50 per cent of the vote while Nixon—who in 1960 had the presidential nomination which Goldwater seeks this year—had about 31 per cent.

While Goldwater was winning in Nebraska, his major announced rival for the nomination, Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, polled a sizable vote in the uncontested West Virginia preference primary.

SPORTS DIARY

By SHIRLEY POVICH
(The Washington Post)

WASHINGTON—At this point of the racing calendar a year ago, the Derby had been run, the Preakness was coming up and an inspired sportswriter, who shall remain nameless, delivered himself of a devastating Phillipic.

He wrote that the Preakness wouldn't be much of a race, just a warmed-over Kentucky Derby and hadn't Chateaugay run away from Candy Spots at Louisville and now what were they trying to prove at Baltimore?

So Candy Spots won the Preakness and Chateaugay finished up the track and, something indeed had been proved. Basically it was proof that a horse race is never over until they go around the track, and that in horse racing a positive mind is the playground of the fools.

Anyway, the Preakness is coming up again, and again it is the rematch of the big colts who battled it out in the preceding Derby. Northern Dancer who stuck it out by a neck to beat Hill Rise may be expected to do so again. It could happen, but not necessarily so, and this is the difference of opinion that makes racing thrive at the mutuel windows.

Hill Rise, Big, Bold and Beautiful

Rarely has a Preakness or any other classic race come up with such personality facets as Saturday's contest. The colts themselves, Northern Dancer and Hill Rise, are contrasting equine types and their riders, Willie Hartack and Willie Shoemaker, couldn't be more different in nature and riding styles if they were born worlds apart.

Hill Rise is the big, beautiful, long-striding colt that might have come out of an old English racing print. Northern Dancer is the smallish, compact thing that might have come out of a cowpoke's corral. The speed of both of these is undisputed. Going into the Derby Hill Rise had won eight in a row, mostly staying on the front end. Northern Dancer had won five straight, mostly by laying off the pace.

Both colts proved their heart in the Derby. Northern Dancer wasn't quitting in the stretch despite being under pressure of the fastest last quarter in Derby history. Hill Rise, under Shoemaker, unloaded an amazing sub-24-second final quarter after being taken on a continual end run to the outside of the field under a perhaps overconfident ride.

Hartack Can Out-Think Most Riders

Hartack is unpopular with the race writing set and Shoemaker is their darling.

This is understandable. Hartack is often sour and short with writers and once he opened a post-Derby press conference with "Let's not have any stupid questions." Shoemaker is available and cooperative at all times. Hartack's riding style is flubby and bouncing. Shoemaker has the smooth, classic seat.

Hartack can out-think most riders, including Shoemaker, and he won the Derby by saving ground on the rail and making the right move at the right time, in the backstretch. He out-rode Shoemaker that day. He held Northern Dancer together magnificently at Louisville to preserve the neck remnants of what had been a two-length lead.

The Preakness promises to be a more truly run race with its smaller field of six, free of the traffic jams that trapped both Hill Rise and Quadrangle in unfavorable positions on the outside of the field. The Scoundrel, which blocked Shoemaker's passage with Hill Rise rounding the last turn, is in Saturday's field but with only six going, the jam should be less, if any.

Dancer Was Holding Own at Finish

Rider tactics will be closely watched Saturday with Shoemaker now aware that he must stay close to the leaders in the early running. Especially if they include Hartack and Northern Dancer. Also the Pimlico race offers sharper turns and a sixteenth of a mile less distance. Hill Rise has the speed to stay with anything.

It appeared at Louisville that Hill Rise would catch Northern Dancer in the final strides after eating up most of the two lengths between them. But the films showed what a chart caller in the pressbox has maintained—that Hill Rise wasn't gaining in those last few strides.

"I had a great rooting interest in the race," he said. "A $50 win bet on Hill Rise. In that finish, I was hunching just as hard as Shoemaker and helping him to ride Hill Rise. Believe me, I was riding as hard as I could and we weren't gaining an inch at the finish. That little colt in front was throwing a big, wonderful race at us."

KEN SCOTLAND

Rugged and Rollicking, Scots Serious Tonight

Members of the touring Scottish Rugy Union side impressed Victorians as a fun-loving bunch of athletes as they attended a reception at the Canadian Scottish mess Tuesday night, but nobody expects them to be anything but dead serious tonight at Macdonald Park.

Playing their second match of a five-game Canadian tour, the Scots clash with the British Columbia All-Stars at 6:30.

If there were any suspicions that the tourists might take their rugby chores lightly during the trans-Canada safari, they should have been erased at Toronto Monday night. The Scots outclassed a combined Ontario universities' team but kept throwing their big punches and wound up with a 75-0 triumph.

TOUGHER TASK

Competition is expected to be much tougher tonight but the athletes from the land of the thistle are favored to trim the B.C. side by a solid margin.

The Scots will have an advantage in weight and a big edge in experience. They will also have the pride owned by amateur athletes who have attained international standing.

Fifteen of the 23-man Scottish contingent have earned caps for international appearances for Scotland and a good number of them are slated for action tonight.

BRUCE MOST CAPPED

The most capped man in the party is Norman Bruce, the great 31-year-old hooker of London Scottish, who is now Scotland's record-holder in his specialized position. An army officer who is being posted to Sarawak next month, Bruce has made 31 appearances in a Scottish jersey.

Another standout with the tourists is fullback Ken Scotland, one of the great all-rounders of Scottish rugby history. The 160-pound Aberdeenshire ace has played most backfield positions for his country and has now earned a total of 26 caps.

SOLLO IS RUGGED

Also high in the cap department are veterans like David Rollo, a rugged forward; and fleet backfielder G. D. Stevenson, who have each made 23 international appearances.

Manager C. W. Drummond is promising a wide-open game tonight. He wants his crew to throw the ball around and make use of their speed and mobility to offset expected hard-tackling from the B.C. squad.

But one has to suspect that the Scots won't be giving a thing away when it comes to rugged tackling. They look like a aggregation that can handle any rough going on a rugby pitch.

'Impossible" Frisco Pair Mauling National Loop

Mays Batting at .478 Clip; Marichal En Route to 30?

Canadian Press

It's rough enough to cope with either Willie Mays or Juan Marichal by himself. But when San Francisco Giants' torrid twosome get together its's downright impossible.

Mays and Marichal persecuted Houston Colts Tuesday night as the Giants breezed to a 6-0 victory. It was Marichal's sixth victory in as many decisions, trimming his earned-run average to 1.73, and his second straight shutout.

Mays, who leads the National League in practically everything offensively, ran his average to an astronomical .478 with his 12th and 13th homers and a single in five trips, driving in four runs.

In the seven games Marichal has started, Mays had 18 hits in 28 at bats with seven home runs, 16 runs batted in and a .643 average.

It is also a fact that Mays would have to go hitless in his next 53 at bats for his average to drop to a mortal .301. And, by the time Mays gets 53 more swings, how many National Leaguers will still be hitting .301?

As for Marichal, the veteran right hander who won 25 games last year is 12 days ahead of the pace he set in 1963 when he didn't win his sixth game until May 24. And the seasons started a week later this year.

DEAN LAST TO WIN 30

For the record the last .400 hitter was Ted Williams in 1941 with .406. The last 30-game winner was Dizzy Dean in 1934 with 30-7. Modern baseball has never had a .400 hitter and 30-game winner on the same club.

In other NL games Tuesday, Milwaukee Braves blanked New York Mets 2-0 on Hank Fischer's three-hitter; Pittsburgh Pirates nipped Cincinnati Reds 3-2 in a four hour, rain-interrupted marathon; St. Louis Cardinals topped Philadelphia Phillies 4-2 behind Curt Simmons; and Chicago Cubs nipped Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 on Dick Tracewski's ninth-inning error.

Mays' three hits extended his batting streak to 19 games. After flying out in the first inning he battered Houston starter Skinny Brown for a solo homer in the third and a two-run shot in the fifth. His seventh-inning single also drove in a run.

Marichal allowed just five hits and retired 14 in a row over one stretch while winning his 12th straight over a two-season stretch.

SIMMONS DUMPS PHILS

Milwaukee's Fischer faced just 29 batters and got all the runs he needed when rookie Rico Carty crashed his first major league homer against Met starter Al Jackson.

Curt Simmons beat the Phillies for the 13th time in 15 decisions since they released him four years ago but needed eighth-inning help from Roger Craig to do it.

Leading 4-1, Simmons gave up a single to Tony Gonzalez and Danny Carter with one out in the eighth. Craig came on and after Gus Triandos' double delivered one run, the lanky Cardinal retired the side and blanked the Psils in tse ninth.

In the American League, Detroit Tigers spoiled Yogi Berra's 39th birthday party by slapping his New York Yankees 7-2, Cleveland edged Boston 6-5, Baltimore blanked Washington 5-0, Minnesota drubbed Chicago 11-1 and Kansas City scuttled Los Angeles 6-2.

TO HIT .400

Willie Faces 400-1 Odds

NEW YORK (AP)—The odds against Willie Mays hitting .400 this year are about 400 to 1 but it is surprising how many knowledgeable baseball people think San Francisco Giants' superb centre fielder may accomplish the seemingly impossible.

Ted Williams, the last major leaguer to reach that magic pinnacle, has always maintained the .400 figure will be reached again. In a recent interview he picked Mays, Henry Aaron, Al Kaline and Mickey Mantle as those capable of doing it.

"The fellow who hits .400 must get off to a blazing start," said Williams, who batted .406 with Boston Red Sox in 1941. "Then he must avoid a long batting slump.

"He must get the breaks and he must have speed afoot. You've got to get your share of infield hits to keep that average up.

"The year I batted .388 (1957), I didn't get a single leg hit. If I had been able to beat out six infield hits, I would have hit .400 again."

NONE STARTED AS WELL

Not even Williams in his .406 season got off to such a flying start as Mays this season. After his first 20 games in 1941, Williams was hitting .375. Willie, for the same period, was more than 100 points higher.

Stan Musial, perhaps the greatest of all National League hitters, thinks Mays has a chance.

"Common sense tells you that nobody, no matter how great a hitter he is, will hit .400 in this day and age," said Musial, whose highest average was .376 in 1948. "But if anybody can do it, Mays is the man."

"Willie is an extraordinary streak hitter and, who knows, he might just streak right through the season."

One of the least surprised by Mays' remarkable early season hitting is Jackie Robinson, a National League batting champ with .342 in 1949.

"A fellow asked me last winter about Mays and I told him that, in my opinion, Willie had not yet reached his peak," said the former Brooklyn Dodger star. "I've always felt that Mays had the qualifications to be the next .400 hitter."

HITS SCORCHING .478

Mays' bat literally has been aflame since opening day. Through the first month of the campaign Wondrous Willie hit a scorching .478. He has hit safely in all but one of his 22 games and through Tuesday's game he had connected safely at least once in 19 consecutive games.

Mays has had good starts before but never like this. Two years ago, he had four home runs in his first seven games. But this year 13 of his first 42 hits were home runs.

When Roger Maris of New York Yankees hit his record 61 home runs in 1961, he did not get No. 13 until his club's 43rd game. Babe Ruth hit his 13th homer in his 39th game when he set the record of 60 in a 154-game season in 1927.

Hemming Scores Second Victory

Victoria lefthander George Hemming, pitching for Shelby Yanks in the class "A" West Carolina League, won his second straight game last week.

Hemming, a graduate of city minor ranks now the property of New York Yankees, threw a four-hitter and struck out 13.

Word From Coach Brings Avalanche Of Scholarships

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two high school football prospects have been offered scholarships by several major United States colleges.

Rick McHale and Roy Borthwick, standouts at the professional B.C. Lions' annual development camp for young players last month, were recommended to the universities by Lions' coach Dave Skrien.

McHale, a 17-year-old, 195-pound tackle, has received offers from the universities of Washington, Oregon, California, Washington State, Arizona, Utah, Arizona and Colorado.

Longshot Figures To Set Fast Pace

BALTIMORE (AP)—Big Pete will be the outsider Saturday when six three-year-old horses take off for a 1 3-16-mile trip around Pimlico in the 88th running of the $150,000 - added Preakness.

But the star of Mrs. Harriet N. Ball's stable of Falls Church, Va., probably will play an important role before the garland of black-eyed susans is thrown over the winner.

Until trainer Bernie Bonn announced Tuesday that he definitely would be on hand Thursday morning to pay the $1,000 entry fee on Big Pete, there was some question whether the horses would walk or run the first part of the journey. No trainer wanted to commit his horse to making the early pace and setting up another possible stretch duel between Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor's Kentucky Derby winner Northern Dancer and runner-up Hill Rise.

QUICK STARTER

Bond declined to say whether the son of Degage-Judiciously would set the early pace. Not only his breeding but his 10 races, of which he has won seven, indicate that Big Pete runs best by getting out in front and hanging on as long as possible.

Bond doesn't favor racing Big Pete against the Derby's first five finishers as Northern Dancer, Hill Rise, The Scoundrel, Roman Brother and Quadrangel—but said he was acting on instructions of the colt's owner.

"I don't know if he is ready for the big ones," said Bond. "After all he never had been more than six furlongs until last Saturday's Preakness prep and he was laid up for five months with a fissure of the pastern in his right foreleg." Big Pete was beaten two lengths by Knightly Manner in the 1 1-16 miles of the prep.

Despite the Dancer's neck victory in the Derby, the Primlico program selector has made Hill Rise the 7-to-5 choice with Northern Dancer the second choice at 2 to 1. That was the way they were rated in the Derby. The Scoundrel was quoted at 4 to 1 today, Roman Brother and Quadrangle to 8 to 1 and Big Pete at 20 to 1.

Curling Fees Raised By Ontario Executive

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario curlers will have to dig into their pockets for another half a rock next season.

Delegates to the annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association decided Tuesday to increase the annual fee of its 35,791 members to $1 per member from 50 cents.

Leon Sykes, secretary-treasurer of the association, reported an expenditure last season of $33,000—a deficit of $2,400.

Gordon Jones, chairman of the finance committee, who proposed the increase in membership dues, said it would put the association "on a healthy financial basis."

A $2 fee for each of the 305 clubs associated with the OCA will still be in effect and a fee of 25 cents for each of the 2,891 junior and schoolboy curlers will also remain the same.

VIC HIGH MEET

Marjorki Cracks Shot Put Record

Victoria High School athletes were scheduled to wrap up field competition today and their inter-house track and field meet concludes Thursday.

Track events will dominate Thursday's program.

Steve Majorki emerged as standout performer Tuesday with a record effort in the junior boys' shot put. Majorki, setting the third record of the meet, cracked a mark he established earlier with a toss of 41 feet, eight inches.

The fine toss was two and a half feet better than the previous best.

With 12 events completed, House IV leads team competition with 46½ points. House II follows with 37½, trailed, in turn, by House III (35½) and House I (33½).

Tuesday's results:

UNIVERSITY PLANS TO SPEND . . . . . $250,000 IN 15 YEARS

Are Athletes Born or Are They Made?

SASKATOON (CP) — The University of Saskatchewan plans to spend $250,000 and 15 years to discover whether athletes are born or made.

The university says preliminary studies had been carried out during the past two years under grants from the National Fitness and Amateur Sport Council. The council now had provided $19,000 to begin the main investigation.

Dr. W. A. R. Orban, director of the university's school of physical education, said the study could answer the question: "Is a good athlete born or made?"

"We need to study children before the various factors that might promote or limit athletic ability become apparent, and then, as they become evident, follow through and relate them to the child's growth and development until age 19 or 20, when the degree of interest or ability in certain sports has been demonstrated."

Dr. Orban said: "If we can discover how to create an interest in a certain area at an early age, we can help youngsters develop athletic capacities."

In the university study, 216 boys in Grade 1 at Saskatoon schools will be given a battery of tests each year until they reach the age of 19 or 20.

The department of sociology at the university says it has devised a method of selecting the youngsters so that a sufficient number representative of a cross-section of the population will remain in Saskatoon until the project is completed.

The yearly tests will measure height, weight, chest expansion, the width of the shoulders and hips and the girth of the ankles; agility, power, balance, reaction time and speed of movement.

Strength of the trunk, legs and arms will be measured along with heart and breathing rates, oxygen intake and other respiratory functions.

Psychological testing will provide the researchers with a personality and behavior rating of each child plus a record of his participation in sports during the preceding year.

Ghana Organ Urges African Ring Union

ACCRA, Ghana (AP)—The Ghanaian Times, organ of the government party, Tuesday called for an African boxing union as an aftermath to the controversial Floyd Robertson-Sugar Ramos featherweight championship fight here Saturday.

Ring officials awarded Ramos a split decision after the 15-round bout Saturday but the Ghana Boxing Authority later reversed the decision and declared Robertson the new champion. The two judges, Ed Lassman of Miami, Fla., president of the World Boxing Association, and Ramon Velazquez of Mexico, favored Ramos. The British referee, Jack Hart, voted for Robertson.

The Ghanaian Times called Lassman and Velazquez "bogus judges who spearheaded the conspiracy to rob Ghana of her first world title."

The paper said an African union was needed to "represent the interests of African boxers in the world boxing councils."

OERTER WANTS THIRD GOLD MEDAL

Discus King's Reward —Instant Anonymity

By HARRY GRAYSON

BETHPAGE, N.Y. (NEA) — Wearing a windbreaker in blustery weather, Alfred Oerter broke his own world record in the discus with a throw of 206 feet 5¾ inches into the wind at the Mt. San Antonio Relays in Walnut, Calif.

Al Oerter has twice won gold medals in the Olympic Games with 184-10½ in Melbourne in 1956 and 194-2 in Rome in 1960. If the Kansas alumnus prevails in Tokyo in October he will be the first American to win an Olympic field event three times in a row since John J. Flanagan, a New York policeman, captured the hammer throw in 1900-04-08.

If Oerter represented any country other than the United States he would be a national idol as Valery Brumel, the high jumper, is in the Soviet Union.

But Oerter hardly gets instant recognition outside of his home in Babylon, Long Island, and in Plant 30 of the Grumman Aircraft and Engineering Corporation's sprawling installation at Bethpage, where he is a system analyst.

Al Shrugs It Off

Oerter, a handsome, blue-eyed crewcut, doesn't look his 6 feet 4 and 260 pounds in street clothes. He shrugs off his anonymity in his native land.

"The lack of interest in track and field in this country, outside of California, is indicative of the direction in which we have moved," Oerter said, thoughtfully. "The athletic ability of an individual once figured in his social standing. Now the only concern of most superior athletes is how much money they can make.

"I can't make a penny throwing the discus, but it is something I enjoy and I have a goal. I want a third Olympic gold medal and I believe I can do as much as 217 feet this year or next.

"My fan mail shows how sorely neglected and grossly underpublicized track and field is in this country. I get from 20 to 30 letters a week and only one of 10 is from an American."

Ton of Dedication

It takes a long ton of dedication for a fellow to stay in condition for three Olympics through a 12-year stretch. Oerter works five days a week from 7:30 until 4. He trains from 2½ to 3 hours daily. He does deep knee bends with 400-pound weights, prone presses 350 pounds, runs and throws the 4.4-pound disk.

Oerter didn't compete much last year because he slipped a disk, spinal variety. A pinched nerve severely injured muscles in his left shoulder. There is scar tissue there and Oerter still takes diathermy treatments and has it shot with cortisone.

"I have been throwing the discus for 12 years," said Oerter, "and learn something new each season. I get a little more leverage and dynamic or moving balance."

Good Ball Prospect

Oerter played football for two autumns at Eewanhaka High of Floral Park, Long Island.

"I might have been a good pitcher in baseball," he reflected. "I could throw hard. I might have done well in college and professional football, but the individuality of the discus got me.

"In ancient Greece the greatest athlete was the discus-throwing champion, you know. The original Olympic statue was of a discus thrower. It is the Discobolus by Myron and stands in the Louvre. Now you see it in beer ads."

DEPTH IN GOAL

Westminster Rookie Stars

VANCOUVER — New Westminster's Inter-City Lacrosse League problems, it would seem, are few and far between.

Westminster's potent offensive punch was plainly evident in the team's first four starts. Start No. 5 showed the team has depth in goal.

With rookie Joe Comeau making a brilliant debut in goal, Westminster rolled to its fifth straight victory Tuesday night by defeating Vancouver, the ICLL's defending champions, 12-5 before about 1,500 fans.

AHEAD THROUGHOUT

New Westminster led 2-1 at the end of the first period and had a 6-1 edge at the half. It was 9-2 for New Westminster at the end of three periods.

Jack Bionda, Paul Parnell and Bill Wilkes took care of almost all the New Westminster scoring. Bionda scored four goals and added three assists, Parnell had three goals and four assists and Wilkes had three goals. The other two New Westminster goals were scored by Ron Flatten and Cliff Sepka.

SUB GOALIE

Comeau, who made a sensational debut in the New Westminster net while taking over from Les Norman who was sitting out a one-game suspension, held Vancouver to only a single goal in the first half of play. He was particularly brilliant on screened shots. Altogether Comeau stopped 33 shots while Norm Nestman handled 32 at the other end.

A total of 40 minutes in penalties was called during the game, 21 minutes of them to Vancouver. New Westminster's Marty Jordan and Vancouver's Surinak each got a major penalty for fighting in the second period.

Second-Round KO

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Billy Walker avenged a March loss to Bill Nielsen by knocking out the wild-swinging heavyweight from Omaha, Neb., in the second round of a scheduled 10-round fight at the indoor Wembley Stadium Tuesday.

Bill Walton Picks Up Monthly Fishing Prize

Bill Walton Sr. was the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association's man-of-the-month for April.

Juniors Set Sights On City Golf Crown

The city junior golf tournament is less than three weeks away and that means it's time for young divoters to get their games tuned up.

Gary Smith, bidding to become the first four-time winner of the junior crown, is the early favorite for the 36-hole scramble at Gorge Vale. But the defending champion is currently having troubles on the fairways and the May 31 race for the title could turn out to be a wide-open affair.

This time, Smith won't have to battle Noel Pumfrey, one of his toughest rivals in recent seasons, but there are other capable young challengers eager to dethrone the champ.

Pumfrey, runnerup in the Canadian junior final last year, has graduated from junior ranks and Smith's main threats could come from a pair of Victoria Golf Club swingers, Don Wilson and Jay Wilson.

There will be more than a title at stake on May 31. Juniors who perform impressively in the city and provincial tourneys will be considered for the B.C. junior team. The four-player B.C. squad will travel to Prince Edward Island for the annual interprovincial team match and Canadian tournament.

Premier Displays Interest in Rink

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver mayor William Rathie said Tuesday even Premier Bennett is enthusiastic about a proposal to build an $8,000,000 downtown coliseum here.

Stafford Smythe, president of the Toronto Maple Leafs, has offered to build a 20,000-seat coliseum if the city will donate the land.

Mayor Rathie said the premier expressed enthusiasm for the project during a conversation.

Mayor Rathie said he discussed the offer by telephone with Smythe Tuesday. The offer seemed to be "a real business-like deal," and Smythe will fly west for further discussions in two weeks, he said.

"We certainly have a lot of scope for negotiations with the project's Toronto backers," the mayor told a city council meeting. "Under this deal the city's problem is vastly simplified. The economic feasibility is off our shoulders . . . that will be up to the builders," he said.

Earlier Tuesday, Smythe rejected an offer of a free tract of land in suburban Burnaby for the coliseum.

"Arenas depend for 10 per cent of their support from transients living in hotels, and a $6 taxi ride is no good to them," he said.

Smythe for Vancouver But Burnaby Is Dead

TORONTO (UPI)—Toronto Maple Leafs' president Stafford Smythe says he is willing to take an $8 million gamble on National Hockey League expansion as soon as Vancouver city officials give him the green light.

Smythe said Tuesday he would "be out there on the next plane if Vancouver officials agreed to provide him with $2 million worth of free downtown land so he can build a 20,000 seat, $8 million coliseum in the city.

The Leaf president, at the same time, all but rejected a proposal from the Vancouver suburb of Burnaby offering a 99-year lease on land if the Leafs would build an arena there.

Smythe told UPI he had talked with Vancouver Mayor William Rathie who had expressed a willingness "to cut red tape to speed up matters."

"I told him not to be stampeded," Smythe said. "I told him to take a week to talk to his people and see if he can get the support of his city council. If he does, I'll be out there on the next plane."

Smythe said he was skeptical of the feasibility of the Burnaby offer because of its distance from downtown Vancouver, although he was willing to listen to the city's proposals.

'I'm Strictly a Downtown Man'

"But I'm strictly a downtown man," Smythe added, "and unless he has reasons I haven't considered I would have to say I'm skeptical about building out there. I would have to be quite impressed by his proposals to change my mind."

Smythe said he felt a new arena in Vancouver was necessary if the NHL ever was to expand. He said he realized he could "be voted down forever by the other NHL owners and be stuck with an arena housing only minor league hockey, but I'm willing to gamble."

Discussing expansion further, he said statements by league president Clarence Campbell that the owners were not considering increasing the size of the league in the immediate future were "completely correct."

(Campbell said the league was not presently studying expansion and it was not even on the agenda for the annual meeting opening in Montreal June 8).

Smythe said he was speaking entirely on his own when he mentioned "expansion" at the Western Hockey League's annual meeting in Seattle last weekend.

But a building to replace Vancouver's dilapidated 5,000 seat arena was necessary before expansion could be undertaken, he said.

Smythe rejected claims he and Gardens vice-president Harold Ballard differed on their concepts of an expanded league. Smythe had envisaged another six-team division while Ballard spoke of the present league absorbing Los Angeles, Vancouver, San Francisco and possibly St. Louis.

"There are no discrepancies between our statements at all," Smythe said. "There would have to be two divisions if the league were increased so we're talking about the same thing.".

"The only difference was that he (Ballard) saw four more teams and I saw six."

'Fringe Benefits' Lure Pancho Into Comeback

PANCHO GONZALES

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—There is an adage in sports that they never come back and the feeling in pro tennis is that Richard (Pancho) Gonzales will be the next man to enhance the legend.

Name your sport and you can find a champion who stayed away a while and, lured into a return, was only a mockery of his old self. Ben Hogan is an example on his infrequent tournament appearances and the ring is littered with them from John L. Sullivan to Joe Louis.

Now Pancho, once the scourge of the racquet world, is going to give it a shot after two and one-half years in limbo.

Gonzales was the pro net king from 1954 through 1961 and during three or four of those years earned close to $100,000 per in tournament play. He stepped down in October of 1961. But now, according to Jack Kramer, the "fringe benefits" of endorsements and television are proving too great a lure for him to stand idly on the sidelines.

So he's coming back on the pro tour which gets under way at Cleveland Thursday night and continues at the University of Maryland May 19-24; White Plains, N.Y., May 26-31; Los Angeles, June 1-8; St. Louis, June 9-14; Monterey, Calif., June 17-21; Milwaukee, June 24-28, and Longwood, Mass, July 9-12.

Kramer "doubts seriously" that the once mighty Gonzales at 36 can handle the current champion, Ken Rosewall, or southpaw Rod Laver, the 25-year-old Aussie who turned pro after his 1962 amateur grand slam.

Kramer Learned From Experience

"For one thing," analyzed Kramer, "they're not afraid of him."

Gonzales, however, has been working twice a day and weighs only 179 compared with the 185 he scaled during his last year on the pro tour. Meanwhile, in the past two years he has done a lot of coaching and teaching.

"But it's a question of hardening yourself mentally as well as physically," said Kramer, pointing out that Gonzales was beaten by Alex Olmedo rather easily in a four-set match last July in Pancho's lone pro match since 1961.

Kramer knows from experience.

"I remember when I was 36 and I signed Lew Hoad," he grimaced. "Dinny Pails left the tour and I went on with Hoad, Pancho Segura and Rosewall. I managed a 2-1 edge on Segura and beat Hoad, 13-12. But Rosewall beat me 20-5 in matches. I could handle his serve and volley but he simply wore me down."

Kramer, who is only temporarily fronting for the pro tour, says that he envisions the same thing happening to Gonzales.

"Since Gonzales retired, Rosewall has improved tremendously," added Kramer, who owns a 36-hole public golf course in Chino, Calif., as well as a tennis club. "He has become an extremely confident champion and would figure to wear Gonzales down."

"Another factor," he continued, "is that Laver presents a new element. He's young and strong and, well, I just have my doubts that Gonzales can handle these two comparative kids."

What happens to the comeback attempt of the tall, rangy Gonzales should be of great interest to sports fans generally. Yet the odds are that the rust of time and inactivity have robbed him of the old razor's edge which makes a champion. It's been proved too often before.

AT COBBLE HILL

Classy Scuderia Enters Drag Event

Scuderia is coming, and that means a ton of speed for drag-racing addicts.

For the uninitiated, the Scuderia is the world-record-holding "A" class dragster and it will be the featured machine at the Victoria Day drag-racing championships Sunday at Cobble Hill.

Owned by a group of Vancouver enthusiasts called "The Syndicate," the car has been timed at the end of a quarter mile at 168 mph, a world record for its class.

From Victoria, a hot dragster owned by Bob Robinson, Wilf Tucker and Carl Kerrish should be the one to beat in D Class competition. This car has won the top eliminator title twice this season at the Cobble Hill strip and has travelled the quarter mile from a standing start in 12.75 seconds.

Between 40 to 50 cars from the Island, B.C. mainland, and Washington are expected for the meet. A full slate of National Hot Rod Association classes are scheduled.

The competition is organized by the Quarter Milers and Mystics car clubs.

Time trials start at 9:30 a.m. and eliminations get underway at 2 p.m.

PRIDE OF NAVY'S leather-swinging legion, Wayne Powell (above) draws assignment in featured bout on Thursday boxing card. Bouts to be held in former Victoria Ballroom (1600 Government) will mark final promotion of season by London Boxing Club.

ESKS SIGN TACKLE

EDMONTON (CP) — Bill Van Cleave, 23, a 220-pound defensive tackle at Northeastern State College, Tahlequah, Okla., has signed a tryout contract with Edmonton Eskimos, the Western Football Conference Club said today.

HOCKEY CLASH . . . . . . A CENTENNIAL TREAT?

Leafs May Test Russians

OTTAWA (CP)—Can Russia ice a hockey team capable of beating a National League club? Or are the experts right in saying that Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens are at least five goals better than the Soviets or any other of the European world amateur hockey powers?

The answers to these questions might be available in 1967.

Putting the Leafs on the same rink as the world's amateur champions is one suggestion for the centennial year that is getting consideration at the National Centennial Commission, the government agency planning Canada's 100th birthday.

It might come off, says Arnold Charbonneau, head of the sports branch of the commission.

There is already a move by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to have the world's amateur title decided in Canada in 1967. And the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto already has indicated interest in providing a rink if the Leafs could be persuaded into playing such a game.

In the long run, Charbonneau said Monday in an interview, the decision on what sports spectacles will be run off in 1967 rests squarely with the sports governing bodies in Canada.

Part of Charbonneau's job is to stir up interest among the sports fraternity in holding special events in 1967. He's been in touch with the 50-odd governing bodies and has been told by 36 of them that they do plan special competitions to mark the centennial.

Once the sports people make up their minds on what they'd like to do—and providing it's a national project of wide interest — Charbonneau will try to sell the idea to centennial commissioners.

On paper, the centennial year looks like a sports feast.

For sure, Canada will host the Pan-American Games and the North American ski championships. The skiers also might add a further international touch by inviting some of Europe's top stars to the event.

There are suggestions for world's amateur championships in boxing, wrestling, fencing, archery and other sports.

COMMONS BUSINESS

Spurt by MPs Gains Headway

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons law - making mill sputtered into action Tuesday after stalling repeatedly in the 62 sitting days since the session opened.

In a 90-minute spurt at the evening sitting, MPs passed the fourth government bill cleared since Feb. 18. The Commons took these steps:

1. Gave second reading — approval in principle—over Conservative opposition to a bill creating a single defence staff chief, signalling the eventual complete reorganization of the defence department.

2. Passed with little debate a budget measure awarding the provinces a larger slice of estate taxes; the province's share goes up to 75 from 50 per cent.

3. Gave first reading to a bill authorizing federal Crown corporations to pay up to $3,500,000 annually in provincial sales taxes and automobile licence fees.

4. Gave first reading to a measure providing for a fourth judge on the Exchequer Court of Canada, who will specialize in divorce cases from Quebec and Newfoundland, the only provinces without divorce courts.

Today, debate continues on the divorce bill. The same measure was whipped through the Commons last year but was killed in the Senate on the last day of the session.

CREATES NEW POST

Second reading was given to a bill creating the post of chief of the defence staff—already earmarked for Air Chief Marshal Frank Miller—and abolishing separate chiefs for each service.

The bill now goes to the special committee on defence for study. Conservative MPs shouted "on division" to register their opposition, but the three other opposition groups supported the bill.

Defence Minister Hellyer said the unification of the three services will eliminate costly duplication and overlapping, and enable more efficient use of manpower. Civilian control over military programs would be increased.

For example, the information services of the air force, army and navy would be merged into one, allowing a manpower cut and attendant savings.

"Once the high command has been unified and once the armed forces of Canada are organized on a functional basis rather than along traditional service lines, the complete integration of the armed services will follow as a natural evolution from this change in organization.

"There will, of course, always be soldiers, sailors and airmen. We may also, some day in the future, have spacemen."

He said an artillery officer could not command a ship, but he might find himself at home with a naval gun after a brief familiarization. Many of the basic skills in the three services were similar.

B.C. Court Appointments Announced

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice Harry Joseph Sullivan has been appointed to the British Columbia court of appeal and Vancouver lawyer Medford M. McFarlane has been named to replace him on the provincial supreme court, Justice Minister Favreau announced today.

The appointment to the appeal court of Mr. Justice Sullivan, 67-year-old native of Atkinson, Mich., fills an additional post provided by act of Parliament last session and is effective May 20. He practised law in New Westminster, B.C., from 1921 until made a county court judge in 1945 and has been on the Supreme Court since 1956.

Mr. McFarlane, whose appointment also is effective May 20, was called to the B.C. bar in 1931 and created a Queen's Counsel in 1957.

OPENS THURSDAY

Japanese Exhibit Trade Fair 'Star'

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI) — North America's largest international 1964 trade fair opens here Thursday and a sneak-preview revealed other nations will have to hustle to stay out from under the industrial shadow of the land of the rising sun.

The Japanese have the largest exhibit at the fair, and while their major competitors are trying to recapture some of the small wares market they have lost to them, the Japanese are taking aim on the "big stuff."

The best illustration was by comparing the British exhibit, which promotes leisure activities, to the Japanese show.

The British exhibits concentrate on toys, fishing equipment, sporting goods, shoes and sundry other small items, which the Japanese have already mastered in their plants.

The Japanese exhibit was aimed at customers for trucks, cars, and power plants, and complete factories.

The Japanese display occupied the area opposite Britain's and at first glance, a spectator might think the signs had been switched on the countries of origin.

The Japanese displayed a large mobile unit that was a twin to the famed British Land Rover and named the Land Cruiser.

COMPACT CARS

Next was a compact automobile designed almost identical to the British Austin and called the Toyota.

A member of the Japanese trade delegation defended this duplication. He said Japan began producing motor cars of British design several years ago through a technical co-operation scheme. Under the program, the Japanese bought designs and paid the required royalties. But the agreement expired four years ago, and the Japanese manufacturers now like to think of Modela as "originals."

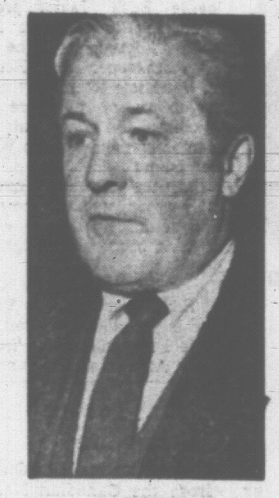
Also exhibited were Japanese power plants, lathes, precision tools, other machines, and steel gradings and expanded metals. A representative is on hand to discuss complete plant needs, including machines and techniques.

"We are a small country and depend heavily on our exports," said one trade delegate.

He said the U.S. was Japan's biggest customer, taking 30 per cent of all exports. European nations take another 35 per cent, Russia and Canada about 8 per cent each, and a small amount goes to Australia, Asia and Africa.

Japan relies heavily on trade in electrical appliances, ships and small wares, but feels her reputation of "Made in Japan" is well stamped on these products. Thus the emphasis on the "new look" display, he said.

Japan is only one of 40 nations displaying more than $10 million in wares during the 10-day show.



BELLI

Loud Lawyer To Defend 'Impostor'

MADERA, Calif. (AP)—Melvin Belli, chief defence lawyer in the Jack Ruby murder trial, said Tuesday he will defend Ferdinand Waldo Demara, known as The Great Impostor, who is in jail on charges of grand theft, child molesting and contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Belli made his announcement in San Francisco only a day after Demara said he would act as his own lawyer.

"He's been a client and a friend for a long time," said Belli.

Demara, 42, was re-arraigned Tuesday on amended charges of child molesting and contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Judge Alec Brown said the substituted charged concerned Demara's activities with a 15-year-old boy at the Calvary Ranch School for Boys, where Demara had been employed as director. The school is for wards of state juvenile courts.

Demara surrendered Friday in Los Angeles on charges that he took a station wagon from the school. Demara said he still was employed by the school and was authorized to have the vehicle.

The movie, The Great Impostor, depicted Demara's real-life impersonations of a Royal Canadian Navy surgeon, Trappist monk and other personalities.

Give Us the Prison Shouts Parksville

Delegation Wants Plan Reconsidered

The provincial government junked its plan for a Parksville prison—and now the natives are up in arms.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner Tuesday said the prison plan was withdrawn because a jail there might injure Parksville's reputation as a quality resort centre.

But the Chamber of Commerce is willing to put new industry first and worry about its reputation later, according to comment after an emergency meeting when the news hit town.

Said the chamber's president, Dudley Wickett: "Everyone at the meeting was terribly disappointed. No one has consulted us or asked our advice before making this move.

ALL IN FAVOR

"We just can't understand it. Almost everyone in the town was in favor of having a jail here.

"It would have added to our population when the jail staff move in and would have boosted our economies."

Since the medium-security institution was first proposed several months ago Mr. Wickett has had only one complaint from a town's persons.

"However, there may be some private individuals against it," he said.

"I can only surmise that someone has taken to writing to the attorney-general to air his grievances about the scheme. Certainly we're all for it."

IN THE DARK

Said Village Commissioner John Robertson: "There's not been a thing at the municipal offices here to confirm the decision. We're all pretty much in the dark."

Attempts by both men to find out any more from the attorney-general's department were in vain. Mr. Bonner is in Vancouver for the opening of the International Trade Fair.

Said Mr. Wickett: "We decided at last night's meeting that when we have confirmation of the move we will send a delegation to the powers that be to try and get a reversal of the decision."

The jail, he said, would have been built on Little Mountain about four miles outside the town and could therefore have no effect on the town's good name.

SETBACK TO AREA

In Tuesday's announcement Mr. Bonner said: "I think it would have become known as Parksville Prison — and that would have been a setback to the area."

MAKING TALENT APPEARANCES tonight at Jaycee fair will be Miss Victoria candidates Linda Gower (left) who will sing, and Diane Martin who will do a dance routine. Two of the 10 finalists in the pageant present their talent each night of the fair except Saturday when Miss Victoria 1964 will be named. (Peter Chapman photos.)

On a Bermuda grass field off Island View Road, a little bay mare with a white star on her forehead will soon be adding new spectator thrills to an ancient sport. Her name is Pineapple, and she's a polo pony of international renown.

Her remove from the enormous Baldwin ranch on the Hawaiian island of Maui to Central Saanich is but one indication that Vancouver Island Polo Club is no longer a struggling infant.

Among others is a season schedule which includes matches with teams known wherever mallet cracks against bamboo-root ball. One of these is Berkley's. The Californians from polo's North American capital are expected here for some fast chukkers against Island riders in late July.

Weekends through June, Oregon State Polo Club will come north to tussle for Centennial and B.C. Challenge Cups. The 20 Oregon mounts will be quartered for the month on Vancouver Island Polo Club property which has been expanded to 42 acres from an original 10.

"We're pleased with our prospects," says club president Dr. Bill Powell. "In three seasons, we've seen polo emerge as a full-fledged sport on the Island."

This didn't just happen. It was Bill and Elizabeth Powell, veterinary surgeons both, who with a handful of fellow enthusiasts revived the hard-riding game which had been absent from our turf for over 20 years.

The club has now progressed to the point where it can field a junior team, the Centaurs, as well as its senior All-Stars. Pineapple is but one of a score of carefully-chosen and trained mounts, most of them California-bred.

A match between home-club teams will open the season on Sunday, May 24, weather permitting. If you like to watch clever ponies and fine riding. I suggest you keep that afternoon open.

Anyone who has a spare Island gathering moss will find a grateful recipient in University of Victoria.

This from Dr. Gordon Fields, who heads the rapidly-expanding Uvic biology department.

Vital in the study of ecology —the relationship of organisms to each other and their environment—is a primitive area which will remain in that state.

Such tracts grow increasingly hard to find, however. In blunders man to upset the natural order, leaving behind him an ecologist's nightmare.

"It would be of great benefit to our students," Dr. Fields explains, "if we were able to set aside areas for field trips and scientific research which would remain in a natural state."

Since his department is now granting degrees in biology, and will soon widen its scope to include post-graduate work, the need for wild land which will stay wild has become pressing.

Hence the hope that an island or foreshore strip, or preferably both, may be made available by government or some private donor.

Ideally, any terrain set aside for field study should range from high ground to seashore, with timber and marshland between.

It should also be within a day's return journey for students on field trips.

This sounds like a tall order . . . but there's no harm in asking, and in a province which draws its basic industries from its natural resources, the biologist holds a significant place.

Over the past few months, this corner has intercepted a number of complaints about an emergency tire inflator that hit the Victoria automotive market last year.

If you happen to have one of these pressure cans stowed in your car trunk, I suggest you get an opinion on it from a garageman.

What I've heard matches reports turned in to British columbia Automobile Association.

None of these are of a cheerful nature, and one—downright disturbing—is that this product has raised heck with several car trunks by exploding.

Ill Wind Sends Two to Hospital

Two men are in hospital and a third was rescued at sea after gale winds gusting to 54 miles an hour tore in from the waterfront Tuesday.

The sudden blast sent Clarence Faa, 31, of 4051 Cedar Hill, and Roy Empey, 30, of 254 Moss, crashing to earth in Memorial Arena fairgrounds as they tried to fasten a sign atop a 36-foot steel scaffold erected for floodlighting.

Both men are in satisfactory condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital, Faa with chest injuries and Empey with a broken leg.

The weather office said the gale blew at 40 to 54 miles an hour, enough to push over the tower that stood on a rock, anchored but not guyed.

For Trial Islander Thomas King, the wind brought a stormy, roller coaster finish to his first trip ashore in 12 days.

Rowing back to the lighthouse, where he is assistant keeper, King ran into the teeth of the gale that added to the hazard of tide rips.

Buffeted off-course in his nine-foot dinghy, his predicament was seen by cab driver William McFarlane, who had driven him to Shoal Bay.

"I was scared I was going to go outside Discovery (Island), and you don't know what it's like unless you've been out there," King said.

POLICE CALLED

The cabbie called Oak Bay police, who sent a power boat from the marina to the lightkeeper's aid. Boatman George Moore and King were soaked by the time they got back to the marina.

King spent the rest of the night in Victoria.

"I've been there (on Trial Island) seven years, and that's the first time this has happened," said King, noting that water seemed "dead calm" before he set out.

He has about 25 years' experience in the lighthouse service and many years of seafaring behind him, having started in the whaling trade at the age of 16.

Emergency Hospital Opening Set

B.C.'s first instant hospital will be opened May 21 at Jordan River.

A complete 200-bed emergency hospital will be crammed into an 8,000 square foot concrete block building built at a cost of $15,000 by Luney Bros. and Hamilton.

Just pour into any nearby school, add nurses and doctors and it will work, says the provincial civil defence organization, which created the hospital kit.

All the equipment and supplies needed to run the hospital will be folded and crated inside the blockhouse, built near B.C. Hydro's Jordan River power plant.

RCMP will hold keys to the blockhouse.

A civil defence spokesman said the hospital is designed for use in the Greater Victoria area.

It is located at Jordan River because prevailing winds would carry away most of the fallout from a nuclear explosion over the city.

When needed it would be brought into the target area and set up in a school, staffed by voluntary medical crews.

Offices Closing

All provincial government offices except Victoria's museum will be closed next Monday when civil servants get a holiday for Victoria Day.

The museum will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

BLIND TOURNAMENT

Sightless Bowlers To Be Given 'Flip'

The sixth annual bowling tournament for the blind will be held Thursday evening at the Loomer Lanes, Town and Country Shopping Plaza.

An afternoon flight over southern Vancouver Island, arranged by Trans Canada Air Lines and Canadian National Institute for the Blind, precedes the event.

Blind guide-rail bowler contestants this year are Harold Mitchell of Hamilton, Ont., and George Mills of New Westminster.

Capt. M. C. Robinson, national director of CNIB for Western Canada, will officially open the tournament at 7:30 p.m. It was Capt. Robinson who originated the first Five Pin Bowling League for blind persons in Vancouver in 1935. Now 2,000 blind people across Canada find bowling their most popular indoor recreation.

GUIDES USED

The blind bowlers use a knee-high guide rail, 10 feet in length and a sighted volunteer keeps each bowler informed of the progress of his ball.

Tournaments are held annually on the local and international level with the TCA-CNIB tournament being the only national tournament.

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes will present the TCA trophy to the winner and TCA's first employee and First World War flying ace, D. R. MacLaren, will be master of ceremonies.

Neville "Buck" Taylor, president of the Victoria Five Pin Bowling Association, will be official scorekeeper and Henry Hunt, Victoria's totem pole carver, will present miniature totem poles to the contestants as mementos of their visit to Vancouver Island.

During the afternoon many blind persons will experience their first air flight along with other blind bowlers and sighted escorts.

Church Quartet To Sing Here

The Dominicaires Male Quartet from the Canadian Nazarene College at Winnipeg will give a concert in the Esquimalt Church of the Nazarine, 866 Craigflower Road, Thursday at 7:45 p.m. and in Victoria's First Church, Quadra and Kings, Friday at 7:45 p.m.

TOPICS of the DAY

S. Tukeman will speak on the Baha'i Faith as the religion of today at a meeting in the Baha'i Centre, 1005 View Street, tonight at 8.

The two youthful bombers of Langford will be sentenced next Tuesday for setting off an explosion in Elizabeth Fisher Junior Secondary School a month ago.

They pleaded guilty to placing the home-made bomb in the school washroom when they appeared in juvenile court and were remanded for sentence.

The explosive smashed fixtures in the washroom during a recess in school hours but no one was in the room at the time.

In a Times report of a court case Tuesday, it was erroneously stated that Dr. Frank M. Bryant suffered a fracture of the left tibia in an accident at the corner of Douglas and Fisgard Streets on Oct. 21, 1962.

This injury was actually sustained by Martin Spriggs of 928 Island Road, whose motorcycle was in collision with Dr. Bryant's car.

Opening of the free food stall has been cancelled for the month of May. Next date for the stall to open will be June 20.

South Vancouver Isle Lions Club raised over $150 for the Port Alberni Flood Fund during a pancake bake at Mattick's Farm on Sunday.

It was "rather prophetic" a man ended up on top of a monument March 6 after the way he drove his car, the driver was told today when he appeared in court.

William Wylie, 450 Dallas Road, was fined $200 for dangerous driving. Magistrate William Ostler also ordered him to drive only on business for four months.

Evidence showed police in a prowl car saw him go through the intersection of Broughton and Quadra at an estimated speed of 60 m.p.h.

Wylie lost control and his car spun into Pioneer Square ending up on top of a monument erected there. Wylie's lawyer said his client didn't remember the accident but possibly his accelerator had jammed.

Wylie's 1964 model car was a total wreck, according to police.

His wife resides at 945 Clent Street, Victoria.

The regular meeting of the Victoria Inboard Outboard Association will be held tonight at 8 at 845 Yates Street.

City firemen have not determined the cause of a blaze that damaged Victoria's newest office building Tuesday evening.

The fire was discovered about 6:30 on the sixth floor of the Bentall Building, Fort and Douglas. It started in paper wrapping on a huge stack of insulation piled to the ceiling on the sixth floor.

Fire Chief John Abbott said the main loss was water damage to the insulation although smoke from the fire seeped through the new $1,500,000 structure.

The building was opened only last week. There is speculation that a workman's cigarette butt may have started the fire.

ARBITRATION BOARD RULING

Worker Who Sparred With Boss Reinstated

A Victoria sawmill worker today was ordered reinstated in the job he lost after a fight with the strawboss.

A majority decision by an arbitration board ruled that William Steffler was wrongfully dismissed by Smith Cedar Products Ltd.

H. P. Reilly, business agent for the Shingle Weavers Local 2802 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, said Steffler will receive about $800 in back pay.

Both Steffler and William Ferguson, a head carloader, were fired March 9 for fighting on the job. The fight followed an earlier battle involving a third man.

The three-man board found that on March 6, Ferguson, the straw boss, told John Tom Shaw he did not like the way Shaw was operating the fork lift.

Shaw told Ferguson he could operate it himself, the board found.

The board report stated Ferguson "does not take kindly to an insult," and thereupon grabbed Shaw by the throat, slapped and punched him half a dozen times and then hit him on the back with a stick.

Shaw was telling foreman Sig Rudiger what had happened, when Ferguson returned and started throwing punches again, the board was told.

Shaw ducked the blows and fled after kicking Ferguson in the groin.

The battered Shaw, two members of the union shop committee and the foreman were discussing the earlier fights when Ferguson reappeared and threw a rock at them.

Later Ferguson and Steffler got embroiled in a fight, but the scuffle was broken up by another worker.

The board's report says Ferguson admitted fighting.

"I knew I was going to get fired so I intended to do something to be fired about," it quotes him say saying.

Ask The Times

Q — Could you tell me if an 18-foot boat has to be licenced and where I could licence it? T.B.H.

A — Small pleasure craft, less than 20 tons and powered by a motor of 10 horsepower or less do not have to be licenced. However, the department of transport encourages boat owners to licence their craft for identification purposes.

Q—Could you please tell me through your column if it is necessary for unemployed persons over 65 to get registered for a social security number? W.T.

Persons who are employed in insurable employment must register for a social security number. Those who are not have been requested to register so if the proposed new pension plan comes into effect they will already have a number.

You can register through the National Employment Service.

On, Over and Under Douglas St.

BY THE WAY, the waters off Munro Head where members of the Esquimalt Squadron, Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association take to sail in their leisure hours, present a pleasant picture. Still as sentries, destroyer escorts of the RCN and Fisgard Light nod in slumber at a scene that's familiar to yachtsmen everywhere. Sailerettes, Sabots, Thunderbirds and other sailboats chase the elusive breeze, anxious to be off on one of the first races of the season. Their skippers, newly-released from the loving chores of scraping and painting, scent again the thrill of working in co-operation with wind and tide. Big or small, their boats are passports to the life of basic realities and adventure.

UN PEACE FORCE PLAN

Nations Agree To Ottawa Talks

THE HAGUE (AP)—Five European states have agreed informally to join Canada to prepare international talks on building up a permanent United Nations peace-keeping force.

External Affairs Minister Martin of Canada, who announced the Canadian initiative to NATO foreign ministers Tuesday, identified the countries as Finland, Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Holland. Neutral Sweden is the only non-NATO country among them.

Martin explained that Canada's plan is for these smaller powers to meet in Ottawa shortly—probably in July—as a preparatory conference with the aim of arranging wide discussions on the build-up of a world peace force.

UN BIDS FAILED

The Canadian minister said invitations had gone to the five European governments a few days ago. Other Canadian officials reported, however, that each of the countries had indicated privately in advance they would attend the talks.

For years UN efforts to set up what would amount to a world "police force" have foundered on the rocks of East-West disagreements.

But the experience of troubles in the Middle East, The Congo, and Cyprus appears to have convinced the powers of the need for a more ambitious and more permanent world peace force.

Canada, which has sent contingents to the Middle East, The Congo and Cyprus, hopes that the smaller countries of the United Nations will provide the bulk of the men and material needed to organize the force. But costs would have to be shared by all UN member-nations.

NEW DAUGHTER FOR ACTRESS

Both the auburn-haired film actress who won the Oscar for her part in Hud, and her daughter were well, doctors said.

Miss Neal is married to British writer Ronald Dahl. They also have a son and daughter.

CANADA JOBLESS RATE CONTINUES TO DECLINE

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian unemployment in mid-April stood at 403,000—6 per cent of the labor force, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimated today.

This was a decline from April last year when the jobless total was estimated at 462,000 or 7 per cent of the labor force. It also was a drop from a month earlier when 456,000 were jobless—a 6.8 per cent jobless rate.

The seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate for mid-April rose slightly to 4.7 per cent from 4.6 per cent in mid-March. In April last year it was 5.5 per cent.

IN VICTORIA

More Blood Used Than Donated

Never is a patient denied a life-saving blood transfusion—never so long as blood is available.

But how long will this life-saver be available when in Victoria last month patients received twice as much blood as was donated here?

During April 642 pints of blood were used in Royal Jubilee, St. Joseph's and Veterans' hospitals and during the same period of time only 348 pints were collected.

The extra 300 pints received here came from Vancouver and other out-of-town donors in the province.

1,000 CARDS

Every month Mrs. Violet Thistle supervisor of the blood transfusion service in Victoria sends out on average 1,000 cards to donors reminding them of the next clinic. The response is usually much less than half.

Every week an average of one person from here goes to Vancouver for heart surgery. Before the operation can begin 20 pints of blood must be available. In most cases this is donated by friends here and added to the total number of pints collected in Victoria but the amount used by the Victoria patient in Vancouver is not counted in the total amount received here.

Blood transfusions have become a part of everyday medical treatments as more life-saving techniques are perfected but this is one treatment only the public can provide.

ONE PINT A YEAR

If only 10,000 of the eligible donors between the ages of 18 and 65 would donate one pint of blood a year Victoria could very easily meet its demand. But, unfortunately only a handful of the eligible donors ever turn up. This means they are called upon two, three and sometimes four times a year to meet half the demand while the rest must come from Vancouver.

Next week an all-out effort is being made by the Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service to collect 1,000 pints of blood in Victoria.

Tuesday, May 19, a clinic will be held at Red Cross House between 1:30 and 4:30 p.m. and 6:30 and 9 p.m.

Wednesday the clinic will run continuously from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. to provide an opportunity for people to donate during the lunch hour or on the way home after work.

Thursday the clinic will move to the Dockyards where it is expected there will be 400 or more donors.

Large Loan Promised If Hoffa Extricated

CHICAGO (AP) — A government witness testified Tuesday that Teamsters' president James R. Hoffa promised him approval of a $5,000,000 loan from a union pension fund if he would help extricate Hoffa from a singing business venture.

The day was also enlivened by the throwing of a federal guard around Judge Richard B. Austin, after a telephoned report of an assassination plot against the judge.

Two U.S. marshals were assigned to guard the judge in his courtroom and six others stood watch over corridors leading to his chambers.

The action came after an anonymous caller told police someone would try to kill Judge Austin Tuesday.

There were no incidents in court as the witness, Stanton D. Sanson of Bal Harbour, Fla., described the alleged Hoffa proposal.

Hoffa and seven other defendants are accused of illegally milking the pension fund of more than $20,000,000 in loans and getting a $1,000,000 kickback from the persons who received the loans.

Sanson testified that Hoffa wanted him and his associates to take over Sun Valley, Incorporated, a financially-troubled retirement homes development in Brevard County, Fla., in which Hoffa was deeply involved.

The witness said Hoffa told him Sun Valley was "in considerable difficulty" and Hoffa wanted a reputable firm to take over the development "and do something with it."

"It's a must proposition," Sanson quoted Hoffa as saying in a telephone conversation which the witness said took place in Florida in the summer of 1958.

Isolated Virus New Cancer Clue?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Dr. Albert B. Sabin, developer of live virus oral polio vaccine, said Monday night he has discovered a virus he hopes to prove can cause cancer in humans.

"It would be too good to be true, but it could be true," the famed virus specialist told a meeting of physicians and scientists at Mount Zion Hospital.

"No human cancer has yet been proved to be caused by a virus," Dr. Sabin said. But he and his colleagues, he said, have isolated a virus from the thymus gland of an 18-year-old Cincinnati youth suffering from chest cancer.

VIRUS APPEARS

Tumor cells were extracted from the gland, he said. The cells lived and reproduced under laboratory conditions. At first, he said, no virus was evident, then, after 20 days of culture a virus began to appear in large numbers.

The virus from the youth's tumor, he said, "was unlike any other virus that has been described or encountered" in human cancer. He added that his report represents only circumstantial evidence—"a little bit of light coming from the darkness."

The isolated virus seems to be biochemically related to a class of viruses that cause tumors in rabbits and a certain type of African monkey, Dr. Sabin said.

Union Fights Outside City Layoffs

VANCOUVER (CP)—Leaders of the Union of Outside City Workers warned Tuesday that members should be ready to battle city council if layoffs are proposed to pay for the strike-ending wage settlement.

The union, in its first printed bulletin since the strike settlement, said Vancouver City Hall reports indicate "the mayor and certain aldermen plan to cut down on essential services performed by outside workers and to layoff a good number of workers."

It warned: "Those members of city council who think they can get away with such barefaced skullduggery are in for a rude awakening."

The bulletin attacked Mayor Rathie for his proposal that public services could be curtailed in order to balance the budget following the strike settlement.

It pointed out that $800,000 had been set aside in the city's 1964 budget to cover all civic wages this year and that the cost of increases to all unions this year is estimated at $700,000.

City council Tuesday made no mention of the strike settlement nor of the mayor's suggestion of cutbacks in service to meet costs this year.

Philippines PM Accused Of Graft

MANILA (Reuters) — Senator Arthuro Tolentino, a member of the opposition Nacionalista party, Tuesday sought the formal impeachment of President Diosdado Macapagal of the Philippines.

The senator filed a petition with the House of Representatives for the impeachment of Macapagal, charging him with culpable violation of the constitution and the anti-graft law.

Under the constitution any move to impeach a president must originate from the lower house of congress.

Tolentino cited rice imports by the armed forces last year which the supreme court declared illegal and the controversial allocation of a $2,250,000 reparations allocation to the Sulian Shipping Lines.

He said the rice imported by the armed forces allegedly for stockpiling purposes was actually used for political ends in last year's senatorial elections.

Political observers here gave the senator's petition little chance of passing the Liberal-controlled House of Representatives.

Plumbers Sign Pact

VANCOUVER (CP)—Some 13 plumbers working for the Vancouver school board agreed Tuesday to accept a new wage contract which would give them $3.47 an hour immediately. The new rate gives school plumbers the same wages as plumbers employed on outside construction projects.

CREDITISTES WAVE MAPLE LEAF

MPs in Tizzy Again Over National Flag

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson says he hopes MPs will vote as their consciences dictate when the government brings in its design for a national flag.

He also said in the Commons Tuesday he hopes the flag issue will not carry with it any question of a non-confidence vote in the minority Liberal government.

Replying to Robert C. Coates (PC—Cumberland) who asked if there would be a "free vote"—not along party lines—on the government choice, Mr. Pearson said:

"When the time comes to submit the decision of the government to the House of Commons I would hope that every member of the House would vote as his conscience dictates and that there would be no question of confidence or non-confidence in a party sense."

"Another retreat," said Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

ANALYZE REMARK

Outside the House, Mr. Coates told reporters that he did not construe Mr. Pearson's remark to mean there necessarily will be a free vote.

However, Barry Mather (NDP—New Westminster), in a statement, interpreted the prime minister's comment to mean that Mr. Pearson favored a free vote.

Mr. Mather suggested a national plebiscite on the flag issue should be held in conjunction with the next federal general election. The question should be "do you favor the Red Ensign or a distinctive Canadian flag as our national emblem?"

WHAT ARE THEY?

Nicholas Mandziuk (PC—Marquette) drew official notice to them when he asked Mr. Pearson if he could identify "the foreign symbols or flags displayed on the desks of some honorable members."

Mr. Mandziuk added that until Parliament abolishes the Red Ensign, no one had the right "to display any other rag in here."

"Monstrosity," cried another Conservative MP.

Mr. Caouette said MPs shouldn't insult each other.

Speaker Alan Macnaughton said it wasn't general practice in the Commons to "display flags, apples or tins of honey" in the chamber.

He said it didn't behoove the Speaker of the House to act as a schoolmaster on all occasions. It was up to members "to act in accordance with their consciences as members who have taken the oath of allegiance."

The background color didn't matter as long as it served to make the maple leaf stand out.

The 74-year-old Liberal senator from Quebec said the maple leaf is recognized around the world as a Canadian emblem. He was against a plebiscite since it would only cause friction.

The cabinet, therefore, should decree such a flag and when it was an accomplished fact, all Canadians would support it.

FORTY MEN LAID OFF AT BURRARD

VANCOUVER (CP) — The predicted layoffs at Burrard Dry Dock because of a continuing plumbers' strike began Tuesday.

Forty men in all trades were laid off and an unspecified number will lose their jobs today, company officials said.

At the same time the company has had to hire four burner-welders for a short-term repair job.

Company officials have said the layoffs will be progressive and the yard may have to be closed if the plumbers don't return to work.

The 51 plumbers have refused to go back unless they get an extra 10 cents an hour to give them parity pay with the electricians. The other 550 workers went back when a 40-cent hourly raise was approved after a 12-week strike.

Rates before the settlement were $2.70 an hour for tradesmen and $2.80 for electricians.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath". Get FASTEETH at drug counters everywhere. Advt.

THE GREATEST SELECTION IN THE WEST AT WOODWARD'S FOOD FLOORS

AWARD OF $100 for "most interesting exhibit" at the Victoria Exhibition went to the British Columbia Forest Service. Here, Seymour E. Looking on is league publicity convener, Juanita Garden.

EMPLOYEE REGISTRATION

44 Per Cent Response Labeled Good by NES

More than 50,000 employed persons in Greater Victoria have been asked to apply for the new social insurance numbers.

Response has totalled more than 22,000 or 44 per cent.

UIC manager, George Bevis, says that another 5,000 persons, those not actually required by law to contribute to the unemployment insurance fund, have been asked to register. Response in this area has been "very good."

JUNE DEADLINE

Mr. Bevis said today that Victorians under the plan have until June 27 to complete all applications. He attributed the success of the scheme in Victoria to good public relations and pointed out that there has been no serious criticism of the program here.

Since March, a $300,000 cross-Canada publicity campaign has been promoting the nine-digit number card system.

UIC commissioner in Ottawa, Laval Fortier, stated that response to the card system has been "exceedingly good," although voluntary response, notably in the teaching profession which refuses to apply, has been slower.

Across Canada to date, 2,619,233 applications have been filed for the number cards.

Used to enable UIC officials to process individuals through the use of computers, the new cards will be issued to more than 6,300,000 Canadians.

May 19 Deadline Set On Columbia Hearing

OTTAWA (CP)—The external affairs committee of the Commons hopes to end its examination of the Canada-U.S. Columbia River treaty next week.

The committee has decided to put a deadline of 5 p.m. EDT next Tuesday on applications from further witnesses, chairman John Matheson (L—Leeds) said today after a steering committee session.

Hearings by the committee started April 7 and have been held virtually on a five-day week basis since, sometimes three times a day.

External Affairs Minister Martin, tentatively scheduled to conclude his evidence next Tuesday, appears now to be the last witness.

The government's position is that the committee can accept or reject the treaty and subsequent protocol of last January, but not change it in detail. This also applies to Parliament itself, which will proceed to debate both documents once they clear the committee.

The deadline set by the government for ratification is Oct. 1. Only the New Democrats are actually flatly opposing the treaty.

IWA Contract Talks Resume

VANCOUVER (CP) — Contract negotiations involving some 25,000 woods workers in the B.C. coast region resumed Tuesday.

B.C. government conciliation officer, E. P. Fisher, said Tuesday, night meetings are scheduled to continue every day this week.

He met Tuesday with officials of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC), representing the workers, and Forest Industrial Relations, representing the companies.

Mr. Fisher is to hand down a report—to take the place of a conciliation board award—some time before June 6.

The IWA has asked for a 40-cent-an-hour increase for all workers in the coast region with tradesmen and improvers getting another 30 cents on top of that.

Meanwhile, the IWA has announced it will seek parity with coast woods workers in its contract negotiations with employers in its two regions in the interior.

The union says it is examining the possibility of a common expiry date for all three agreements in B.C.

LAOS

China Seeks Geneva Talks

PEKING (Reuters) — Communist China today called for a new Geneva conference on Laos if United States "obstruction" prevented a solution to the crisis in the Indochina nation.

The move came in a letter sent by Foreign Minister Chen Yi to Britain and Russia as co-chairmen of the 1962 conference which guaranteed Laotian neutrality and paved the way for a coalition government after years of civil war.

The letter suggested four ways to resolve the present tension in Laos:

Stop the activities of the U.S.; dissolve the group which staged a rightist military coup last month and punish the leaders; resume talks among the three Laotian factions; and neutralize the cities of Luang Prabang and Vientiane.

If this proved impossible Chen then urged the reconvening of the Geneva conference.

The letter was in reply to a message from the co-chairmen May 1 to the Laotian faction leaders and the governments at the last Geneva conference.

It also charged the U.S. wanted to extend the war in South Viet Nam by "dragging armed forces of the SEATO and NATO members, of Japan and of the Chiang Kai-shek clique into Southern Viet Nam for new adventures."

Chen also sent a letter to Prince Souphanouvong, leader of the pro-Communist faction in Laos, assuring him of Chinese support.

China's new proposals came as The People's Daily, the main party newspaper, termed the Laos situation "explosive" and demanded immediate action to halt the "danger of all-out civil war."

'STOP ALIENATION'

Free Parks From Power Of Cabinet, Says Group

B.C. Nature Council, in its second annual meeting, opposed the creation and control of parks by cabinet order and called for reclassification of parkland to include sanctuaries and wilderness areas.

"The main thing is to put them under an act of parliament so they cannot be alienated," said Freeman King, on his return to Victoria with Mrs. Gladys Soulsby and Eric Garman. All three were re-elected to the executive.

Six other Victoria naturalists attended the meetings as observers.

Dr. James Bendell, of University of B.C., was named president, succeeding Dr. Thomas Taylor, also of UBC, now retired. The remaining four members of executive were re-elected.

OKANAGAN VALLEY

The conference will urge the government to set aside a large wilderness area in the Okanagan Valley, suggesting a zone lying between the international boundary and Okanagan Lakes that is unique for its wildlife and botany.

A further brief to the government will be to urge more control over the use of pesticides and sprays on both public and private land because of the danger to life.

The council represents a local membership of some 2,000 persons in B.C. who belong to naturalist groups.

Its special speaker was York Edwards, director of interpretation for the department of recreation and conservation, who spoke on Naturalists and Parks.

South Okanagan Nature Council, host for the meetings, took delegates on field trips ranging up to 100 miles.

Next regular meeting of the B.C. council will be here in October.

Shotgun 'Salute' Clears CPA Runway

DAWSON CITY, Y.T. (CP) Of late when Canadian Pacific Airlines flight 25 arrives it's a signal for the RCMP to fire a 12-gauge salute.

It seems thousands of waterfowl, en route to northern nesting areas, have selected a number of small ponds near the airport runway as a resting spot.

Their northward migration has been slowed because of a late spring in the north. When the CPA planes arrive they take to the air and create a hazard.

Police first tried to move the ducks by roaring up and down the run-way in patrol cars with sirens blaring. The waterfowl took the air briefly, circled and returned.

Shotgun blasts proved more successful, perhaps a grim reminder of hunting season.

How long the ducks and geese continue to be a problem will depend upon the weather, game officials said. Relief is in sight as the forecast is for warmer temperatures.

Meanwhile, the police will continue to welcome the three flights weekly at this centre, 1,300 miles northwest of Edmonton, with shotgun blasts.

FRENCH BIOLOGIST

Quebec Approves Leukemia Serum Use

MONTREAL (UPI) — The way has been cleared for French biologist Gaston Naessens to administer his anti-leukemia serum Anablast to a three-year-old boy reportedly dying from the disease.

Quebec provincial health minister Alphonse Couturier has given his approval for use of the drug in this case, since the provincial College of Physicians and Surgeons late last week cleared the drug's production and administration with two reservations.

A college spokesman said Tuesday that the serum would have to be produced in a top-flight established laboratory and that it would have to be administered in the presence of a team of top specialists, approved by the college.

GLASGOW (CP) — A move is under way to send a six-year-old Scottish leukemia victim to Canada for treatment by Gaston Naessens.

Hugh Macdonald, secretary of a committee in nearby Elderslie, said the committee would like to send ailing John Houston for treatment by Naessens in Quebec if suitable guarantees can be arranged.

The committee raised £1,200 for the six-year-old and sent him to Corsica when Naessens was there, but he was not treated. He returned to Elderslie village with his mother, Mrs. Christine Houston.

Kenya Gets Russ Aid After Peking Deal

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced Tuesday it has agreed to supply economic and technical help to Kenya and has signed an agreement for scientific and cultural exchanges with the East African country. The Soviet news agency Tass said the agreements were signed by First Deputy Premier Alexei Kosygin and Kenya Interior Minister Oginga Odinga, who brought a Kenya government delegation to Moscow for the May Day celebration. Odinga interrupted his stay in Moscow to visit Peking and sign an economic and technical co-operation agreement there.

Dad, 112 Visited By Son, 10

ROSWELL, N.M. (AP)—A Roswell hospital patient who says he is 112 years old numbers among his visitors the youngest of his 22 children, 10-year-old Bobby Coronado.

Jesus Coronado, recovering from abdominal surgery, says he was born Christmas Day, 1851, in Corpus Christi, Tex. He said he lost his birth certificate in a fire several years ago.

Coronado said he has been married three times. He and his present wife, Eudelia, were married in 1930 when she was 15. They have had 17 children. Two are dead.

Patti Petite, Judy Gardner, Mary Petite

PATTI, MARY AND JUDY

By RON SUDLOW

They have been singing together for seven years, since high school days in Des Moines, Iowa.

Not only that, but they were performing in nightclubs before they were legally able to buy alcoholic beverages.

The threesome is comprised of cute cousins Patti and Mary Petite, both 23, and pretty blonde Judy Gardner who is 21.

NONE MARRIED

All are single and, like The Lancers who are appearing with them on twice-daily stage shows at Victoria Exhibition, now live in the San Fernando Valley, near Los Angeles, Calif.

"We worked fairs and club dates in Chicago—mostly one-nighters," said Mary, the group's lead singer.

"We then moved to California from Chicago to be on the George Gobel TV Show which ran every Tuesday night for 26 weeks, plus a few personal appearances with him," she continued.

TOURED IN '63

"Last year we toured with Jerry Colonna doing night clubs—mostly in Las Vegas, other parts of Nevada and New York," added Judy.

The girls agreed they enjoyed singing in night clubs most.

Also included in their credits is a record "Sunshowers" they cut for Columbia and an appearance on Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts television program.

Although you would never notice it on stage, two of the girls are not as fit as they would like to be.

LIMPS OFFSTAGE

Judy, an outdoors fiend, broke a bone in her foot when she fell off a surfboard in California, last March.

She wore a cast for nine weeks but has been working on the injured foot for the past seven weeks. She still limps backstage.

And Patti spent two days in hospital last week in Seattle as a result of appendicitis. No operation was necessary.

This is the first trip to Canada for The Petites "and we are very impressed by the quaintness of Victoria," says Judy.

Exhibition Results

Also complete Tuesday was judging of 180 rabbits and a barnful of poultry.

Historic Sites Group Ready for Recruiting

Incorporation of Greater Victoria Historic Buildings Trust as a society is expected during the next three weeks.

"A meeting of all interested parties will be called within this period," said Dr. Hugh Borsman, chairman of a special committee now drafting a constitution and bylaws for the trust.

With the approval of some 100 Victoria citizens who attended the first organizational meeting several weeks ago, the trust will be incorporated under the Societies Act.

GOOD REACTION

"Reaction from the general public has been excellent so far," Dr. Borsman said. "We have had many letters from well-wishers and offers of money. We are not accepting any money at present, but we are encouraged by the prospect of bequests in the future."

Aim of the society will be to promote and foster interest in the preservation of sites of historic and architectural interest.

It will have a board of trustees, all leading citizens, who will decide on money matters and legacies.

What's In a Name?

LONDON (AP) — Quizzed by the producers of a television documentary on V. I. Lenin, four out of 140 Britons described him as one of the Beatles.

They confused the name of the Russian revolutionary with John Lennon, the married member of the pop music group.

The Lenin film, one of a series called Men of our Time, is being screened tonight by commercial TV.

Among the answers given to "who was King George VI?" were:

"Queen Victoria's father."

"A king 200 years ago."

Belgium Aids Congo

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Belgium will provide 100 airmen to the Congolese air force to man and maintain transport and light planes, sources close to the defence ministry said Tuesday night. The airmen, all volunteers, will be sent to The Congo by June 10 at the request of the Congolese commander-in-chief, Gen. Joseph Mobutu, who has been having talks here with Belgian military leaders.

Truck Crashes

NANAIMO (CP) — Heavy equipment was used Tuesday to unload newsprint rolls and remove a semi-trailer truck that went into a ditch and slammed a rock bluff north of here. The truck went off the road to avoid a car and ended up on a 45 degree angle against the bluff.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DAVIES—In loving memory of my dear husband Ernest Davies who passed away May 13, 1962.

The face I loved is now laid low,
His loving voice is still,
The hand so often clasped in mine,
Lies now in death's cold chill.
I often sit and think of him
When I am all alone;
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.

—Ever remembered by his loving wife Trixie.

DAVIES—In loving memory of my father Ernest Davies who passed away May 13, 1962.

Nothing but memories as we Journey on,
Longing for a smile from a loved one gone;
None knows the depths of our deep regret,
But we remember when others forget.

—Ever remembered by Pete, Pauline Davies and family.

DAVIES—In loving memory of my father Ernest Davies who passed away May 13, 1962.

Deep in our hearts you are fondly remembered,
Sweet, happy memories cling
'round your name;
True hearts that loved you with deepest affection,
Always will love you in death just the same.

—Ever remembered by Doris Cliff, Moen and family.

GODWIN—In loving memory of my dear husband, Harry Godwin, who passed away May 13, 1960.
—Ivy Godwin.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

It was Gertrude Stein who penned those words: . . . "a horse is a horse is a horse is a horse," or something like that. In fact, those immortal words enjoy everlasting fame as lyrics in the theme song of the Mr. Ed television series.

Stephen

Mr. Ed is a horse. He's the only one on TV today who falls into what we term the trick category.

Why, pard, back in the good old days, horses worth their hay untied knots, opened doors, put out fires and sniffed out the black-sombreroed hombres. They had billing alongside their masters, and the Lone Ranger without Silver would have been unthinkable as the B.C. Lions without Ohler.

When the picture ended, the cowboy kissed the horse . . . and not the girl.

But now with Freud camped all along the frontier and sophisticated writers prone to lump the trick horse with the mastadon, yesterday's equine stars are in retirement and probably dreaming of ghost riders in the sky.

Today's television horses, aside from Mr. Ed, are seen but not heard. They never get a closeup. They can't sing, talk, put out fires or untie knots. They can't even act. They're just horses. And, above all, aren't even owned by the stars who ride them but are rented from a stable in Hollywood.

Take the Bonanza horses, for instance. They will never achieve the celluloid immortality of Trigger (Roy Rogers), and Tony (Tom Mix) and Tarzan (Ken Maynard), but they have a status of sorts. They eat much as any other horse, as series regulars with weekly exposure in 56 countries, they are spared the indignity of being saddled with a different rider each day. Only Bonanza stars ride Bonanza horses. So there!

The most singular thing about them is the fact they were cast for their parts. Because the show is filmed in color and because of the divergent personalities of the Cartwrights, horses were selected that would be distinctive before the camera and still relate to their riders.

Two of them ridden by Little Joe and Hoss (he's a human) stand 15-3 and weigh an average 1,300 pounds.

Flashiest of the lot is Sport, the bright sorrel used by Pernell Roberts. He is seven-eighths thoroughbred, gelded and weighs 1,100 pounds.

Don't ever say we don't give you all the facts.

Just one more oat, er, note. Even Wagon Train is looking for a horse star. Producer Howard Christie has launched a hunt for the largest horse in North America. To be used in an episode called "Herman," it's about a 38-year-old Percheron who dragged a Chicago beer wagon for years, is then taken to California by his owner, to escape those cold mid-west winters.

British to Use Force To Quell Aden Revolt

ADEN (Reuters) — British Colonial Secretary Duncan Sandys returned Tuesday from a five-hour inspection tour of British and South Arabian Federation troops fighting insurgent tribesmen in the hills 60 miles north of here.

No action was reported during his visit to troops manning the 4,000-foot Coca Cola and Cap-badge ridges, scene of fierce fighting last week.

Sandys received a number of friendly Radfan tribal chiefs and at the front talked to Arab troops, British marine commandos and paratroopers who have been fighting the allegedly Yemeni-backed rebels.

Commenting on Soviet Premier Khrushchev's Cairo statement that the British should give up all their bases, including Aden, Sandys said: "You just ask the Adenese if they want the British to get out."

Adults Study

HALIFAX (CP)—About 600 Cape Breton adults are returning to text books to obtain a high school education. A total of 97 classes are being held this year in 18 Cape Breton communities with an enrolment of 1,227 in Grades 8 to 12. The province's adult education division and local school boards share the cost of the program, launched 14 years ago.

SEARCHING for old movies, Toronto-born Mary Pickford arrived in London Tuesday. Star of silent screen era, Mary and hubby Buddy Rogers will tour Europe in search of copies of 70 films and short features in which she appeared.

Cuba Trade To Continue, Says Britain

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Douglas-Home Tuesday reaffirmed Britain's determination to carry on trade with Cuba despite U.S. objections.

He made this clear in answer to questions from Labor Party members of parliament in the House of Commons.

Labor member Fernyhough asked a double-barrelled question about the difficulty of British shipping lines in the Cuban trade, and U.S. efforts to get Britain to curb sales to the Castro regime.

He said: "Don't you think it is really high time you made it perfectly clear to the Americans that just as they feel they are entitled to trade with Russia and next week are sending a trade mission to Romania without consulting us, we are entitled to carry on legitimate trade with anyone we like without them standing in our way?"

Sir Alec said: "I agree with the latter part of your question. We have made this clear to the United States."

HALF CAR, HALF GOAT

Haflinger Won't Linger Anywhere

By AB KENT

Haflinger is a horse is a mountain goat.

A newly-arrived, Austrian-developed four-by-four vehicle, Haflinger (as in draft horse) will go anywhere within reason.

Originally built for the army, the plucky little (only 1,200 pounds) beast is knocking the spots off miserable mountain trails and logging roads for timber cruisers, sportsmen, prospectors and surveyors.

Amazingly, it is powered only by a two-cylinder, 22-horsepower, rear-mounted engine that growls menacingly in low gears to tackle most any incline up to about 40 per cent.

45 TO GALLON

On the highway it does an outside 45 miles an hour at 45 miles to the gallon.

Basically, Haflinger is a light steel deck with bucket-seated cab perched over a four-wheel drive, independent coil and rubber suspension, all connected by a heavy tubular "spine" serving as frame.

Its greatest feature is locking drive to all four wheels that help it grip tricky situations with the tenacity of a mule, provided there is traction for one or more wheels, in dry land or two feet of water.

Unfortunately, as learned in a test drive this week, it can't create traction. Nothing short of a tracked vehicle could cope with the loose gravel it found.

Using the crest of a sharp decline on Gonzales Heights as a demonstration site, driver Fred Meyer agreed to back down until only the nose was showing.

Then gunning the power plant, Freddy started over the lip, but Haflinger slipped sideways when it began chewing up the loose material that had been dumped over rock fill.

And it bucked and ground its way with power to spare, several times clawing to the brink before the wheels settled into uncompacted soil and gravel.

It was an unfair test, but it showed with what vigor the stocky machine applies itself. With the winch option (not fitted on the model tested) there would have been little delay in coming back to the road.

After all, only the night before the same machine beat its way over eight miles of horse trail behind Langford Lake, pausing only for woodsmen who cut away the bigger windfalls lying across its path.

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Vancouver Island's 28,000 Roman Catholics have raised no opposition to the reading of the epistle and gospel in modern English, French, Italian and Portuguese, Rev. Father Patrick Ratchford of Victoria said today.

"They seem to have accepted the new custom of reading the epistle and gospel in the language of the people instead of in Latin," said Father Ratchford, who is chairman of the diocesan liturgical commission here.

"From it our people are gaining a greater consciousness of the meaning of our services and of the church's social involvement in the community."

CONFERENCE APPROVED

Reading of the epistle and gospel in the vernacular was authorized in the Victoria diocese (comprising Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands) last February by Bishop Remi De Roo. His authorization was based on a decision by the Conference of Canadian Bishops.

"The conference is now considering further extension of the vernacular," Father Ratchford said, "but these will have to be confirmed by the Vatican in Rome.

He believes the bishops' decision will recommend use of the vernacular in Scripture readings and congregational prayers as well as in the epistle and gospel.

This will probably require the publication of a book of common prayer similiar to the Anglican prayer book.

FRENCH INTRODUCED

Under the present authority, the epistle and gospel are read in English at St. Andrew's Cathedral, Victoria, and in Italian and Portuguese at special services conducted by a priest who visits here monthly from Vancouver.

Victoria's French national church of St. Jean Baptiste, 301 Richmond, has introduced modern vernacular French in the reading of the epistle and gospel.

Father Ratchford, who came here from Port Alberni recently, explained that the Vatican Council in its schema on liturgy decided that decisions on use of the vernacular would be left mainly to national councils of bishops.

But they have to get confirmation of their decisions from the Holy See.

NEW TRENDS

He said the job of the diocesan liturgical commission in Victoria—and other diocesan commissions—will be to acquaint priests and laymen with the new trends in liturgy and answer any questions that are raised.

"I foresee no particular problems here," he said.

He predicted a major change in Roman Catholic church architecture.

"We are making the architecture conform to our services instead of our services having to conform with the architecture. One local example is that of the new church of St. Joseph's on Burnside, which is of modern design."

In many churches, he added, the altar is being moved away from the front wall of the church so that the priest can say mass to the congregation instead of to the wall.

"Similarly, we are moving baptismal fonts from the back of the church to the front."

CHANGES IN EMPHASIS

Father Ratchford said adjustments are also being made in liturgy but the changes are "basically in emphasis."

Upcoming are a new rite for adult baptisms; changes in the marriage ceremony to place more emphasis on the duties of the groom; and adjustments in baptismal ceremonies affecting the role of godparents or sponsors.

"Again, most of the major decisions in this respect will be taken by the national council as it further increases its functions.

"The national council has taken prerogatives away from both individual bishops and the Holy See as part of a general administrative decentralization along national lines."

Seattle Bids For Port Business

SEATTLE (AP) — The port of Seattle is counting on giant cranes, new services and a $35,000,000 five-year capital improvement plan to generate new business for the city.

The port has purchased three huge cranes—already attracting camera fans on the waterfront—to handle a new container ship operation, in which truck vans are loaded directly aboard ships.

There also is new log-handling equipment which picks up to 18 tons of logs at a time. Seattle, which began shipping out logs only last August for the first time in 30 years, now expects to export 40,000,000 board feet the next six months.

Other cranes—idle for three years by a union jurisdictional dispute over who would operate them—now are in full use.

Piers and terminals are being rebuilt and consolidated into facilities designed to meet competition with other west coast ports.

THIS IS HOW YOU HOLD THEM, says Ken Mawdsley to son Steve, 12, who plans to follow in his father's pigeon tracks and become a member of the new Junior Club of the Capital City Racing Pigeon Club. Proper care pays off. One of Mr. Mawdsley's birds placed fifth out of the 200 released in the club's first race of the season.

WHEN BIRD RETURNS . . .

Pigeoneers Know Thrill

By JIM BIGSBY

"It's kind of goofy to be sentimental about a pigeon," says Ray Matthews, "but when that bird comes whistling in, folds his wings and comes rocketing into the loft and you know you've got a winner, you're in heaven.

Ray is racing secretary of the Capital City Racing Pigeon Club, a group of fifty people who are equally "goofy" about pigeons.

In their Songhees Road headquarters prior to race night about 200 birds are banded for flights from places such as Tsawwassen, Chilliwack, or even points in Alberta.

The birds are numbered with a rubber band on their leg, placed in the club's travelling-truck cages, and driven to the release point.

FIVE HOURS

It takes five hours by truck and ferry to reach Chilliwack but less than two hours back as the pigeon flies.

As soon as the racer enters the loft his band is removed and the time stamped on it by a special clock.

The winner is figured on a handicap basis, the distance from the "breaking point" — where the birds start to fan out after crossing the straits—being measured in miles and yards to each loft.

The races are very close with as many as the first six birds arriving within one minute.

"Believe me you hear some fancy language around pigeon lofts when birds start circling," says Matthews.

Because the sport is proving so popular a Junior Club is being started.

$15 A PAIR

Two birds will cost around ten to fifteen dollars, although club members have sometimes given birds away when they had too many.

"The birds have got to be cared for regularly," said Matthews who spends two hours a day on his birds.

"After you've raised a brood to flying size you begin training them by releasing them further and further away from the loft.

"By the time you're letting them loose 165 miles away you're pretty lucky if you've got six or seven left out of the twenty you started with.

"The philosophy of pigeon racers is to let nature cull out the weak or unwilling ones.

GOOD ONES RETURN

"The good ones keep coming. They're the ones we're looking for.

"I had one come back ripped open by a hawk. I sewed him up and he's flying again. It's plain guts.

"Those are the ones you treasure and breed from. Some of the fellows here wouldn't part with one of their old-timers for five or six hundred dollars."

The club was started in 1947 with five members and about 200 birds. Today it has fifty members who own 2,500 birds among them.

Youngsters wishing to join the Junior Club should phone Barney Woolley, EV 2-9992, or Doug Blackstock, EV 5-2991, after five-thirty.

Leading times in the first race of the season were lofts of Dick Roe, 1 hour, 33 minutes, 37 seconds; Tony Birthwhistle, 1:36:25; Doug Blackstock, 1:36:56; Bob Packford, 1:37:18; Ken Mawdsley, 1:37:22.

QUEBECERS:

'Need English For Business'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Even if Quebec province decides to adopt French as its only official language, Quebecers will still have to learn English because it is the business language of the North American continent, the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism was told Tuesday night.

This view, and others like it, were expressed in Rimouski—a centre of the lower St. Lawrence region 170 miles northeast of Quebec City where 98 per cent of the population is of French origin.

Meanwhile in Moncton, N.B., a French - speaking Protestant minister told another session that religion is a major cause of French - English friction in Canada.

About 500 community leaders attended the evening session in Rimouski of five commission members under co - chairman Davidson Dunton. The other half of the commission, led by co - chairman Andre Laurendeau, drew an estimated 300 participants in Moncton.

Optometrist Jean-Louis Desrosiers of Mont-Joli, Que., told the Rimouski meeting that Quebec should consider becoming a unilingual state.

Quebecers have no objection to learning English on cultural grounds, he said, but it is frustrating to have to learn it for economic survival.

STILL NEED ENGLISH

Guy d'Anjou of Mont-Joli said Quebec might well become unilingual but this would not eliminate the need to learn English, North America's business language.

The Moncton protestant minister, Rev. Maurice Boillat, expressed concern over the close relationship between language and religion in Canada.

He said people object to learning French because the history of the French - Canadian coincides with that of the Roman Catholic Church.

Mr. Boillat was challenged by Gerard Marcoux, chairman of the discussion group, who said there is strong reaction to Confederation in Quebec and "there may be more atheists in Quebec than in any other part of Canada."

Dr. Lea Allenach, a member of the Moncton school board, said bilingualism in Canada is possible.

"The New Brunswick Home and School Federation is pressing for French earlier in the schools," he said. "English and French must act now with bold, new and fast-moving steps."

Germans Flee In Boat

MALMOE, Sweden (UPI)—Four East Germans commandeered a small open boat to flee under cover of darkness to Sweden and asked for political asylum, police said Tuesday night.

'HALF-GASSED HUBBIES' POSE UNION PROBLEM

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The "beer break" is a secondary issue at stake in a contract dispute between California beer distributors and the Teamsters' Union.

Bottlers in the warehouses now get a 15-minute beer break in the morning and again in the afternoon—and drivers who are out on the road all day can have "all the cold beer they can drink in half an hour after their run."

An industry spokesman said Tuesday that "some of the wives have complained their husbands come home half-gassed at times, so we propose instead that we give them a six-pack each a week." In place of the beer breaks, the employers propose the traditional coffee break.

The teamsters have said they do not plan to strike over the issue.

Charge 'Absurd' Druggists State

Charges by an MP that a provincial cabinet order is preventing competition in the drug business were branded absurd today by a spokesman for the B.C. Pharmaceutical Association.

Ron Basford, Liberal MP for Vancouver-Burrard, told the House of Commons special committee on drugs that the cabinet order is depriving low income groups from shopping for low cost drugs.

He said the committee should summon B.C. Attorney-General Robert Bonner to explain.

Mr. Bonner said Mr. Basford should know the attorney-general does not answer for health legislation—that would be the responsibility of Health Minister Eric Martin.

However, he added that the cabinet order in question was merely approval of bylaws drawn up by the B.C. Pharmaceutical Association.

Mr. Bonner said the cabinet accepts bylaws from a number of professional groups in B.C. and makes them law provided they have the approval of the organizations involved.

NO ADVERTISING

The contentious order, dated last Dec. 31, says that pharmacists may not advertise their professional services.

Douglas A. Denholm, registrar of the B.C. Pharmaceutical Association, said some druggists were running radio and newspaper ads giving the price of prescriptions and implying their competitors drugs were not of the same quality.

He said the bylaw was recommended by the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association after a two-year study of ethics and business practices.

B.C. was the first province to implement it, Mr. Denholm said.

He said druggists are simply adopting the same code against advertising used by such other professional groups as dentists and architects.

FREE CHOICE

"This does not stop people from choosing where they buy drugs if price is their prime consideration."

One Vancouver druggist is challenging the validity of the bylaw in the Supreme Court, Mr. Denholm said.

He said Mr. Basford's statement was absurd and apparently based on lack of information.

"I have already dictated a letter to him putting him straight," he said.

Sailor Jumped Ship Here, Appeals Ouster

OTTAWA (CP)—Panagiotas Giauzis, a Greek sailor who jumped ship in Victoria last August, will appeal Friday to the immigration appeal board against a deportation order.

Giaouzis, 20, was arrested in Calgary in March and charged with illegal entry. He served 30 days in jail and then was ordered deported on grounds he had entered Canada illegally.

Glouzis, who is free on bond, was married in Calgary in January to a Greek girl who is in Canada legally as a landed immigrant. She is not affected by the deportation order.

Separatism Study Launched by Que.

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — A legislative committee loaded with "name members" and billed as Quebec's version of the bilingualism and biculturalism commission decided Tuesday to launch a "serious and complete" study on separatism.

The 15 - member bi-partisan committee agreed unanimously to empower a group of experts to probe "the possible repercussions of independence in Quebec."

WIDE RANGE

The inquiry will cover the wide range of economic, social and cultural considerations inherent in a separate French-Canada.

It will be the first official study of the issue in provincial history.

Union Nationale opposition leader Daniel Johnson, who pushed for the probe, said it was necessary to provide some basic answers on the consequences separatism from the rest of Canada might mean for Quebec.

Municipal affairs minister Pierre Laport, chairman of the constitutional committee and one of five cabinet ministers on it, supported the move and promised to make the detailed arrangements for the study.

Among others who spoke in favor of the special inquiry was resources minister Rene Levesque, who set off a new controversy over Quebec's status in Confederation with a weekend speech terming co-operative federalism a "mess" and calling for "associate state" status for this province.

He suggested specifically that the inquiry look into the 1905 separation of Sweden and Norway, a move which he said "didn't lead to any mailbox bombings."

NEWEST GALLERY in New York is also most talked-about one. Officially known as "Gallery of Modern Art, including the Huntington Hartford Collection," the 10-storey structure in mid-town Manhattan was built by millionaire Huntington Hartford as a showplace for his own collection and for visiting exhibits of quality works from last 200 years. It has been dubbed the "gallery of unfashionable art" because of its builder's taste for realism and dislike for abstract works. (CP photo.)

COLUMBIA TREATY HEARING

'Scandalous' Says Fulton Of Magazine Criticism

OTTAWA (CP)—A criticism of the Columbia River Treaty called The Columbia River Scandal is itself a scandal, former justice minister Davie Fulton said Tuesday.

The article by civil engineer James Ripley, editor of the trade publication Engineering and Contract Record, was drawn to Mr. Fulton's attention twice as he completed his testimony to the Commons external affairs committee.

The committee is studying the 1961 treaty negotiated while Mr. Fulton headed the federal-British Columbia team, and also the subsequent protocol.

James Byrne, parliamentary secretary to the labor minister, suggested the article is in contempt of the committee. Mr. Ripley, it was noted, is expected to be back before the committee Friday when Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton concludes his exidence against the treaty.

John Turner, parliamentary secretary to the minister of northern affairs and national resources, suggested some sections are libelous.

"The article is scandalous-not the treaty," said Mr. Fulton. He had talked to Mr. Ripley before and he was surprised that much of the article was bald statement of fact that just was not true.

Mr. Turner said it was irresponsible journalism. Did Mr. Fulton agree that the treaty turns the Columbia River basin over to foreign control?

Definitely not, said the B.C. Conservative leader. He also rejected the allegation that the treaty was born from motives of political expediency on the federal and B.C. levels.

The article was "manifestly false" in saying the treaty curbs rights of diversion and an "extraordinary misapprehension" of the treaty was displayed.

On other matters Mr. Fulton replied to arguments that the U.S. wrote most of the treaty by saying that a Canadian draft was used.

He said the treaty is largely unchanged by the protocol, aside from arranging to sell power in the U.S. for an advance lump-sum amount.

He said B.C. had vetoed the East Kootenay diversion and dams in the McNaughton plan pressed as an alternative to the treaty and that this had been done after the start of negotiations which caused some awkwardness.

He insisted under close questioning by Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) and Colin Cameron (NDP—Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) that in his view Canada has the perfect legal right to divert out of the Columbia basin in Canada for non-power use and that incidental power production in that process was permitted.

But he agreed that the decision to divert in future years, while specifically provided legally, would rest on various factors.

These Convenient Gadgets Help Make Camping Fun

By PENNY SAVER

Planning a camping trip or boating excursion for the holiday weekend? Then, here are some helpful hints for making your outing even more fun.

A necessary item for every outing is some type of flashlight or lantern. And, one I found today is particularly useful on land or water. Lantern is powerful, versatile and completely waterproof and unbreakable.

It can be used as an ordinary spotlight or signal light and an added feature is that it floats. Price is $6.50.

The true outdoorsman always makes his bed under the stars. But, when the wind creeps through the zipper of his sleeping bag he's likely to start wishing for the warmth of a cabin, or at least a sleeping bag liner.

These liners are priced at $3.50 and can be easily slipped in and out of a sleeping bag. They are made of warm colorfast flannel, are easily laundered, and will draft-proof the zipper of any sleeping bag.

Finished size of these liners is 36 by 75 inches and weight is only 18 ounces.

Another handy gadget to carry is a campstove lighter that sells for $1.29. No matches are needed. These lighters can be successfully used in wind or rain.

Simply slip flint into end of lighter and press lever on side of handle. Pressure releases spark. Presto! You light your stove.

Lighters are safe and sure and are guaranteed for one year. Handle holds a three-year supply of flints.

Make your next outing a real pleasure trip with the convenience of these items. But, first call Penny at 382-3131.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

Use Grosgrain Back Of Sweater Buttonholes

"Dear Eunice:

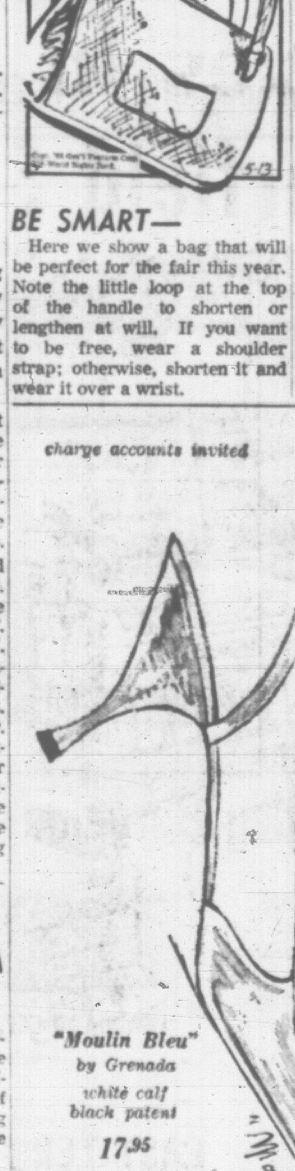
"Are there any special precautions necessary in making machine buttonholes in a hand knit sweater?" Miss J.E.

Dear Miss J.E.:

It is preferable to attach grosgrain ribbon to the wrong side of your sweater before making the buttonholes. The purpose of the ribbon is to prevent sagging or stretching of the sweater fronts, as well as adding a backing for a more even buttonhole. (Often the grosgrain ribbon is placed on the right side of the sweater for decorative purposes.)

Easy Way to Get In Back Zipper Blouse

Mrs. F. says: When your overblouse has a back zipper which opens on both ends, turn your blouse around, back in the front, and close zipper about three inches. Next, shift the blouse around and slip your arms in and continue to close the zipper the rest of the way. (It saves your patience and keeps you from standing on your head.)



BE SMART—

Here we show a bag that will be perfect for the fair this year. Note the little loop at the top of the handle to shorten or lengthen at will. If you want to be free, wear a shoulder strap; otherwise, shorten it and wear it over a wrist.

Mrs. Johnston Heads YM-YMCA Auxiliary

Mrs. Alan Macfarlane presided at annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the YM-YWCA, held in the home of Mrs. George Walton. Following the business session a Chinese luncheon was served.

Mrs. H. C. Johnston is the new president: Mrs. J. A. Wallace, vice-president; Mrs. P. C. Meredith, second vice-president; Mrs. G. T. Burr, secretary; Mrs. N. A. McDiarmid, assistant secretary; Mrs. J. Williams, treasurer, and Mrs. R. C. Ellis, assistant treasurer.

A donation of $200 was made to send several boys to the "Y" summer camp and $450 was voted toward purchase of a public address system to be used for "Y" activities.

Mrs. Logan Mayhew was named convener of the annual bridge marathon to start again next October.

Large Hats Are In ... Watch Out for Brim!

Suddenly the fashion scene is brimful of pretty hats! Not in a long time have there been so many fashion-conscious women wearing so many styles of millinery. One of this year's most popular hats is wide-brimmed completely flattering.

A world-famous make-up authority advises that when you wear a wide-brimmed style, take extra special care in applying your make-up so that your individuality is not overshadowed. To add a light touch and accent to your face and your eyes, use one or more of the fabulous new pastel rouges. They highlight, accent and camouflage.

Eyes will shine from beneath the widest hat brim when they are spotlighted by light misty shades of eye-shadow in the misty blue, green, lilac or lime eye shadow colors. Eye-liner and mascara wand should be applied luxuriously for the most dramatic effects.

Brighten your total make-up picture by using a pastel rouge in a shade to blend with your lipstick. Apply the color to your cheeks and to your forehead and chin as well.

Pastel rouge shades are so soft that they will create a natural and wonderfully new look that is sure to glow from beneath the widest brim.

This is the time of year when arms, which have been covered by coats, suits and long sleeves, are suddenly spotlighted. The sleeveless styles that continue in spring and summer fashion importance, year after year, will be worn throughout the coming season. This world-famous beauty authority advises taking special care of arms that have been under cover.

If necessary, remove any fuzz from your arms with a depilatory, and keep them soft and smooth with Swedish formula hand creme. Apply the creme after you have used the depilatory, as well as every night at bedtime and after long days spent in the sun.

If your arms need toning, this special exercise is recommended. Stand erect with arms extended forward at shoulder level. Keeping them perfectly straight, stretch your right arm five times as if you were reaching for an imaginary object. Now return to your first position and stretch your left arm five times. Do this exercise as often as possible during the day and firmness will soon return.

For complete arm grooming try a popular deodorant that is refreshingly fragrant and extremely gentle to the skin. After the application, powder under your arms and be sure to buff down the powder with the back of the puff so it will not lodge in skin creases and look white.

With this beauty ritual, you will be sure of the prettiest arms, ready to be viewed in your prettiest sleeveless fashions.

Two pounds haddock, sole, or other fish fillets, 1 teaspoon salt, dash pepper, 1 pound fresh asparagus, cooked, ¼ cup melted butter or other fat, lemon-butter sauce, 2 tablespoons slivered, toasted almonds.

SPADEA DESIGNER PATTERN

There is nothing like the fit of a bias cut dress, according to Emilio Pucci. Here is his contribution to flatter the feminine figure. He darts in the front on a sharp angle for the most subtle kind of fit. The easy A-line skirt is introduced by a shaped band that swirls round the hips on a dashing diagonal course. Without a superfluous detail to its name, this newly understated kind of chic makes headlines on the current after-six scene in faille, sheer wool, silk or rayon crepe; day and night, it dances right through summer in gay cotton prints, ribbed or eyelet pique, silk or flax linen. To retain the smoothly flowing silhouette resulting from its all-bias construction, we suggest fully lining the dress. To select your correct size, use Spadea's exclusive ready-to-wear size chart.

DEAR ABBY . . .

End It—Now!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am involved with a married man. We have loved each other deeply and have for many years. We know our relationship is wrong, but we have always been very discreet as I wouldn't hurt his family for the world. In the beginning we agreed not to disrupt his family, but now he has started to talk of divorcing his wife to marry me. Abby, I can't let that happen. His wife recently had a change-of-life baby, and she couldn't manage without him. He is financially unable to support two families. How can I make him see that he has to stick with his family without losing him completely? He's the only man I have ever loved.

DISTRESSED

DEAR DISTRESSED: As long as you continue to see him, you are encouraging him to leave his family for you. It is more painful to cut off a puppy's tail an inch at a time. End the relationship in one clean break. It will be painful to both of you, but if you allow this affair to continue on any basis, two innocent families could suffer from your selfishness.

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 years old and I dress like a lady, act like a lady and expect to be treated like one. Recently, while shopping in a supermarket, I pulled my cart into the first aisle when one smart checker snapped his fingers at me and said, "Next aisle!" There was no checker there, so I asked, "Where is the checker?" He barked, "KEEP YOUR SHIRT ON!" The checker never did come, so I was ordered back in the first aisle. As I was emptying my basket, he snapped his fingers at me again and said, "Tax items first, sister." Then he started throwing my food around, so I said, "Don't throw that food—we have to eat it." He asked who I thought I was, and I told him I was a cash customer, that's who I was. Then a man who looked like the manager walked by and said, "Hold down the noise, please, Miss." Do you think I should let it go, or should I go to the higher authorities and demand an apology? This is a big chain store market.

DEMANDS RESPECT

DEAR DEMANDS: No. There must be another market in your neighborhood where the service is more civil and super than at this one. Try it.

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I had a serious falling out four years ago over some lies she spread about me, and I haven't spoken to her since. I just learned that she has an incurable disease and can't last more than a year. Her husband plans to keep it from her as long as possible. Abby, I want to make up with her, and help to make her last months happier by doing what I can for her and her family. I am afraid if I suddenly go to her and offer my friendship, she will suspect the truth about herself. Yet, I don't want her to leave this world thinking I never forgave her. What should I do?

TORN

DEAR TORN: Go to her and offer her your friendship. It is not unusual for relatives to "bury the hatchet" during times of illness.

DEAR ABBY: I feel sorry for the woman whose husband never remembers her birthday. My husband never forgets mine. He wouldn't dare. His is the next day, and he always gets me a nice present so he'll be sure to get one himself. Sincerely.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Says Women Will Change IF Men Will Alter Values

Today I want to bring you another letter concerning what women think about men. I am sure you will find it amusing.

"This is in answer to your report about what men think about women. Many of the ideas I agree with myself, but some of them—WOW—they burned me.

Lowman

1. "Men can't stand women who flirt. Well, who are they flirting with, not a woman but a man who is probably flirting right back!

2. "Men can't stand women who wear too much makeup; but have you ever noticed, men sure like to look at them.

3. "Men can't stand women who have their hair cut like a boy's, but I have seen many men who look like they are going to try for a dog tag.

4. "About slacks—just suppose a gal did wear a slack pair of slacks and went with her husband or boy friend somewhere where the other gals had on tight stretch pants. Just who do you think her darling would be busy looking at? He would be looking at the tight stretch pants and I will bet my tight stretch pants that I am right.

"I feel this way. If men would stop looking at things they say they can't stand, women would stop wearing them. Let's face it, women like to attract men, and as long as what they do does attract, they are going to keep right on the same way.

"So, if the 'dear old dads' want a change, they are the ones to make it. I hope you print this. Maybe some of the guys will quit griping. It's their fault. I think you have a great column and I read it all the time. I just had to defend women."

If you would like to have my leaflet, "Keeping Romance Alive," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 63 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Urgent Need Pinpointed For Public Health Nurses

OTTAWA (CP)—The need for public health nurses in Canada has never been as urgent as it is today, the national meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses was told recently.

Mrs. Harold Webster, president of the board of directors of the Victoria branch, was in Ottawa for the meeting.

Mrs. F. S. Martin of Ottawa, presenting the report of the advisory nursing committee, said ever-changing legislation in all fields of medical care made it imperative for the order to emphasize to its members the importance of being highly qualified in public health nursing.

"The VON will not be found wanting in fulfilling its role of service to the community and its dedication to the betterment of mankind," she said.

Mrs. Martin reported that during the academic year 1963-64, 48 bursaries were awarded to student nurses by the order. Of these, 42 were awarded to students pursuing the basic public health course.

The meeting also heard reports from provincial branches of the order, which is established in every province except Prince Edward Island.

The 200 delegates to the national meeting also heard a discussion on the expanding program of home care.

Eskimo Girl First Graduate In Nursing

Miss Pokiak, from the Northwest Territories, said her eventual goal was one of the nursing stations of the western Arctic — preferably Aklavik or Tuktoyaktuk. The latter, a settlement in the Mackenzie River delta, is her home town.

The Eskimo girl took her early schooling at a Roman Catholic mission school in Aklavik. Her grade 12 was obtained at an Indian-Eskimo school at Yellowknife. She graduated from the Winnipeg General Hospital after three years of study there.

Her course was financed by the northern affairs department under its program aimed at finding careers for Eskimos.

Presentation At ORP Tea

A presentation of a pair of cane gliders to Miss E. Louise Bartlett, supervisor of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society's clinic, formed highlight of successful tea and sale of home cooking and novelties, held by the Order of the Royal Purple Victoria Lodge No. 5 in the Elks Hall on Cormorant Street.

Presentation was made by president, Mrs. R. C. McGirr, and district deputy, Mrs. E. Robinson, Alberni.

Sum of $200 was realized and will be used for group's charities and Purple Cross Fund, the Elks' dominion project.

Presiding at the refreshment table were Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. M. Mackie, Mrs. H. Buxton and Miss Bartlett.

Gratitude and pleasure are expressed in the smiles of Miss E. Louise Bartlett, right, as she accepts cane gliders from Mrs. R. C. McGirr.

Bread, cheese and an apple made up the unusual menu of a festive dinner recently given in London, Ont. The money saved by the comparatively small cost of this austerity meal was sent to the Unitarian Service Committee, 63 Sparks Street, Ottawa 4, to feed hungry children overseas.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Robert Riggle, age 13, of Milwaukee, Wis., for his question:

What is the magnitude of the sun?

Magnitude means greatness, and objects, like people, can display greatness in different ways. Our sun is a star, and the magnitude of stars is a measure of their brightness. But distance dims even the stars, and seen from the earth their true magnitudes are not what they appear to be.

You can take your pick and quote the sun's magnitude as minus 26.72 or plus 4.76. Astronomers agree on the amount of light shed by our dazzling sun, but they have two scales for measuring it. The brightness of a star has an apparent magnitude and an absolute magnitude.

Apparent magnitude is the brightness the stars appear to have when seen from the earth. Stars, of course, vary in brightness and also in distance. Apparent magnitude makes no allowance for the fact that distance makes all stars look dimmer. The dimmest stars we can see are magnitude 6, and the brightest of stars is Sirius, apparent magnitude of minus 1.6.

Seen from a distance of some 93 million miles, our sun has an apparent magnitude of minus 26.72—which is 10 billion times brighter than bright Sirius. Actually, Sirius is about 100 times brighter than our sun, but it is more than 50 million-million miles away from us.

Absolute magnitude is the brightness the stars would have if they all were at the same distance from us of 10 parsecs. This way we can compart them one with another. Some are far more brilliant than others. The brightest are stars of absolute magnitude minus 9, almost a million times more brilliant than our sun. The sun's absolute magnitude, as seen from 10 parsecs away, is 4.76. This distance equals 32.6 light years, which equals 19.5 trillion ordinary miles.

Sun Average Star

In degrees of magnitude, the dimmest stars have the largest plus numbers, and the brightest have the largest minus numbers. This system dates back some 2,000 years when star brightness was listed in six classes. The dimmest were sixth and the brightest were first magnitude. Later, heavenly bodies more brilliant than first magnitude were measured. These are graded from zero through minus 1, minus 2 and 3—all the way up to minus 26.7.

Astronomers agreed to make the orders of magnitude differ by 2½. Magnitude 2 is 2½ times brighter than third magnitude and 2½ times dimmer than first magnitude. With every five orders the stars get brighter or dimmer by 100 times. A first magnitude star is 100 times brighter than a sixth and 100 times dimmer than a heavenly body of magnitude minus 4.

The sun, of course, is the most brilliant object in our heavens. It appears so brilliant because it is so close to us. Seen from out in space, lined up at an equal distance with other stars, the brightness of our sun is scaled down to its proper value. On the scale of absolute magnitude, it is an average star, brighter than some and dimmer than others.

Under the sandy desert of Egypt and under the silty banks of the Nile there are sturdy layers of hard bedrock. Up and down the valley there are layers of limestone and granite, diorite and basalt. All these rocks make tough and durable building stones, and many of them could be quarried near the surface of the ground.

The stones for the pyramids probably were quarried near the river at some distance, perhaps miles, from where the buildings now stand. They could have been floated from the quarries to the building sites on giant rafts. Many of the building blocks weigh 2½ tons. They were quarried with wooden wedges and copper chisels set with precious stones. Experts still are uncertain of exactly how all the details of Egyptian pyramid building were carried out.

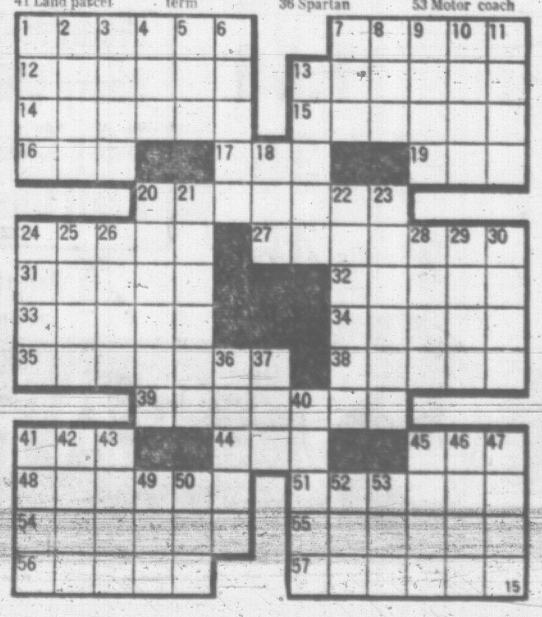
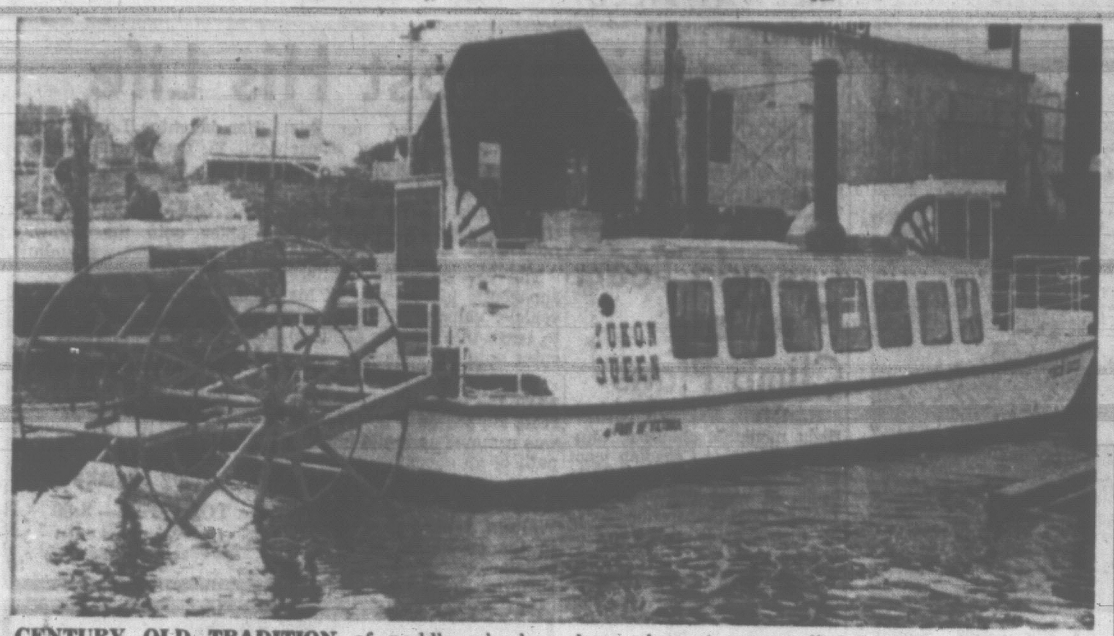
DUCKLING ALREADY IN SOUP (LADLE)?— This little duckling, only seven hours old, doesn't know it, but it's flirting with danger to perch in a soup ladle. The duckling is owned by Dick Wintrip, Aberdeen, Wash. (AP Wirephoto.)





CENTURY-OLD TRADITION of paddle wheel ships returns to Vancouver Island this summer with Yukon Queen, a tourist scow that will make trips up and down Victoria's inner harbor, recalling days when steamers plied between Victoria and Fraser River ports carrying gold-rush miners. Here she is seen being fitted out at local shipyard. Project is being launched by a private concern.

Indians Must Give Up Old Ways to Survive

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Indians of the Queen Charlotte Islands, long dependent on fishing for a livelihood, will be asked to give it up and train for more profitable jobs in the forest industries.

Fred Clark, regional supervisor of Indian agencies, disclosed this Tuesday night. He said most of the troubles besetting the Haida Indians of Masset result from their inability to compete with bigger, faster, more modern boats in the coastal salmon fleet.

"The fishery won't support these people any longer and other jobs will have to be found," Mr Clark told an interviewer.

Indian Commissioner J. V. Boys said a survey of job opportunities on the islands of the central B.C. coast now is under way and will be followed by a job-training program.

"Indians are good loggers and many of the Haidas from Skidegate hold responsible jobs in logging camps on the Islands," he said.

"We are sending a job placement officer up to Masset and will pay half of the Indians' salaries until they are trained for the job."

The economic plight of Indians at Masset was spotlighted recently when workers at the Queen Charlotte Island Canneries Ltd., refused to work until assistant production manager Fred Steel was fired. Steel paid a $200 fine for driving without due care and attention following an accident in which a young Indian was killed and another hurt last October. The cannery workers said the fine was not punishment enough.

Mr. Clark said the Indians at Masset once owned a number of seiners but they got into debt with the canners and lost their boats. They now were operating "with a mosquito fleet, about 40 or 50 open boats with outboards, and are not able to follow the salmon runs down to Rivers Inlet and the Fraser River where the big catches are made."

ONLY 50 FISHING

The Indian population at Masset now is more than 800 but there are jobs for only about 60 women in the cannery and only about 50 men are fishing, Mr. Clark said. He estimated the women make between $1,000 and $1,200 each for the six-month season and each fisherman grosses about $1,400.

At the village of Skidegate on the south end of the islands the Indians have turned to logging and there is virtually no unemployment, he said.

He felt that the Haidas were just as adept with power saws as their forefathers were with stone axes they used to hew out giant dugout canoes and whittle 60-foot totem poles.

New Northern Service Planned by Air Lines

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—British Columbia Air Lines Limited applied to the air transport board Tuesday for a licence to operate an irregular service to four small communities spaced along one of its regular air routes.

The application was immediately opposed by two other firms which provide the communities with a charter service.

BCAL hopes to service Porcher Island, Banks Island, Truch Island and Hartley Bay. All are located near the company's air route between here and Ocean Falls to the south.

OPPOSITION

Mr. Anderson said his company's revenue from its charter service to the communities would be cut if the licence was granted.

He also said the Grumman Goose aircraft used by BCAL on its Prince Rupert-Ocean Falls service was too large to land at some of the places named in the application.

Mr. Robbins said BCAL was "applying for something developed by others." He said his firm did considerable charter business with most points named in the application.

B.C. Air Lines general manager Gordon Best said his company had many requests to start the proposed service. He said the requests came from fishing companies in the area, the provincial health department, the social welfare department and the Indian affairs department.

Sooke Cadet Chosen for Trip South of Border

Four air cadets from lower Vancouver Island will join 53 other air cadets from throughout the province this summer as they take part in scholarship and exchange visit programs.

Winner of the most sought after award, the Air Cadet League's goodwill "exchange visits" project, is WO 2 Ronald J. Jupp of Sooke. Mr. Jupp's award will take him to the United States this summer.

Cpl. Bryan Strickland, 3038 Oakdowne Road, and Cpl. John A. Wallace, 4301 Quadra Street, Victoria, have been awarded an RCAF flying scholarship which will include 35 hours of pilot training at a civilian flying club or school. Location has not been announced.

Flt. Sgt. John S. MacQuarrie, 1190 Hewlett Place, Victoria, will be among 240 cadets from across Canada who will report to RCAF Station Camp Borden in early July to commence seven weeks of leadership training.

Special training awards are provided by the Air Cadet League of Canada and the Royal Canadian Air Force.

A newly instituted summer bush survival course will take place in the Jasper area of Alberta during the first two weeks of August. The thirty selected cadets for this course are from other parts of Canada.

NANAIMO — Two men who claimed they were not fighting but were "just rassling" didn't impress Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts in police court on Monday.

He fined James Lalonde, 26, and John Day, both of Nanaimo, $50 each for creating a disturbance by fighting in the driveway of a home at 165 Strickland Street Saturday.

Funeral Thursday For Former Scribe

Funeral services will be held at McCall's Chapel Thursday for Roy (Cap) Thorsen, well-known former Victoria Times reporter, who died Tuesday in Veterans' Hospital.

The service will start at 3:15 p.m. Rev. Douglas Kendall will officiate.

A veteran of the Second World War, Mr. Thorsen's death follows a prolonged illness originating from a wound received on the western front.

He was 47 years old.

He was known by hundreds of sportsmen on Vancouver Island for his fishing and hunting column which appeared in the Times in the late 40s and early 50s.

Coroner Named For Duncan Area

VICTORIA (CP) — Duncan Kennedy McAdam has been appointed district coroner for the Duncan area.

A provincial order-in-council Tuesday said Mr. McAdam will succeed James Slater Goodbrand of Duncan, who has resigned.

MORE USE, MORE SHIPS, SAYS PREMIER

The government may eventually build three or four big ferries for its new service between northern Vancouver Island and Prince Rupert, Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Tuesday.

The first ferry will go into service in May 1966.

Mr. Bennett said it will carry passengers, cars and trucks only—no bulk freight.

The government Ferry Authority will see how good the business is before deciding to build more ships, he said.

"If the summer experience is good—we can let a contract for the second one," he said.

DUNCAN BRIEFS

$18,000 Loan Put to Voters

DUNCAN—A referendum for authority to borrow $18,000 for the newly planned Cowichan Valley Forest Museum will be put to ratepayers sometime in June, it was decided at a council meeting Monday.

Council also agreed to write to postal authorities in Ottawa for the installation of more mail boxes in the city.

It also approved a resolution asking for legislation to permit city councils to control junkyards situated near city approaches.

The resolution will be submitted to the next meetings of Island and B.C. municipal association.

Appointment

Ald. B. W. W. Cocks will be the city's representative at the May 25 meeting of the newly formed Duncan and Community Family Emergency service to be held at the Margaret Moss Health Centre.

Road-e-o Winner

He will compete in the B.C. finals at Cloverdale on May 23.

Ram Goes South

A ram from the well-known flock of South Down sheep owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Shaw, Norcross Road, is being shipped to a breeder in Pontiac, Michigan.

The buyer was so impressed by the Cowichan South Downs on exhibition at the Portland International Fair last year that he ordered a ram sight unseen.

Talk on Museum

Gerald Wellburn, of Deerholme, will speak on the newly-planned Cowichan Valley Forest Museum at the annual installation banquet of the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce to be held at the Tzouhalem Hotel Thursday.

Found Growing

The Duncan fund for Alberni Valley flood victims stands at $2,700, acting mayor Robert Mason reported to city council.

"The fund is coming along very well here," he said. "We are still looking for donations."

Parksville Man Killed On Holiday

WELLINGTON (Reuters)—A 21-year-old Canadian on a working holiday in New Zealand was killed today when he was struck by an electric train on the line near Wellington.

He was Charles Baker, from Parksville, Vancouver Island, B.C.

Baker, who is believed to have been in New Zealand for nearly two years, was employed as an earth-moving machine operator working on the construction of a new motorway running alongside the railway line.

A fellow worker told police he saw Baker climb the fence between the road and the railway. The train blocked his vision and when it had passed he saw Baker had been hit.

Sellers and Bride Launch Counter-Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Peter Sellers and his wife, Britt Eklund, have answered the $1,500,000 suit against them by Twentieth Century-Fox by suing for more than twice as much.

Fox sued Miss Eklund for alleged breach of contract and Sellers for allegedly inducing the breach. The studio complained she refused to continue her role in the film "Guns of Batasi".

Sellers and his wife filed a cross-complaint Monday asking for $2,000,000 damages and an additional $2,000,000 in punitive damages on the grounds that Fox's suit constituted malicious prosecution and abuse of legal process. The cross-complaint contends the contract was invalid and the studio knew it.

Sellers also said he suffered damage to his health and reputation as a result of the suit. He suffered a heart attack more than a month ago and spent several weeks in hospital.

Danish Netters Upset Spaniards

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Denmark qualified for the quarter-finals of the European zone Davis Cup tennis eliminations Tuesday with a 3-2 upset victory over Spain in the second round.

Denmark will play the winner between Germany and Russia in the quarter-final round.

TOP CANADIAN crackerbox speedboat last season, Bunny Jeboult's Hot Box from Coquitlam will be the boat to beat Sunday at the Victoria Day Regatta on Elk Lake. Seven classes of powerboats are scheduled to race, starting at 1 p.m.

Boat Rivalry Ready to Boil At Elk Lake Regatta Sunday

A rivalry between two crackerbox class speedboats that could end in the North American championship for either one will reach a full boil Sunday when the boats compete in the Victoria Day Regatta at Elk Lake.

The regatta, starting at 1 p.m., is the first meet of the season for B.C. powerboat racers, and will draw about 35 boats from B.C. and Washington.

It will be the first time Hot Box, driven by Bunny Jeboult of Coquitlam, and Besty's Baby, driven by Ron Bestward of Hatzic Lake, have met since engaging in a hot and heavy rivalry last season.

The winner of Sunday's regatta will be considered Canadian favorite to capture the North American championships at Alouette Lake, near Haney, in June.

Last year's rivalry resulted in the 80-mph Hot Box winning second place in the American Power Boat Association high point standings, and Besty's Baby flipping three times.

The season before last, however, Besty's Baby was awarded number "1" as high point crackerbox in North America, and Bestward promised he will be back with revenge. Sunday will be the start of it.

Both drivers may have to contend with a dark horse, however.

Last winter the father and son team of Max and Mike Douet of Vancouver moved their fast-but-uncontrollable crackerbox Buckshe into the rumpus room to get it into condition.

HYDROS TOO

Besides the crackerboxes, four classes of outboard hydros are scheduled, and the 145 and 150 class inboard hydros.

Dave Cameron of Victoria will be trying for an unprecedented third straight win of the Gerald Udal Memorial trophy in the BU runabout division.

Ramon Ordano from Chemainus, B.C. 145 champion, will drive his 80 mph Wee Musketeer against stiff Canadian and American competition.

A radical new 150 class boat, Teaser 10, built by Jim Hutchison of Vanucouver, expected to be able to travel over 100 mph, will make its first appearance in Victoria.

Lock Madill, who will race against Teaser 10, has said the hydroplane is "25 years of Hutchison's skill and experience, all put into one boat and motor."

The organizers, Victoria Inboard Outboard Association have arranged for plenty of free spectator parking at the lake.

FREEWAY PILEUP

Caution Cost His Life

VANCOUVER (CP) — Arthur Walters, 56, who constantly preached caution on the highway died practicing it Tuesday.

Walter jammed on his brakes when he saw a car about to drive out into the 60-mile-an-hour Tsawwassen highway traffic. This set off a chain reaction crash involving four cars.

The car following Walters apparently hit the rear of his vehicle, causing Walter's car to crash into the car about to enter onto the highway.

His car then careened toward the opposite side of the road, flipped onto its side and was rammed as it slid into the path of an oncoming car.

Mrs. Jean Ostendorf, driver of the northbound car that hit Walters' vehicle as it skidded in the oncoming lanes, is in satisfactory condition after suffering head lacerations.

Her daughter, Louise Ostendorf, 18, was treated at hospital for minor injuries and released.

Canada Team Finalizes Climb Plans

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI)— Eight mountain climbers, comprising the first Canadian team to attempt to scale Himalayan peaks in West Pakiston, were making final preparations today for their assault on the roof of the world.

A Canadian high commission spokesman said today, the team headed by Dr. E. F. Roots, 41, will attempt to climb Mount Hachindar Kish in the mighty Karakoram range. Exact height of the mountain, which was selected for the team by the Pakistan government, is not known, but it is officially listed as in excess of 23,000 feet.

Roots, who is co-ordinator of Canada's polar continental shelf project, left Karachi Tuesday for Rawalpindi by train, where he will confer with officials and make last-minute preparations before commencing the climb.

Accompanying Roots to Rawalpindi were Carlisle S. Irwin, 27, a Calgary, Alta., geologist, and Dr. Abdul Momin Khalifa, 34, a Montreal physician, who will visit relatives in the Rawalpindi area before commencing the climb.

Five other team members include: Robert Donald Lyon, 27, Powell River, B.C., a school teacher; and deputy expedition leader Donald M. E. Poole, 26, Courtenay, B.C., engineer; and John F. Ricker, 26, Nanaimo, B.C., geologist.

Australia Imposes Dumping Duties

CANBERRA (Reuters) — Australia has imposed dumping duties on aluminum foil following a tariff board finding that foil has been dumped from the United States, Britain and other unnamed countries.

The tariff board reported that export prices from the United States were, in some cases, more than 30 per cent below established normal rates.

AFTER LONDON

Assistant Back In Boss's Chair

TOM LONEY
. . . Saanich best

Tom Loney, who left the fragrant dells of Saanich for the traffic smells of London, is back —with a better job.

He was assistant municipal planner for Saanich for three and a half years, then left about a year ago to work in England.

Now he's back as head planner, after his former chief Tony Parr left for a job in Burnaby.

And the wide-open spaces of Saanich offer him plenty of scope after his London job: trying to help unsnarl the city's headache size traffic problem.

CONGESTION

"It's hard to imagine just how congested London is," he says.

"They're talking now of putting the parking meter rates up by 200 to 300 per cent to try to keep cars out of central London.

"And you're not allowed to build an office building in London now, or anything that's going to add to the commuter load."

Instead, the county council is encouraging housing developments to try to catch up with the need for homes.

Trying to commute to London by car is a dicey business anyway, he points out—the 11 miles from his home to his office took three and a half hours to negotiate at some times.

NIGHT IS BEST

In the dead of night, the time could be cut down to half an hour.

Mr. Loney was concerned specifically in London with finding routes for some of the major proposed traffic arteries, and London's splintered street development didn't help.

In his office here, he has a map of 18th century London, with its narrow, twisted streets and arms-width alleys.

Next to it is a map of the same area today. It looks about the same, except for more narrow, twisted streets and more arms-width alleys.

Saanich, in contrast, is a place where you can draw a good whiff of ozone down into smog-ridden lungs.

GREEN BELT

Of particular concern to Mr. Loney as a planner is the municipality's determination to establish a green belt of undeveloped countryside.

"After looking at the English experience, I'm convinced this is very important," he says.

"But we have 90 per cent of the growth of the capital area to absorb."

CANADA'S POLITICAL STALEMATE

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Pearson's Dilemma: Assault or a War of Attrition?

Hutchison

OTTAWA—After two years of disruption, the political system of Canada is slowly groping its way back to normality. But it has a long way to go and will not reach its goal without another national election. Though Mr. Diefenbaker is probably the only politician in Ottawa who favors an early election, events may produce it in the autumn. For clearly the present situation in Parliament cannot continue much longer.

Having taken office on a set of mistaken premises and irrelevant assumptions, the Pearson government made a sorry mess of its first year but is ready at last to lay down a coherent national policy, or the first elements of it. Some eighty pieces of legislation have been drafted and perhaps a quarter of them are regarded as urgent.

Yet the spring foliage and tulips had exploded on Parliament Hill before a single statute of any significance had been passed. The name of the Trans Canada Air Lines was solemnly changed and that was all.

Naturally, the government blames this stalemate on Mr. Diefenbaker, who desperately desires an election while he is still young enough to fight it. And naturally Mr. Diefenbaker blames the government, not without good evidence, for failing to do its homework and introduce its legislative program.

A parliament of minorities has been making a repulsive spectacle of itself since the election of 1962. Today, in the opinion of its wiser members, it has reached the lowest point of public esteem ever recorded. It has nowhere to go but up. This damage to Canadian democracy is the price of two inconclusive elections when the people twice refused to vote confidence in any leader or party.

The sovereign question of current politics is whether the people are now prepared to vote confidence in the Pearson government, to re-elect the Conservatives or to withhold any majority mandate. No politician knows the answer but some are eager to seek it in the open.

About a month ago a small group of leading Liberal figures, disgusted by a year of false starts and humiliating retreats, urged Mr. Pearson to end this misery and attempt a dash for freedom. The government, they said, should go to the country before midsummer on the issue of its old-age pension policy.

Mr. Pearson promptly rejected this counsel, knowing that the pension policy already was obsolete and must be replaced by an entirely different scheme acceptable to Quebec and Ontario. Besides, it would have been political madness of a peculiarly violent sort to risk an election while the government was publicly fighting the two largest provinces.

Once Mr. Pearson had reached an accord with them on pensions and taxes—a dubious accord, to be sure, but at least a breathing spell in the cold federal-provincial war — and the Liberals had won the Saskatchewan election, the political prospects looked better. The young Turks of the Liberal party renewed their demand for a poll to break the stalemate.

Again they failed to convince their leader. In any case, it was now too late for an election before autumn, since no government willingly faces the electorate in the summer holiday season. Moreover, the public, as Ottawa measures its opinion, is tired of political alarms and would resent a third election within some two years unless it was plainly unavoidable.

This argument within the Liberal hierarchy could not shake the prime minister who, during the last few weeks, has made himself the unquestioned master of his party. Mr. Pearson's mind was on more practical concerns.

The state of Parliament, as he surveys it with a deceptively boyish grin from the treasury benches, has no parallel in the past, not even in the days of Mackenzie King's first minority government.

On the one hand, the Liberal party is basically divided between its right and left wings, between its protectionists led by Mr. Gordon and its low-tariff internationalists led by Mr. Sharp, between its old guard of veterans and its recent recruits.

On the other, the Conservative

Que. MLA 'Peddled Influence'

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—Antonio Talbot, Union Nationale member for Chicoutimi and former highways minister in the Duplessis administration, today was found guilty on 13 charges of "influence peddling."

Talbot, 62, and a lawyer was fined $100 on each of the 13 charges by Sessions Court Judge Thomas Tremblay.

The charges arose out of the Salvas royal commission report, set up by Premier Jean Lesage to investigate the purchasing practices of the former Union Nationale government.

Tremblay said Talbot was saved from a jail sentence because he had not profited from "kickbacks" on materials used for road construction while he headed the highways department.

The judge also said that the Crown had not proven that Talbot had acted with malice.

Anti-Castro Raiders Hit Cuban Sugar Mill

MIAMI (AP)—The opening attack of a promised war of sabotage and harassment against the Castro regime in Cuba was reported today by an exile group —a raid on a sugar mill at Puerto Pilon.

The Revolutionary Recovery Movement (MRR) reported a successful attack on the mill, but gave no details. Puerto Pilon is on the southern coast of Oriente province, in eastern Cuba.

Three anti-Castro groups, including MRR, have announced that they planned to be fighting on Cuban soil prior to Cuba's independence anniversary May 20.

The MRR, organized in 1959 by students of Roman Catholic faith, is headed by Dr. Manuel Artime, formerly an officer in Castro's rebel army, and civilian chief of the Bay of Pigs invasion in April, 1961. He was taken prisoner but liberated with others on payment of a $500,000 indemnity.

Exile groups say additional attacks by the MRR and other groups may be expected at any time.

"This is the first of a series of attacks to come immediately," said a spokesman at MRP. "Our immediate objective is to liquidate targets vital to the hangman Castro. Later on we shall go in for establishment of large scale guerrilla forces in our homeland.

TWO ABOARD PLANE LOST IN INTERIOR

VANCOUVER (CP) — A single engine aircraft with two aboard was missing today on a flight from Vancouver to Nicola Lake.

New Look At China By Canada

THE HAGUE (CP) — Paul Martin reviewed world problems at the NATO spring council Tuesday and indicated that Canada's position on one of them—recognization of Communist China—may change early next year.

Canada doesn't recognize Red China, but the external affairs minister told the opening session of the three-day ministerial meeting that the Peking government could not be excluded indefinitely from world councils and world acceptance.

But Martin said "a grave danger exists that chances for a solution that would make provision for Formosa and its inhabitants might disappear if we do not move soon from the present static position."

The implication was that Red China may be admitted to the UN. The 1963 General Assembly voted 57 to 41 against seating Red China with a dozen abstentions. Since then France has recognized the Communist regime.

'MAY MODIFY POSITION'

Martin declared "while we have no intention of doing anything which would add to the difficulties of our friends, the realities of the situation may require some modification of our position following the 19th session of the UN assembly." The 19th session ends early in 1965.

A Canadian spokesman declined to expand on Martin's statement and said there was no immediate reaction to it at the meeting.

Sessions of the council, made up of the foreign ministers of the 15 NATO countries, are secret and summaries of speeches are made available to the press.

Martin also was blunt on several other world problems including Cyprus and he disclosed

NEW NATO secretary-general is Italian Ambassador to Paris Manlio Brosio. He succeeds Dirk Stikker of The Netherlands who retires Aug. 1 after three years in the alliance's number one spot. The appointment was approved at a three-hour secret session of the council in The Hague today.

Exasperated Pique, Says U.K. Paper

LONDON (CP)—The speech by American State Secretary Rusk at the NATO conference in The Hague shows that U.S. policy toward Cuba is "as stubborn and misguided as ever," says The Guardian of Manchester.

In its main editorial, the newspaper says American policy on Cuba is not rational.

"It is not a considered attempt to reach a definite objective so much as an act of exasperated pique."

The newspaper acknowledges that it is galling for the Americans to see a ruthless dictatorship established on their doorstep, but adds that sympathy for American anger should not lead to support for mistaken policies.

Seeks Expansion Of Canada Trade

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Charles B. Neapole, general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, said today the Soviet Union is checking into the prospects of buying 500,000 tons of Canadian wheat annually.

(Earlier this week Anastas Mikoyan, Soviet deputy premier, was quoted as telling a group of Canadian executives, including Neapole, that Russia is "ready to buy in Canada every year wheat for Far Eastern districts.")

Neapole said the Russians might buy the wheat to fill Soviet grain needs on Russia's Pacific seaboard. The long-term deal would be worth up to about $40,000,000 a year.

James A. Richardson, a Winnipeg grain merchant, said the Soviet government wanted a permanent grain supply for the Pacific seaboard because Canadian deliveries would be cheaper than the cost of moving Soviet wheat from the Ukraine.

He said the proposal was in addition to the current $500,000,000 deal under which Russia is buying Canadian wheat and flour to make up for harvest losses.

PERMANENT DEAL?

The Far Eastern deal was envisaged as a permanent trade feature, he said. According to the Soviet estimates, it would involve about 18,000,000 bushels a year.

Neapole said the two-week tour of 40 Canadian executives opened up "very definite potential" for more trade in both directions. The Canadians leave for Stockholm Thursday.

Neapole said there were "indications" that Soviet purchases of Canadian wheat to offset local shortages might rise to $1,000,000,000 over a two-year period, including the $500,000,000 supply negotiated last September.

Canada has already delivered 125,000,000 bushels of wheat under last year's deal, just over half the total. Neapole said negotiations to increase the order were still in progress in Canada.

"There is certainly a desire

SHRUM SEEKS SOVIET BIDS ON PEACE R.

MOSCOW (CP) — Russia has been invited to bid on equipment for the $800,000,000 Peace River hydro development in British Columbia, it was learned today.

The invitation was made by Dr. Gordon Shrum, co-chairman of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, who is a member of a group of Canadian executives now visiting the Soviet Union.

It is expected the Russians will send experts to B.C. to study the Authority's needs first-hand.

Little Joe Does Its Job

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (AP)—The fiery explosion of a Little Joe II rocket shattered the early morning calm today in a test of the Apollo moon spacecraft launch escape system.

Early indications from officials of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration were that the test, the first of five of the Apollo escape system, was successful. It had been delayed 24 hours because of winds and dust storm Tuesday.

Etna Subsides, Vesuvius Quiet

CATANIA (Reuters) — Molten lava flowed slowly today from the central crater of Sicily's Mount Etna. Late indications were that the nearby town of Bronte was not in danger.

Meanwhile, Mount Vesuvius, near Naples, was quiet.

'Parliament Snubbed'

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin's remarks to NATO about recognition of Communist China are another example of government contempt of Parliament, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said today.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government had been asked in the House of Commons to state its stand on China and had not given an answer.

"This is another example of the attitude of this government and reveals again its contempt for Parliament," he said.

"Such an announcement should have been made in Parliament first."

CHURCH RADIO JINGLES JANGLE EDITOR

Lonely on That Limb Without Him?

TORONTO (CP)—The United Church Observer blasts religious radio commercials that will be broadcast here starting in July.

The paper accused its church of "American religiosity at its worst" and of sacrificing good taste, dignity, theology and common sense.

The advertising project is being sponsored jointly by the United Church of Canada and the Anglican Church.

After a month of about 125 to 800 commercials a day, a survey will be taken to decide if the program will be carried on.

Rev. Keith Wollard, director of broadcasting, said in an interview the views of the paper's editor, Rev. A. C. Forrest, are not those of the United Church.

The religious messages supplied by the United Presbyterian Church in the United States are to be offered to all eight Toronto stations and others near Toronto in Oshawa, Brampton and Oakville.

Following some message, a jingle prepared by U.S. comedian Stan Freberg will be broadcast. It goes:

"Where'd you get the idea you could make it all by yourself? Doesn't it get a little lonely sometimes out on that limb without Him? It's a great life but it could be greater. Why try and go it alone? The blessings you lose may be your own."

Mr. Wollard says that contrary to what Dr. Forrest thinks the messages are not corny. He says Dr. Forrest has missed the boat and that the survey will prove it.

Rev. Roy Hord, head of the United Church's board of evangelism and social service, agreed with the bishop.

"We regard this as an opportunity to get large numbers of people talking about religious matters," he said.

De Gaulle Challenged On French NATO Policy

THE HAGUE (CP)—Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak challenged President de Gaulle today to say just how France wants to change the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Persons who attended the session described Spaak's statements as energetic and pointed, although he refrained from mentioning de Gaulle or France by name. Couve de Murville indicated he would speak in reply at a secret session later today.

Spaak criticized de Gaulle on at least three points — the internal organization of the alliance, relations between the United States and Europe, and de Gaulle's policy in Southeast Asia.

Conference sources quoted him as saying that the only area of the world in which the Allies were firmly united on policy was Germany and Berlin. All members want Germany reunited through self-determination.

SEEK LOOSE STRUCTURE

France wants the NATO structure loosened to give members a stronger voice in policy, and to cut down the dominant U.S. role. Other members believe the NATO structure should be tightened.

Today the 15 ministers met with only two aides present for each of them. The aim was to limit the risk that divisive exchanges would be leaked.

PROBLEMS FACE NATO

Hanging over the alliance are such basic questions as:

How is NATO to be re-shaped to accommodate the growing strength of Europe without spreading or weakening control over nuclear weapons?

How will Britain be linked with her continental allies in developing industrial, social and military institutions?

How are the allies going to work together to close the gap between have and have-not nations, keep world peace, reorganize trading patterns and cope with the Communist world?

Are Europe and the U.S. to move closer together in defence of the non-Communist world or drift apart?

WANTS DEFENCES RE-CAST

He wants Europeans, preferably under French leadership, to re-cast their defence on the basis of a planning staff which would co-ordinate national forces.

De Gaulle also still would like some sort of American-French-British high command to chart allied strategy on a global scale. But he has warned that in a crisis, the United States might abandon Europe rather than risk nuclear devastation.

The United States, Britain and several other European nations want closer integration of their forces and policies. Only thus, they contend, can the peoples and institutions of the new world and the old co-operate effectively.

Full Schedule of Events for Victoria Day Weekend

Victoria Day weekend has its official opening Sunday afternoon with the crowning of Miss Victoria. But, unofficially celebrations start early Friday morning with the IODE's annual flag ceremonial at the Legislative Buildings.

Following this colorful pageant the weekend celebrations will gradually work up to a great crescendo ending with a giant square dance Monday night in the Memorial Arena.

Arthur Mayse

On a Bermuda grass field off Island View Road, a little bay mare with a white star on her forehead will soon be adding new spectator thrills to an ancient sport. Her name is Pineapple, and she's a polo pony of international renown.

Her remove from the enormous Baldwin ranch on the Hawaiian island of Maui to Central Saanich is but one indication that Vancouver Island Polo Club is no longer a struggling infant.

Among others is a season schedule which includes matches with teams known wherever mallet cracks against bamboo-root ball. One of these is Berkley's. The Californians from polo's North American capital are expected here for some fast chukkers against Island riders in late July.

Weekends through June, Oregon State Polo Club will come north to tussle for Centennial and B.C. Challenge Cups. The 20 Oregon mounts will be quartered for the month on Vancouver Island Polo Club property whcih has been expanded to 42 acres from an original 10.

"We're pleased with our prospects," says club president Dr. Bill Powell. "In three seasons, we've seen polo emerge as a full-fledged sport on the Island."

This didn't just happen. It was Bill and Elizabeth Powell, veterinary surgeons both, who with a handful of fellow enthusiasts revived the hard-riding game which had been absent from our turf for over 20 years.

The club has now progressed to the point where it can field a junior team, the Centaurs, as well as its senior All-Stars. Pineapple is but one of a score of carefully-chosen and trained mounts, most of them California-bred.

A match between home-club teams will open the season on Sunday, May 24, weather permitting. If you like to watch clever ponies and fine riding. I suggest you keep that afternoon open.

Anyone who has a spare Island gathering moss will find a grateful recipient in University of Victoria.

This from Dr. Gordon Fields, who heads the rapidly-expanding Uvic biology department.

Vital in the study of ecology —the relationship of organisms to each other and their environment—is a primitive area which will remain in that state.

"It would be of great benefit to our students," Dr. Fields explains, "if we were able to set aside areas for field trips and scientific research which would remain in a natural state."

Since his department is now granting degrees in biology, and will soon widen its scope to include post-graduate work, the need for wild land which will stay wild has become pressing.

Hence the hope that an island or foreshore strip, or preferably both, may be made available by government or some private donor.

Ideally, any terrain set aside for field study should range from high ground to seashore, with timber and marshland between.

It should also be within a day's return journey for students on field trips.

This sounds like a tall order . . . but there's no harm in asking, and in a province which draws its basic industries from its natural resources, the biologist holds a significant place.

Over the past few months, this corner has intercepted a number of complaints about an emergency tire inflator that hit the Victoria automotive market last year.

If you happen to have one of these pressure cans stowed in your car trunk, I suggest you get an opinion on it from a garageman.

What I've heard matches reports turned in to British columbia Automobile Association.

None of these are of a cheerful nature, and one—downright disturbing—is that this product has raised heck with several car trunks by exploding.

Give Us the Prison Shouts Parksville

Delegation Wants Plan Reconsidered

The provincial government junked its plan for a Parksville prison—and now the natives are up in arms.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner Tuesday said the prison plan was withdrawn because a jail there might injure Parksville's reputation as a quality resort centre.

But the Chamber of Commerce is willing to put new industry first and worry about its reputation later, according to comment after an emergency meeting when the news hit town.

Said the chamber's president, Dudley Wickett: "Everyone at the meeting was terribly disappointed. No one has consulted us or asked our advice before making this move.

ALL IN FAVOR

"We just can't understand it. Almost everyone in the town was in favor of having a jail here.

"It would have added to our population when the jail staff move in and would have boosted our economics."

Since the medium-security institution was first proposed several months ago Mr. Wickett has had only one complaint from a town's persons.

"However, there may be some private individuals against it," he said.

"I can only surmise that someone has taken to writing to the attorney-general to air his grievances about the scheme. Certainly we're all for it."

IN THE DARK

Said Village Commissioner John Robertson: "There's not been a thing at the municipal offices here to confirm the decision. We're all pretty much in the dark."

Attempts by both men to find out any more from the attorney-general's department were in vain. Mr. Bonner is in Vancouver for the opening of the International Trade Fair.

Said Mr. Wickett: "We decided at last night's meeting that when we have confirmation of the move we will send a delegation to the powers that be to try and get a reversal of the decision."

The jail, he said, would have been built on Little Mountain about four miles outside the town and could therefore have no effect on the town's good name.

SETBACK TO AREA

In Tuesday's announcement Mr. Bonner said: "I think it would have become known as Parksville Prison — and that would have been a setback to the area."

MAKING TALENT APPEARANCES tonight at Jaycee fair will be Miss Victoria candidates Linda Gower (left) who will sing, and Diane Martin who will do a dance routine. Two of the 10 finalists in the pageant present their talent each night of the fair except Saturday when Miss Victoria 1964 will be named. (Peter Chapman photos.)

Emergency Hospital Opening Set

B.C.'s first instant hospital will be opened May 21 at Jordan River.

A complete 200-bed emergency hospital will be crammed into an 8,000 square foot concrete block building built at a cost of $15,000 by Luney Bros. and Hamilton.

Just pour into any nearby school, add nurses and doctors and it will work, says the provincial civil defence organization, which created the hospital kit.

All the equipment and supplies needed to run the hospital will be folded and crated inside the blockhouse, built near B.C. Hydro's Jordan River power plant.

RCMP will hold keys to the blockhouse.

A civil defence spokesman said the hospital is designed for use in the Greater Victoria area.

It is located at Jordan River because prevailing winds would carry away most of the fallout from a nuclear explosion over the city.

When needed it would be brought into the target area and set up in a school, staffed by voluntary medical crews.

Offices Closing

All provincial government offices except Victoria's museum will be closed next Monday when civil servants get a holiday for Victoria Day.

The museum will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

BLIND TOURNAMENT

Sightless Bowlers To Be Given 'Flip'

The sixth annual bowling tournament for the blind will be held Thursday evening at the Loomer Lanes, Town and Country Shopping Plaza.

An afternoon flight over southern Vancouver Island, arranged by Trans Canada Air Lines and Canadian National Institute for the Blind, precedes the event.

Blind guide-rail bowler contestants this year are Harold Mitchell of Hamilton, Ont., and George Mills of New Westminster.

Capt. M. C. Robinson, national director of CNIB for Western Canada, will officially open the tournament at 7:30 p.m. It was Capt. Robinson who originated the first Five Pin Bowling League for blind persons in Vancouver in 1935. Now 2,000 blind people across Canada find bowling their most popular indoor recreation.

GUIDES USED

The blind bowlers use a knee-high guide rail, 10 feet in length and a sighted volunteer keeps each bowler informed of the progress of his ball.

Tournaments are held annually on the local and international level with the TCA-CNIB tournament being the only national tournament.

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes will present the TCA trophy to the winner and TCA's first employee and First World War flying ace, D. R. MacLaren, will be master of ceremonies.

Neville "Buck" Taylor, president of the Victoria Five Pin Bowling Association, will be official scorekeeper and Henry Hunt, Victoria's totem pole carver, will present miniature totem poles to the contestants as mementos of their visit to Vancouver Island.

During the afternoon many blind persons will experience their first air flight along with other blind bowlers and sighted escorts.

Church Quartet To Sing Here

The Dominicaires Male Quartet from the Canadian Nazarene College at Winnipeg will give a concert in the Esquimalt Church of the Nazarine, 866 Craigflower Road, Thursday at 7:45 p.m. and in Victoria's First Church, Quadra and Kings, Friday at 7:45 p.m.

Ill Wind Sends Two to Hospital

Two men are in hospital and a third was rescued at sea after gale winds gusting to 54 miles an hour tore in from the waterfront Tuesday.

The sudden blast sent Clarence Faa, 31, of 4051 Cedar Hill, and Roy Empey, 30, of 254 Moss, crashing to earth in Memorial Arena fairgrounds as they tried to fasten a sign atop a 36-foot steel scaffold erected for floodlighting.

Both men are in satisfactory condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital, Faa with chest injuries and Empey with a broken leg.

The weather office said the gale blew at 40 to 54 miles an hour, enough to push over the tower that stood on a rock, anchored but not guyed.

For Trial Islander Thomas King, the wind brought a stormy, roller coaster finish to his first trip ashore in 12 days.

Rowing back to the lighthouse, where he is assistant keeper, King ran into the teeth of the gale that added to the hazard of tide rips.

Buffeted off-course in his nine-foot dinghy, his predicament was seen by cab driver William McFarlane, who had driven him to Shoal Bay.

"I was scared I was going to go outside Discovery (Island), and you don't know what it's like unless you've been out there," King said.

POLICE CALLED

The cabbie called Oak Bay police, who sent a power boat from the marina to the lightkeeper's aid. Boatman George Moore and King were soaked by the time they got back to the marina.

King spent the rest of the night in Victoria.

"I've been there (on Trial Island) seven years, and that's the first time this has happened," said King, noting that water seemed "dead calm" before he set out.

He has about 25 years' experience in the lighthouse service and many years of seafaring behind him, having started in the whaling trade at the age of 16.

It was "rather prophetic" a man ended up on top of a monument March 6 after the way he drove his car, the driver was told today when he appeared in court.

William Wylie, 450 Dallas Road, was fined $200 for dangerous driving. Magistrate William Ostler also ordered him to drive only on business for four months.

Evidence showed police in a prowl car saw him go through the intersection of Broughton and Quadra at an estimated speed of 60 m.p.h.

Wylie lost control and his car spun into Pioneer Square ending up on top of a monument erected there. Wylie's lawyer said his client didn't remember the accident but possibly his accelerator had jammed.

Wylie's 1964 model car was a total wreck, according to police.

The regular meeting of the Victoria Inboard Outboard Association will be held tonight at 8 at 845 Yates Street.

City firemen have not determined the cause of a blaze that damaged Victoria's newest office building Tuesday evening.

The fire was discovered about 6:30 on the sixth floor of the Bentall Building, Fort and Douglas. It started in paper wrapping on a huge stack of insulation piled to the ceiling on the sixth floor.

Fire Chief John Abbott said the main loss was water damage to the insulation although smoke from the fire seeped through the new $1,500,000 structure.

The building was opened only last week. There is speculation that a workman's cigarette butt may have started the fire.

Worker Who Sparred With Boss Reinstated

A Victoria sawmill worker today was ordered reinstated in the job he lost after a fight with the strawboss.

A majority decision by an arbitration board ruled that William Steffler was wrongfully dismissed by Smith Cedar Products Ltd.

H. P. Reilly, business agent for the Shingle Weavers Local 2802 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, said Steffler will receive about $800 in back pay.

Both Steffler and William Ferguson, a head carloader, were fired March 9 for fighting on the job. The fight followed an earlier battle involving a third man.

The three-man board found that on March 6, Ferguson, the straw boss, told John Tom Shaw he did not like the way Shaw was operating the fork lift.

Shaw told Ferguson he could operate it himself, the board found.

The board report stated Ferguson "does not take kindly to an insult," and thereupon grabbed Shaw by the throat, slapped and punched him half a dozen times and then hit him on the back with a stick.

Shaw was telling foreman Sig Rudiger what had happened, when Ferguson returned and started throwing punches again, the board was told.

The battered Shaw, two members of the union shop committee and the foreman were discussing the earlier fights when Ferguson reappeared and threw a rock at them.

Later Ferguson and Steffler got embroiled in a fight, but the scuffle was broken up by another worker.

The board's report says Ferguson admitted fighting.

"I knew I was going to get fired so I intended to do something to be fired about," it quotes him say saying.

Ask The Times

Q — Could you tell me if an 18-foot boat has to be licenced and where I could licence it? T.B.H.

A — Small pleasure craft, less than 20 tons and powered by a motor of 10 horsepower or less do not have to be licenced. However, the department of transport encourages boat owners to licence their craft for identification purposes.

Q—Could you please tell me through your column if it is necessary for unemployed persons over 65 to get registered for a social security number? W.T.

Persons who are employed in insurable employment must register for a social security number. Those who are not have been requested to register so if the proposed new pension plan comes into effect they will already have a number.

You can register through the National Employment Service.

Eskimo Girl First Graduate In Nursing

Miss Pokiak, from the Northwest Territories, said her eventual goal was one of the nursing stations of the western Arctic — preferably Aklavik or Tuktoyaktuk. The latter, a settlement in the Mackenzie River delta, is her home town.

The Eskimo girl took her early schooling at a Roman Catholic mission school in Aklavik. Her grade 12 was obtained at an Indian-Eskimo school at Yellowknife. She graduated from the Winnipeg General Hospital after three years of study there.

Her course was financed by the northern affairs department under its program aimed at finding careers for Eskimos.

EXILE COMMANDOS SMASH CUBAN MILL

Believed Start Of Many Raids

MIAMI (UPI)—Cuban exile commandos attacked a big Castro sugar mill in eastern Oriente province today and escaped after inflicting heavy damage, it was reported here.

Telephoned reports from an undisclosed Central American base said the seaborne raiders from Manuel Artime's Movement for Revolutionary Recovery (MRR) hit the Pilon sugar mill, in eastern Cuba on Oriente province's south coast just before dawn.

Artime was one of the leaders of the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion in 1961 and formerly headed the Catholic youth underground resistance to the Castro regime from within Cuba.

The hit-run raiders not only damaged the mill but also inflicted other damage, raid reports said. There was no immediate mention of casualties inflicted or suffered, if any.

FIRST BLOW

The action was the exiles first blow against the Castro regime since Jan. 17 when the mambises commandos sank a Cuban patrol boat at anchor in a Pinor Del Rio port by attaching an underwater plastic mine to its hull. There were more than a dozen such anti-Castro actions in 1963.

Pilon is in the foothills of the Sierra Maestra range where, ironically, Fidel Castro operated as a guerrilla in the early days of his revolution. The mill is a mile or two inland from Cabo Cruz on the southwest tip of Oriente province. It was owned by sugar magnate Julio Lobo before confiscation by the Castro regime.

Exiles speculated the attack would touch off a series of similar commando-type operations such as the hit-run land, sea and air assaults carried out in 1962 and 1963 before the United States cracked down on anti-Castro raiders.

SHIFT OPERATIONS

Since the U.S. ban on use of coastal or Caribbean bases for exile attacks against Communist Cuba, they have shifted operations to unspecified central American countries. The Bay of Pigs invasion was carried out from Guatemala and Nicaragua. Artime's sponsorship of today's attack came as a surprise to the big exile colony here. A political rival, Manuel Ray, announced a few weeks ago his men would start commando operations against Castro by May 20, Cuban independence day.

Artime has been in the background since his release from a Cuban jail in the invasion prisoner exchange of December, 1962. However, the former student leader has been reported quietly building up a strong anti-Castro force in central America.

Membership in Artime's force is understood to be heavily larded with Bay of Pigs veterans trained in U.S. military camps.

AT NATO

French Policy Blasted

THE HAGUE (CP)—Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak challenged President de Gaulle today to say just how France wants to change the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Persons who attended the session described Spaak's statements as energetic and pointed, although he refrained from mentioning de Gaulle or France by name. Couve de Murville indicated he would speak in reply at a secret session later today.

Spaak criticized de Gaulle on at least three points — the internal organization of the alliance, relations between the United States and Europe, and de Gaulle's policy in Southeast Asia.

Conference sources quoted him as saying that the only area of the world in which the Allies were firmly united on policy was Germany and Berlin. All members want Germany reunited through self-determination.

SEEK LOOSE STRUCTURE

France wants the NATO structure loosened to give members a stronger voice in policy, and to cut down the dominant U.S. role. Other members believe the NATO structure should be tightened.

Today the 15 ministers met with only two aides present for each of them. The aim was to limit the risk that divisive exchanges would be leaked.

PROBLEMS FACE NATO

Hanging over the alliance are such basic questions as:

How is NATO to be re-shaped to accommodate the growing strength of Europe without spreading or weakening control over nuclear weapons?

How will Britain be linked with her continental allies in developing industrial, social and military institutions?

How are the allies going to work together to close the gap between have and have-not nations, keep world peace, reorganize trading patterns and cope with the Communist world?

Are Europe and the U.S. to move closer together in defence of the non-Communist world or drift apart?

WANTS DEFENCES RE-CAST

He wants Europeans, preferably under French leadership, to re-cast their defence on the basis of a planning staff which would co-ordinate national forces.

De Gaulle also still would like some sort of American-French-British high command to chart allied strategy on a global scale. But he has warned that in a crisis, the United States might abandon Europe rather than risk nuclear devastation.

The United States, Britain and several other European nations want closer integration of their forces and policies. Only thus, they contend, can the peoples and institutions of the new world and the old co-operate effectively.

ANNUAL WHEAT DEAL?

Soviet Seeks Expansion Of Trade With Canada

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Charles B. Neapole, general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, said today the Soviet Union is checking into the prospects of buying 500,000 tons of Canadian wheat annually.

(Earlier this week Anastas Mikoyan, Soviet deputy premier, was quoted as telling a group of Canadian executives, including Neapole, that Russia is "ready to buy in Canada every year wheat for Far Eastern districts.")

Neapole said the Russians might buy the wheat to fill Soviet grain needs on Russia's Pacific seaboard. The long-term deal would be worth up to about $40,000,000 a year.

James A. Richardson, a Winnipeg grain merchant, said the Soviet government wanted a permanent grain supply for the Pacific seaboard because Canadian deliveries would be cheaper than the cost of moving Soviet wheat from the Ukraine.

He said the proposal was in addition to the current $500,000,000 deal under which Russia is buying Canadian wheat and flour to make up for harvest losses.

PERMANENT DEAL?

The Far Eastern deal was envisaged as a permanent trade feature, he said. According to the Soviet estimates, it would involve about 18,000,000 bushels a year.

Neapole said the two-week tour of 40 Canadian executives opened up "very definite potential" for more trade in both directions. The Canadians leave for Stockholm Thursday.

Neapole said there were "indications" that Soviet purchases of Canadian wheat to offset local shortages might rise to $1,000,000,000 over a two-year period, including the $500,000,000 supply negotiated last September.

Canada has already delivered 125,000,000 bushels of wheat under last year's deal, just over half the total. Neapole said negotiations to increase the order were still in progress in Canada.

Canada to Change Policy on China?

THE HAGUE (CP) — Paul Martin reviewed world problems at the NATO spring council Tuesday and indicated that Canada's position on one of them—recognization of Communist China—may change early next year.

Canada doesn't recognize Red China, but the external affairs minister told the opening session of the three-day ministerial meeting that the Peking government could not be excluded indefinitely from world councils and world acceptance.

But Martin said "a grave danger exists that chances for a solution that would make provision for Formosa and its inhabitants might disappear if we do not move soon from the present static position."

The implication was that Red China may be admitted to the UN. The 1963 General Assembly voted 57 to 41 against seating Red China with a dozen abstentions. Since then France has recognized the Communist regime.

'MAY MODIFY POSITION'

Martin declared "while we have no intention of doing anything which would add to the difficulties of our friends, the realities of the situation may require some modification of our position following the 19th session of the UN assembly." The 19th session ends early in 1965.

A Canadian spokesman declined to expand on Martin's statement and said there was no immediate reaction to it at the meeting.

Sessions of the council, made up of the foreign ministers of the 15 NATO countries, are secret and summaries of speeches are made available to the press.

Martin also was blunt on several other world problems including Cyprus and he disclosed

FINED $1,300

Que. MLA 'Peddled Influence'

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—Antonio Talbot, Union Nationale member for Chicoutimi and former highways minister in the Duplessis administration, today was found guilty on 13 charges of "influence peddling."

Talbot, 62, and a lawyer was fined $100 on each of the 13 charges by Sessions Court Judge Thomas Tremblay.

The charges arose out of the Salvas royal commission report, set up by Premier Jean Lesage to investigate the purchasing practices of the former Union Nationale government.

Tremblay said Talbot was saved from a jail sentence because he had not profited from "kickbacks" on materials used for road construction while he headed the highways department.

The judge also said that the Crown had not proven that Talbot had acted with malice.

The relatively light sentence given the ex-minister — who briefly acted as interim leader of the Union Nationale following the party's electoral defeat and resignation of Premier Antonio Barrette in 1960—was the first conviction meted out to a former Duplessis cabinet minister.

PEARSON'S DILEMMA

War of Attrition Or Fast Assault?

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

OTTAWA—After two years of disruption, the political system of Canada is slowly groping its way back to normality. But it has a long way to go and will not reach its goal without another national election. Though Mr. Diefenbaker is probably the only politician in Ottawa who favors an early election, events may produce it in the autumn. For clearly the present situation in Parliament cannot continue much longer.

Hutchison

Having taken office on a set of mistaken premises and irrelevant assumptions, the Pearson government made a sorry mess of its first year but is ready at last to lay down a coherent national policy, or the first elements of it. Some eighty pieces of legislation have been drafted and perhaps a quarter of them are regarded as urgent.

Yet the spring foliage and tulips had exploded on Parliament Hill before a single statute of any significance had been passed. The name of the Trans Canada Air Lines was solemnly changed and that was all.

Naturally, the government blames this stalemate on Mr. Diefenbaker, who desperately desires an election while he is still young enough to fight it. And naturally Mr. Diefenbaker blames the government, not without good evidence, for failing to do its homework and introduce its legislative program.

Lowest Point of Public Esteem

A parliament of minorities has been making a repulsive spectacle of itself since the election of 1962. Today, in the opinion of its wiser members, it has reached the lowest point of public esteem ever recorded. It has nowhere to go but up. This damage to Canadian democracy is the price of two inconclusive elections when the people twice refused to vote confidence in any leader or party.

The sovereign question of current politics is whether the people are now prepared to vote confidence in the Pearson government, to re-elect the Conservatives or to withhold any majority mandate. No politician knows the answer but some are eager to seek it in the open.

About a month ago a small group of leading Liberal figures, disgusted by a year of false starts and humiliating retreats, urged Mr. Pearson to end this misery and attempt a dash for freedom. The government, they said, should go to the country before midsummer on the issue of its old-age pension policy.

Mr. Pearson promptly rejected this counsel, knowing that the pension policy already was obsolete and must be replaced by an entirely different scheme acceptable to Quebec and Ontario. Besides, it would have been political madness of a peculiarly violent sort to risk an election while the government was publicly fighting the two largest provinces.

Breathing Spell In Cold War

Once Mr. Pearson had reached an accord with them on pensions and taxes—a dubious accord, to be sure, but at least a breathing spell in the cold federal-provincial war — and the Liberals had won the Saskatchewan election, the political prospects looked better. The young Turks of the Liberal party renewed their demand for a poll to break the stalemate.

Again they failed to convince their leader. In any case, it was now too late for an election before autumn, since no government willingly faces the electorate in the summer holiday season. Moreover, the public, as Ottawa measures its opinion, is tired of political alarms and would resent a third election within some two years unless it was plainly unavoidable.

This argument within the Liberal hierarchy could not shake the prime minister who, during the last few weeks, has made himself the unquestioned master of his party. Mr. Pearson's mind was on more practical concerns.

The state of Parliament, as he surveys it with a deceptively boyish grin from the treasury benches, has no parallel in the past, not even in the days of Mackenzie King's first minority government.

On the one hand, the Liberal party is basically divided between its right and left wings, between its protectionists led by Mr. Gordon and its low-tariff internationalists led by Mr. Sharp, between its old guard of veterans and its recent recruits.

On the other, the Conservative

SHRUM SEEKS SOVIET BIDS ON PEACE R.

MOSCOW (CP) — Russia has been invited to bid on equipment for the $800,000,000 Peace River hydro development in British Columbia, it was learned today.

The invitation was made by Dr. Gordon Shrum, co-chairman of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, who is a member of a group of Canadian executives now visiting the Soviet Union.

It is expected the Russians will send experts to B.C. to study the Authority's needs first-hand.

CATANIA (Reuters) — Molten lava flowed slowly today from the central crater of Sicily's Mount Etna. Late indications were that the nearby town of Bronte was not in danger.

Meanwhile, Mount Vesuvius, near Naples, was quiet.

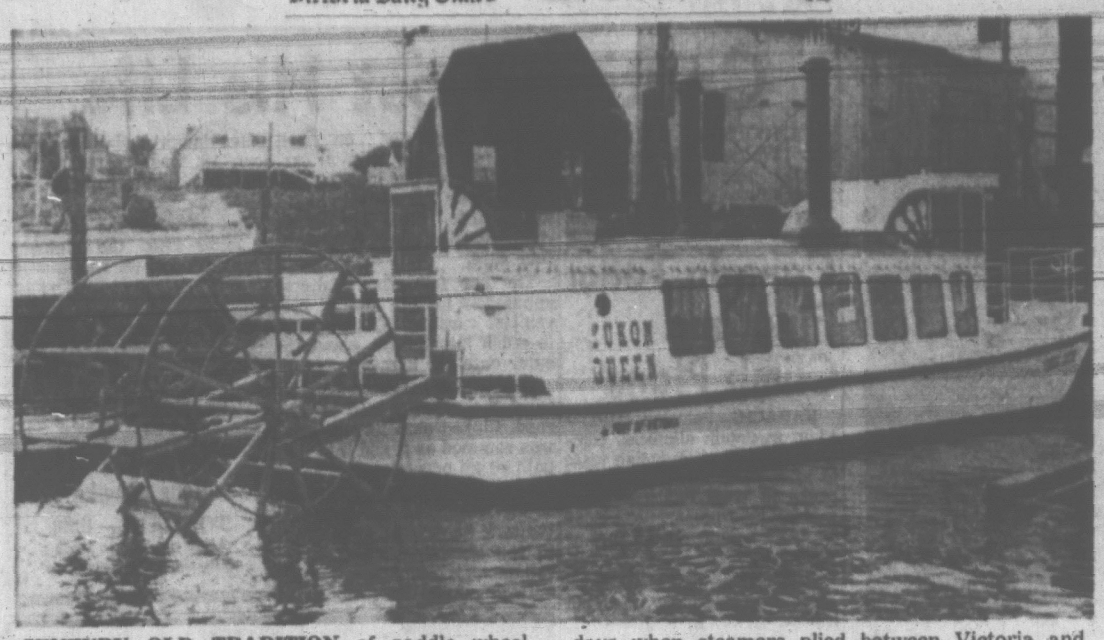
Soccer Star Can't Play

BRISTOL (CP) — Football sources say Norman Sykes of England will be barred from playing in Canada.

A football association spokesman is quoted as saying: "Under no circumstances will Sykes be allowed to play for Toronto City."

Sykes, 27, former captain of Bristol Rovers, joined Toronto on a summer contract, hoping to prove himself fit despite a hip ailment. But published reports in Britain say Sykes flew to Canada without Rovers' permission, breaking British rules about playing abroad during the off season.



CENTURY-OLD TRADITION of paddle wheel ships returns to Vancouver Island this summer with Yukon Queen, a tourist scow that will make trips up and down Victoria's inner harbor, recalling days when steamers plied between Victoria and Fraser River ports carrying gold-rush miners. Here she is seen being fitted out at local shipyard. Project is being launched by a private concern.

Indians Must Give Up Old Ways to Survive

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Indians of the Queen Charlotte Islands, long dependent on fishing for a livelihood, will be asked to give it up and train for more profitable jobs in the forest industries.

Fred Clark, regional supervisor of Indian agencies, disclosed this Tuesday night. He said most of the troubles besetting the Haida Indians of Massett result from their inability to compete with bigger, faster, more modern boats in the coastal salmon fleet.

"The fishery won't support these people any longer and other jobs will have to be found," Mr Clark told an interviewer.

Indian Commissioner J. V. Boys said a survey of job opportunities on the islands of the central B.C. coast now is under way and will be followed by a job-training program.

"Indians are good loggers and many of the Haidas from Skidegate hold responsible jobs in logging camps on the Islands," he said.

"We are sending a job placement officer up to Masset and will pay half of the Indians' salaries until they are trained for the job."

The economic plight of Indians at Masset was spotlighted recently when workers at the Queen Charlotte Island Canneries Ltd., refused to work until assistant production manager Fred Steel was fired. Steel paid a $200 fine for driving without due care and attention following an accident in which a young Indian was killed and another hurt last October. The cannery workers said the fine was not punishment enough.

Mr. Clark said the Indians at Masset once owned a number of seiners but they got into debt with the canners and lost their boats. They now were operating "with a mosquito fleet, about 40 or 50 open boats with outboards, and are not able to follow the salmon runs down to Rivers Inlet and the Fraser River where the big catches are made."

ONLY 50 FISHING

The Indian population at Masset now is more than 800 but there are jobs for only about 60 women in the cannery and only about 50 men are fishing, Mr. Clark said. He estimated the women make between $1,000 and $1,200 each for the six-month season and each fisherman grosses about $1,400.

At the village of Skidegate on the south end of the islands the Indians have turned to logging and there is virtually no unemployment, he said.

He felt that the Haidas were just as adept with power saws as their forefathers were with stone axes they used to hew out giant dugout canoes and whittle 60-foot totem poles.

New Northern Service Planned by Air Lines

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)— British Columbia Air Lines Limited applied to the air transport board Tuesday for a licence to operate an irregular service to four small communities spaced along one of its regular air routes.

The application was immediately opposed by two other firms which provide the communities with a charter service.

BCAL hopes to service Porcher Island, Banks Island, Truch Island and Hartley Bay. All are located near the company's air route between here and Ocean Falls to the south.

OPPOSITION

Mr. Anderson said his company's revenue from its charter service to the communities would be cut if the licence was granted.

He also said the Grumman Goose aircraft used by BCAL on its Prince Rupert-Ocean Falls service was too large to land at some of the places named in the application.

Mr. Robbins said BCAL was "applying for something developed by others." He said his firm did considerable charter business with most points named in the application.

B.C. Air Lines general manager Gordon Best said his company had many requests to start the proposed service. He said the requests came from fishing companies in the area, the provincial health department, the social welfare department and the Indian affairs department.

Funeral Thursday For Former Scribe

Funeral services will be held at McCall's Chapel Thursday for Roy (Cap) Thorsen, well-known former Victoria Times reporter, who died Tuesday in Veterans' Hospital.

The service will start at 3:15 p.m. Rev. Douglas Kendall will officiate.

A veteran of the Second World War, Mr. Thorsen's death follows a prolonged illness originating from a wound received on the western front.

He was 47 years old.

He was known by hundreds of sportsmen on Vancouver Island for his fishing and hunting column which appeared in the Times in the late 40s and early 50s.

TWO ABOARD PLANE LOST IN INTERIOR

VANCOUVER (CP) — A single engine aircraft with two aboard was missing today on a flight from Vancouver to Nicola Lake.

It was last seen in the vicinity of Hope, some 50 miles south of Nicola Lake.

Sooke Cadet Chosen for Trip South of Border

Four air cadets from lower Vancouver Island will join 53 other air cadets from throughout the province this summer as they take part in scholarship and exchange visit programs.

Winner of the most sought after award, the Air Cadet League's goodwill "exchange visits" project, is WO 2 Ronald J. Jupp of Sooke. Mr. Jupp's award will take him to the United States this summer.

Cpl. Bryan Strickland, 3038 Oakdowne Road, and Cpl. John A. Wallace, 4301 Quadra Street, Victoria, have been awarded an RCAF flying scholarship which will include 35 hours of pilot training at a civilian flying club or school. Location has not been announced.

Flt. Sgt. John S. MacQuarrie, 1190 Hewlett Place, Victoria, will be among 240 cadets from across Canada who will report to RCAF Station Camp Borden in early July to commence seven weeks of leadership training.

Special training awards are provided by the Air Cadet League of Canada and the Royal Canadian Air Force.

A newly instituted summer bush survival course will take place in the Jasper area of Alberta during the first two weeks of August. The thirty selected cadets for this course are from other parts of Canada.

Exasperated Pique, Says U.K. Paper

LONDON (CP)—The speech by American State Secretary Rusk at the NATO conference in The Hague shows that U.S. policy toward Cuba is "as stubborn and misguided as ever," says The Guardian of Manchester.

In its main editorial, the newspaper says American policy on Cuba is not rational.

"It is not a considered attempt to reach a definite objective so much as an act of exasperated pique."

The newspaper acknowledges that it is galling for the Americans to see a ruthless dictatorship established on their doorstep, but adds that sympathy for American anger should not lead to support for mistaken policies.

'Parliament Snubbed'

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin's remarks to NATO about recognition of Communist China are another example of government contempt of Parliament, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said today.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government had been asked in the House of Commons to state its stand on China and had not given an answer.

"This is another example of the attitude of this government and reveals again its contempt for Parliament," he said.

MORE USE, MORE SHIPS, SAYS PREMIER

The government may eventually build three or four big ferries for its new service between northern Vancouver Island and Prince Rupert, Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Tuesday.

The first ferry will go into service in May 1966.

Mr. Bennett said it will carry passengers, cars and trucks only—no bulk freight.

The government Ferry Authority will see how good the business is before deciding to build more ships, he said.

"If the summer experience is good—we can let a contract for the second one," he said.
